FIFTEEN DIE IN THEATER FIRE; SCORES HURT

Yank Proposals Have Teeth

LODGE TIES KNOT IN EUROPEAN DIPLOMACY; WOULD SAVE CHINESE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The full significance of the American four points proposed by Elihu Root and adopted by the Arms Conference to guide its discussions on China is coming to be better understood as the Far Eastern negotiations approach decisions on specific subjects.

At first regarded largely as a reiteration of general principles which had long been sanctioned on papers by all the powers, the four points have, in fact, become the foundation on which China's friends hope to erect a system of reforms that will in many respects reverse past and present practices.

The American delegation has taken the leadership by making known that it regards the Root resolution as vastly more than a few finely turned diplomatic phrases. The American position is that by accepting the "four points" the nations have bound themselves to apply in a concrete way the long-professed principles of fair dealing toward China and to proceed without subterfuge to give China as great a degree of independence as conditions warrant.

Powerful support from outside the American delegation has strengthened that position and in the discussions of tariff autonomy, extra-territoriality and postal rights, the trend of the negotiations never has been permitted to stray far from the Root platform. In every case proposed solutions have been scrutinized in the light of appropriate sections of the "four points," with the result that the four American principles have become the dominating element.

MAY DISCUSS SHANTUNG.

How this method will affect such problems as Shantung, Manchuria and the "twenty-one demands," if they come before the conference, is to be demonstrated.

With the question of extra-territoriality and postal rights to be disposed of tomorrow through specific declarations now in preparation, there was an expectation in some quarters that subject of leases, including those held by Japan in Shantung and Manchuria, might be brought up for discussion soon.

Delegates are hearing many rumors of an attempt to secure an agreement on Shantung, at least outside the conference. Such a development apparently would be welcomed by all powers.

THREE SECTIONS.

GAS, POISON, BOMBS TO DESTROY WHOLE CITIES; WAR HORRORS PAINTED

BY DONALD McGREGOR.
Formerly Captain U. S. Army.
[Copyright, New York "Herald."]
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The next war will claim its toll of death in tens of thousands where thousands have fallen in the past. It will be brief—a war in which all the terrible developments of science will be employed, quickly, surely and with grim precision.

The next war will see whole cities obliterated within an hour. The end will come swiftly to the civil populations. Non-combatants, such as women, children and invalids, will gasp and fall dead in their tracks. Poison gas is no respecter of persons.

The bodies of the victims, the agony still showing in their faces, will be burned. Phosphorus bombs dropped from airplanes will set the cities aflame so that only smoky stone and concrete framework of monstrous buildings will be standing amid the ashes as monuments to the dead.

The next war will find engines of death stealing through the night to envelop a magnificent battle fleet. The torpedo, unaimed, but with a mechanical device that steers it on its course to the steel armor of a warship, will send a crew of 1500 officers and men to death in the sea. Those who struggle gamely for life amid the floating wreckage will be smothered with gas.

TERRIBLE DESTRUCTION.

Armies, selected from the superior manhood of the nation, will be destroyed by the newest overpowering weapons that science has devised. The next war will take away the last vestige of individual bravery—sportsmanlike warfare, if you please, that has in a sense marked war in the past.

The stirring days of 1861 are well within the memory of many. Out of the North and the South there marched young men in blue and gray to shoot at one another with rifle and cannon. Individual bravery counted for much in those times, leadership, marksmanship with the rifle, close contact with the bayonet and the saber. This was true during the Revolution, the War of 1812 and the war with Mexico. The Spanish-American War had many of the same elements, and the nation looked on the soldier as one who went forth to do his part against the enemy not as the unit in a great scientific machine for wholesale killing.

Machine warfare to a certain extent characterized the World War, but science did not get fully into its stride until the closing days. The appalling methods of dealing out death were fairly well devel-

MANY ARE TRAMPLED IN WILD RUSH FOR SAFETY; DEATH LIST MAY MOUNT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 27.—At least fifteen persons are believed to have lost their lives and sixty others were burned or injured during a fire which destroyed the Rialto Theater, a vaudeville and motion-picture house on College street, tonight. At midnight there were five known dead.

Three bodies were recovered from the ruins, a fourth was in plain view on a fire escape, but could not be recovered because of the danger of falling walls, and a fifth victim was dead of injuries at the New Haven State Hospital.

Under the glare of the powerful lights the search for additional victims was proceeding at midnight, but firemen and police were hindered by the fact that the basement of the wrecked theater was filled with charred debris and four feet of water. Many of those burned were in a critical condition and it is believed the death list will be increased.

The fire is said to have started from an explosion of incense on the stage. First reports were that the film projection room in the balcony was the origin of the explosion and fire.

A vaudeville team had just finished their act when there was a flash from the left wing of the stage and all the lights in the house went out.

Most of the 900 persons in the audience thought a fuse had blown out during a lighting effect, until suddenly a sheet of flames burst from the wing and leaped toward the curtain.

MAD RUSH FOR EXITS.

The drop caught fire and as the flames leaped out over the audience men, women and children leaped to their feet.

The cry of "Fire!" rang through the darkened house and the terrified spectators began a mad rush for the exits, groping their way through the smoke to escape the flames which came rolling out from the stage and spread in all directions.

The members of the orchestra made a valiant attempt to stem the panic. They remained at their posts and played a selection until the fire swept down into their pit and forced them to flee.

Several of the musicians are said to have been burned before they made their escape.

There was one exit and three windows on each side of the theater on the orchestra floor. Those in the orchestra stumbled and climbed over the backs of chairs or groped their way up the aisles to these exits and windows and hurled themselves into the street. The exits became blocked and many were injured by being trampled in the crash to escape from the blazing structure.

MANY ARE TRAPPED.

Many persons in the balcony were trapped as tongues of flame, leaping from the arch, climbed the falling and swept into side balcony seats.

The walls caught fire and the blaze swept on toward the lone window which opened onto a fire escape on the south side of the structure, through which those who were unable to reach the stairs were trying to escape.

In the audience were several Yale students, who worked heroically to save the women and children among those trapped in the balcony. Several of the students were badly burned and it is thought some of them may be among the unrecovered dead.

James Keith, a member of the Yale varsity football team, who was one of the rescuing party, is in a critical condition at the New Haven Hospital. Keith was among the last to leave the blazing theater. He waited until the last of the women and children who could be reached had been led to safety.

ESCAPE CUT OFF.

Many of those who escaped with hands and faces burned and eyebrows and hair singed said they recalled having unwillingly trampled over bodies of persons who had fallen in the aisles. A considerable number must have fallen, but many of these, although injured and with their clothing partly torn off, regained their feet and were able to attain safety.

In the balcony escape was cut off when the stairs caught fire. Many in the balcony dropped or jumped to the orchestra floor. A number of those in the audience described the scene as being like a gigantic football scrimmage.

Those in the hospitals bore evidence of a severe struggle. One victim's skull was fractured; another suffered a fractured leg. Others at the hospitals had injuries which came from trampling and not burns, and many of those who were not injured had their clothing nearly torn off in the wild rush for safety.

FLIMSY DRAPERY IGNITED.

"The fire, as far as I've learned," said Lawrence W. Carroll, manager of the theater, "was caused by the incense burned in the prologue, which apparently ignited the flimsy drapery used in the scene. Royal Marion, the organist, first discovered the flames and told the stage manager. Together they pulled off the flaming drapery and tried to throw it outside.

"The drapery was flimsy and burned like tissue paper. One of the men tried to apply the chemical extinguisher, but it was useless.

"I was standing in the rear of the theater at the time. Everything was going along nicely until I suddenly saw a sheet of flame cover the entire screen from behind. In a moment's time there was a puff of smoke and the screen was ablaze. Before I could move, everything in front had flared up and the flames were leaping right toward me. They went halfway up to the auditorium. It was the most horrible sight I ever saw.

"There must have been a lot of people burned up in front," the manager continued, "and those in front were tumbling over each other. The place was packed to the back wall. The cashier had stopped selling tickets a half-hour before. There were about 900 in the lobby waiting for the second show to commence. With the shooting out of the flames the lights went out and the only light that was furnished was by the flames. It was enough, however, to allow everyone to see about."

Manager Carroll was arrested late tonight. He will be charged with manslaughter.

DECREASE A BILLION.

Tax Collections Much Less.

Cost of Administering Laws Considerably More Than a Year Ago.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Government tax receipts during the fiscal year 1921 decreased nearly a billion dollars, as compared with last year, while the cost of collection increased 33 cents for each $100, according to the annual report of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, made public tonight.

Collections during the past fiscal year totaled $4,595,000,765, against $5,407,580,251 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, a decrease of $812,579,486, or 15 per cent.

The cost of administering the Internal Revenue laws for the year, the report said, was $40,203,716, or 87 cents for each $100 collected, against $5 cents last year. However, the report added, included in the expenditures was $6,899,407 for the administration of the prohibition and narcotic laws and $130,000 for the enforcement of the child labor tax law, which deducted from the total, leaves $33,174,309, or an equivalent of 72 cents for each $100 in taxes collected.

Income and profits taxes aggregated $3,228,137,673, compared with $3,956,936,003 in 1920 and miscellaneous collections totaled $1,366,863,091 against $1,450,644,248 in 1920.

PRINCIPAL DECREASES.

Principal decreases are:

Alcoholic liquors, $57,247,720; tobacco manufactures, $40,589,969; excise taxes $38,538,121; corporation capital stock, $11,494,767; and stamp taxes $11,879,613.

These decreases, the report said, were offset by increases on estate tax, $50,407,697; transportation and telegraph, $12,164,326, and admission and dues, $13,072,073.

Collections under the penalty provisions of the Prohibition Act totaled $2,992,287. Receipts from distilled spirits, including wines, aggregated $42,597,867, compared with $97,809,775 in 1920. While fermented liquors produced $25,363,434, against $41,963,314.

During 1921 there were produced from materials other than fruit 86,266,838 taxable gallons of distilled spirits, a decrease of 13,104,733 from 1920, while 34,993,104 gallons were removed from bond, an increase of 6,172,245 over 1920.

Liquor containing more than one-half per cent of alcohol produced at breweries and dealcoholizing plants aggregated 193,448,763 gallons, compared with 289,169,630 in 1920, while cereal beverages containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol produced during the year aggregated 285,825,830 gallons. Production of wine and cereals totaled 19,551,595 gallons and at the end of the year there were 27,694,896 gallons in bond, as compared with 17,677,270 gallons on June 30, 1920.

Demonstrations Against France Spread to Rome.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ROME, Nov. 27.—Several demonstrations against the French Embassy were attempted today as an aftermath of the excitement caused by the publication of Washington dispatches alleging use of harsh words by Premier Briand of France against Senator Schanzer at the Washington conference. The police dispersed the demonstrators.

There were anti-French demonstrations Saturday in Genoa and Naples.

FILM FOLK SUMMONED.

Seek Testimony Against Fatty.

Louise Glaum is Named in Subpoena Asked for by Prosecution.

BY OTIS M. WILES,
Staff Correspondent of "The Times."
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—Louise Glaum, who was an intimate friend of Virginia Rappe, and seven other Los Angeles persons were subpoenaed late today to testify for the prosecution at the trial of Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, which enters upon its third week tomorrow morning.

George Duffey of the San Francisco District Attorney's office, made the request for the subpoenaes and the writs were issued by Judge Thomas F. Graham.

The other Los Angeles witnesses named in the writs are: Norman Taurog, 421 South Grand avenue, and an actor at the Vitagraph studio; Jack White, 4325 Prospect avenue, Hollywood; Mrs. Jane Doe Harrigan, 1574 West Thirty-fifth street; Clarence Sharp and Ritters Gould, 6716 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood; George Meehan, 1523 Rodney Drive, and Jane Doe Dumond.

Miss Glaum is said to have been a close friend of Miss Rappe for more than four years, both in Chicago and Los Angeles, and is known to have attended many parties where Miss Rappe was present.

FATTY TO TAKE STAND.

Arbuckle will take the stand in his own defense tomorrow or Tuesday and for the first time will tell the story of what occurred when Miss Rappe was fatally injured.

Attorneys for the comedian gave this assurance today. Arbuckle, since the time of his arrest on a charge of murder, has made no statement as to his guilt or innocence. He did not testify at the Police Court hearing, at which the charge was changed from murder to manslaughter, and until the defense began calling witnesses in the present trial, only one side of the story has been told. Fatty will be the last witness.

Ignatius McCarthy, handwriting expert, will be recalled tomorrow morning and will attempt to disprove the testimony given by the State's expert, R. O. Heinrich, that fingerprints of Arbuckle and Miss Rappe were found on the inside of the door in Room 1219, eleven or twelve days after the girl was hurt.

It is possible the defense will then recall Miss Zeh Provost, and Al Semnacher, who testified for the State.

Miss Alice Blake, movie actress, is also expected to take the stand tomorrow.

The deposition taken from a physician and several nurses in Chicago will be read into the record. It is expected the State will call a number of witnesses in rebuttal, and that the case will go to the jury possibly on Thursday.

WANTS CLIMAX STUNT.

Arbuckle wants to do the climax stunt himself. He is anxious to climb up into the witness chair alone and unaided to tell his own story.

A number of Los Angeles witnesses are yet to be heard, and added to these numbers appeared today the name of Nigel Barrie, and his wife, who are expected to tell of incidents similar to those which occurred at Philo McCullough's party, where Virginia tore off her stockings and went home without them. Virginia is reported to have played similar pranks at the Barrie home in Los Angeles.

The prosecution's rebuttal witnesses are to be heard; also the rebuttal witnesses of the defense. Unabridged arguments are to thunder through the Hall of Justice for possibly a day or two. The jury, already becoming extremely impatient will undoubtedly waste but little time in returning a verdict. They have been locked up after each session for

JAPAN HAVING TROUBLE.

Proposed Naval Holiday Would Throw Thousands Out of Work in Hard Times.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The Japanese Cabinet and diplomatic advisory council at Tokio are taking a hand in the negotiations here over the tonnage ratio of capital warships to be allowed Japan. Admiral Kato, senior Japanese delegate, has laid the situation before his government.

It is understood he received from Tokio today explicit instructions as to his procedure in reply to communications from the delegation.

NO FORMAL CLAIMS.

It is pointed out that while the Japanese have made it known that they believe they are entitled to a ratio of 70 per cent, there is no accepted would be disposed to the conference itself is concerned. Japan has formally laid claim to this ratio.

The report was in circulation today that Japan, failing to have her own standard of measurement accepted, would be indisposed to accept the "5-5-3" arrangement. This impression seemed to be growing among Japanese. They were of the opinion that Japan would not by overinsistence, go so far as to endanger the success of a general naval agreement.

SERIOUS DISQUIETUDE.

Whatever may be the eventual decision of the conference as to ratio, it seems clear from Tokio dispatches that the prospects of cessation of warship-building in Japan is causing serious disquietude in labor circles and is giving the government anxiety as to how to furnish employment.

The great shipbuilding yards of Japan, those of Kawasaki and Mitsubishi companies. It is understood that some 45,000 employees at these yards have decided to hold a public meeting in Kobe December 1 to consider the situation. The meeting has been called by the joint labor organizations with the idea of presenting to the capitalists some practical project of finding new ways of livelihood for the men. The home government has begun an investigation to determine measures to relieve unemployment, which would follow a naval curtailment.

MEN DEMAND INDEMNITY.

Reports indicate that following the discharge of 266 workers by the Yokohama Dockyard Company November 22, the men immediately demanded a heavy indemnity or allowance for the loss of their positions.

It was believed here that the problem of finding new employment for those who will have no work will tax all the wisdom of the government at a time when the general labor situation growing out of the decline in Japanese exports, coupled with the high cost of living, is giving Japanese leaders great concern.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GALLUP (N.M.) Nov. 27.—Mystery continues to surround the slaying of J. W. Blackwell, Jr., and his wife on the front porch of their home Friday night. Each had been shot through the breast.

Blackwell was a nephew of the founder of the Bull Durham Tobacco Company. Blackwell's father, who lives here, and the latter's brother also founded the town of Durham, N.C., to which place the bodies of J. W. Blackwell, Jr., and his wife will be sent for burial.

RIGHT TO MOTHERHOOD.

Woman Who Objects to Being Deprived of it by Social Faddists Starts Row in Denver.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DENVER, Nov. 27.—Can a woman be required to give up her right to motherhood?

A storm of approval and protest from physicians, pastors, lawyers, clergymen and social workers followed the action of Judge Royal R. Graham in the Denver Juvenile Court, who recommended that Mrs. Clyde Cassidente, mother of five children, submit to an operation that would prevent her from having any more children.

Although she cannot be compelled by law to submit to the operation, Mrs. Cassidente faces the alternative of having her young ones taken from her by the court.

Mrs. Cassidente does not want to give up her children, the oldest of which is 6 years old and the youngest 6 months, neither does she want to submit to the operation which was recommended by Judge Graham because social workers had declared the Cassidente home was squalid and dirty and that the children were undernourished.

"They have no right to ask me to submit to such an operation," said Mrs. Cassidente today. "I am like any other woman. What woman would want to pay such a penalty for bringing five children into the world? We are not rich, but my home is not bad. As I look at it, it's these social workers who are meddling. I can't say what I will do, but I want to keep my children."

The husband, who works regularly, was aroused by the judge's action, and said: "It's spite work. So far as the operation is concerned, I told them it was all right if she didn't object, but she does, so I'm against it."

Prominent women endorsed Judge Graham's recommendation, but ministers, doctors and lawyers took the opposite view.

"Sterilization of the unfit is a social necessity that the State and nation must face," declared Mrs. Herbert Monroe, chairman of the Child Welfare Department of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

The opposite opinion may be summed up in the statement of Dr. T. J. Carlin, a leading physician, who said:

"I think a judge who makes a decision like that should be recalled. I think the suggestion wrong from both a professional and moral standpoint."

Meanwhile, all concerned are waiting the further action of the court, which continued the case until January 10 to give a special commission appointed by the court an opportunity to make an investigation and the Cassidentes an opportunity to think over the important part they are expected to play in the case.

SCIENCE STRIVES TO MAKE NEXT WAR A NIGHTMARE.

Large Cities, With Their Millions, to be at Mercy of Death Rained Down from the Sky at Night.

aped, but not to the highest point, when the armistice came. It has been since that eventful date in 1918 that the greatest advancement, if advancement it may be called, has come about in the scientific ways of killing men.

AIRPLANE, BOMB.

These terrible new instruments are the airplane and the bomb, but while the means of using them has developed there have been some very important, although less spectacular, improvements in the use of submarines. Altogether they constitute what now are being called the "weapons of the viper."

They are so deadly, so complete in their destruction that the Conference on the Limitation of Armament now gathered in Washington will be asked to call a halt. The delegates of the civilized nations of the world will be appealed to to forbid their use, to stop their further development, so that if war ever comes again all mankind will not be annihilated.

The airplane and the bomb go hand-in-hand. One is ineffective without the other. Further, the bomb is the only successful method of handling poison gas.

It is obvious, of course, that if poison gas is to be released it must be sufficiently far from those who release it so that there is no back action. Anything so deadly easily might result in the death of those who are attempting to administer it. The result, therefore, is that it can be put out in one of two ways, when dropped in containers from airplanes or when hurled through the air in canisters as a shell from artillery.

This last never has been successful. There are many elements to be considered in regard to a shell: one being its bursting ability when it hits. Another feature is the inability except in the largest shells to carry any poison gas in quantities worth while. These features are overcome in the airplane, which may drop a thin wall bomb full of poison gas with the assurance that on hitting the ground the container will break, thereby releasing the gas.

DEADLY GASES.

The poison gases that have been developed by the United States Army are the most deadly in the world. It has been estimated that a single drop will kill immediately on contact. The gases are of various kinds, however, and their results different. They have been worked out by the foremost chemists of the nation, scientists in the fore rank, who have gone at the matter cold-bloodedly to develop the most deadly vapor in the world.

America never went into the question of poison gas until the start of the World War. Then in the rush to be prepared for the conflict a group of chemists was called to Washington to give the benefit of its knowledge. There developed then, as a unit independent of the Ordnance Department, what is known now as the Chemical Warfare Service, which has been retained as a separate staff corps.

It may as well be said frankly that the name "Chemical Warfare" was selected to avoid the word "gas." The Army itself felt it would be unbecoming to retain the name originally intended, the "Gas and Flame" Service.

Of course, the Chemical Warfare Service has gases other than poison gases. The variety includes some which are not so deadly, tear gas and gases which merely burn without leaving permanent injury. The names of the various chemicals used in modern warfare—it is to inexact and loose to say poison gas war, chemical warfare being much more accurate and descriptive—are too familiar to warrant repetition. Chief among these now familiar weapons of Sheol is mustard gas, which caused far more casualties in the last war on both sides than any other chemical employed. Without question, our military men agree, developments of mustard gas will be a prime weapon in the war of the future, if there is to be another war.

Mustard gas has this frightful charcteristic: Sprayed over an area of ground into dugouts or underground retreats, cast anywhere in any manner, it absolutely makes that territory uninhabitable for living creatures for at least a week and often ten days.

Brig.-Gen. Amos A. Fries, former United States Engineer for Southern California, with headquarters at Los Angeles, now chief of the Chemical Warfare Service and acting as chemical war adviser to the conference, is inhibited by his present duties from chemical warfare discussion, but it is unlikely that he has changed his views, recently given. At that time Gen. Fries most vividly portrayed the ruin and desolation that could be brought on any land by even a few airplanes freighted with even a few tons of mustard gas alone.

The vision of this competent authority embraces a picture of a great city, say New York, at night. Five million persons are sleeping peacefully. Twenty thousand feet above a million homes a squadron of fast flying planes is circling. Long before, the pilots and the gas bombers, perfectly equipped with maps and directions, have plotted the vulnerable points of the metropolis, knowing to an ounce their devastating fluid where most damage can be precipitated.

At a word from the squadron commander, levers are tilted, which release over Central Manhattan, over Harlem, over the lower East Side, over the upper West Side, thousands of pounds of poison gas. Within three minutes the city is screaming with terror and pain. Those not blinded are burned. There is a rush for the infected areas. The deserts themselves are not less habitable. Fires start and there is no means of quenching them. Great districts fall into blackened ruins. It is impossible for the military, the police or volunteers to come within effective distance of this active, functioning poison.

That is one picture.

There is another, still partly imaginative, it is true, but which is being translated into fact in more than one laboratory of the great powers. For many years chemists have dreamed of some radioactive substance which would continue almost indefinitely to throw off burning, deadly force. Before the last war closed there was more than a hint that some such substance was in process of development. H. G. Wells in a recent novel used the idea with dramatic force. If that substance is ever found warfare will become as impossible as cannibalism. Any country, no matter how small or weak, will have the resources sufficient to equip itself with that savagely destructive weapon.

Without going into the future, however, another glance or two into the recent past is revealing. Of the 275,000 casualties of the United States Army in the last war more than 31 per cent were caused by the various gases used, with mustard gas the most hurtful.

HUMANE METHOD.

Advocates of chemical warfare insist that the use of gases is the most humane method of attacking an enemy. They base their contention on the fact that as a rule the great majority of gassed men recover under skillful treatment with little evil effects. They argue that it is infinitely more humane to asphyxiate a few thousand men temporarily, thereby putting them out of action and accomplishing a desired tactical stroke, than it is to shatter their bodies with shrapnel or machine gun bullets.

But it is not only poison gas that is dropped from airplanes. There are many types of bombs which wreak damage, making this new scientific warfare more terrible.

There are bombs that set fire to cities, cantonments and fields, bombs filled with phosphorus, in the flames of which nobody would be able to exist. These were demonstrated not long ago in the Army tests with the obsolete battleship Alabama in Chesapeake Bay. The flames enveloped the ship and it was demonstrated that such an attack on a vessel of a fleet would kill the crew, of course, putting the vessel out of action.

OTHER TYPES.

There are other types of incendiary bombs, large canisters, that contain flares which, bursting on the way down from the sky, are scattered along for a considerable distance, igniting everything with which they come in contact. And the officers who devised this deadly bomb declare confidently that not a fire department exists which could cope with such an attack.

The spectacular tests conducted off the Virginia Capes last summer demonstrated the effectiveness of demolition bombs dropped from airplanes. In these tests nine one-time German warships, one a dreadnaught built shortly before the World War started, were sent to the bottom of the sea within a few minutes after the attacks began. Had these ships been in action, with their magazines filled with powder, it is unquestioned that their destruction would have been completed sooner.

The relative value of the airplane and the battleship is still being argued. It is one that will continue to be argued for some time to come. Without attempting to go into details, it is sufficient to say that the tests demonstrated beyond doubt the deadly character of aircraft attack on a fleet.

Aircraft is also being used for the launching of torpedoes against vessels of the fleets. The Navy has been conducting experiments for a long time with torpedoes firing them much as they are fired from surface craft. An airplane swoops down close to the water and lets go of the torpedo. It automatically continues in line in the direction fired. The advantage is that the airplane does not have to get near the ship that is the target. The torpedo is let go and the airplane is off again in the air.

Such experiments as this are in progress in both branches of the service in both Army and Navy. Students of warfare are centering upon making such warfare more terrible.

SUBS CONDEMNED.

There always has been much question about the submarine, not only of its value as a weapon, but the fairness in its use. The ruthless campaign of the Germans when they sent to the bottom of the sea passenger vessels carrying women and children, as in the case of the Lusitania, set the world aghast.

Everywhere the people condemned this weapon as one that strikes from under cover, as one that fears to come into the open to fight. It is an invitation at all times, as in the case of Germany, to sink passenger and other merchant vessels without the customary and well-established right of visit and search.

The very character of the submarine further makes it impossible to take off the passengers and crew of such a ship before it is sunk. Often these persons, if the commander of the submarine is even that fair, are set adrift on the high seas in open boats, to be picked up by the next passing ship or to die. The horrors of this character of warfare are fresh in the public mind. Four years ago the newspapers were full of stories of submarines; those who closely follow public opinion cannot feel now that this feeling has abated.

Naval experts are at work now on a torpedo which will direct itself. Torpedoes already are self stabilizing and self propelled. But they travel in the direction in which they are aimed. What the experts are working on now is a torpedo which when fired will be attracted by the iron and steel work on a ship so that the torpedo will be drawn to it as if it were a magnet. If this development is perfected it will make submarines all the more deadly.

Living Cheap in Germany.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Garrett W. McEnerney, a San Francisco lawyer, who returned yesterday with his family after three months in Europe, said that living, transportation and all kinds of manufactured goods were so cheap in Germany that he did not see how it could last much longer under present financial conditions.

WASHINGTON NEWS IN BRIEF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Realization that the United States could, and doubtless would, outbuild the world in naval arms if competitive construction should continue is driving the conference toward agreement on a naval holiday.

Senator Borah tbok up arms today against President Harding's proposed association of nations, which he says is a League of Nations under a different name.

Pressure is still being brought to bear on China to bring about her acceptance of the consortium. The Chinese delegates are now at work on an argument expressing their views, which will be presented this week and may result in a modified plan.

Opposing forces are at work in an effort to influence President Harding's position on the tariff as it would be outlined to Congress in his message upon the opening of the new session next month.

The revision of the revenue laws just completed does not fully carry out the pledges of the Republican platform, according to Representative Bacharach of New Jersey, who said today that it is his conviction that the sales tax must be adopted sooner or later.

Postmaster-General Hays sets another precedent by ruling that marriage does not change the status nor affect the rights of a woman postal employee.

NAVAL WEEK AT ARMS MEETING.

Another Stride Toward Pact is Foreshadowed.

Plenary Session Expected to be Convened.

Britain and America Agreed on "5-5-3 Ratio."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—With the question of land armaments thrust into the background by last week's developments, the Arms Conference will enter its third week tomorrow with another stride toward agreement on naval limitations foreshadowed.

The naval question, at least so far as its vital element, the "5-5-3 ratio" of fleet strength between Great Britain, the United States and Japan is concerned, is approaching the point of transfer back to the "big five" committee with the report of the naval experts.

PLENARY SESSION.

There is some expectation that a plenary session of the Conference will be called this week to reach first decisions on the naval plan.

Whether the experts of the three major naval powers will submit individual reports is not known.

Both the British and American experts were reported as having concluded their examination of the ship data involved in Secretary Hughes's proposals. The Japanese group was still toiling Saturday, it was said.

A summary of last week's developments on naval proposals indicates the following status:

American officers have seen no reason in arguments advanced by Japan to any change in the keystone of the agreement Hughes proposed, the "5-5-3" naval strength ratio.

BRITISH ACCEPT.

British naval officials have accepted that ratio, although it means ultimate equalization of the American and British fleets.

Japanese officers have opposed the ratio, urginb the ten-ten-seven instead.

American naval opinion strongly opposes retention by Japan of the battleship Mutsu unless both other powers in due proportion enlarge their fleets. There are indications that some American delegates see strength in the arguments of Japan that the Mutsu might have been included as a completed ship in the retained fleets. There was nothing to indicate that a compromise was being considered in the American group.

It has been indicated that Great Britain was not desirous of undertaking any further naval construction at present, which seems to forecast agreement with the American view.

Japanese officials have presented tables of tonnage to support their claim that they are entitled to retain the Mutsu without similar retention by the other powers. The Japanese have contended she was a completed ship November 11.

The next step, when the three groups of experts finish, will be their report to the armaments committee. It seems likely that even if the British and American experts are found to be in accord, Japanese naval officers will submit differing conclusions. It will then become the task of the "big five" committee to seek an agreement on a report to a plenary session.

British opposition to the submarine element of Hughes's plan was certain to be a chief point to be discussed by the committee and the conference.

OPPOSE SUBMARINE PLAN.

British delegates are prepared to press their view that not only should Hughes's replacement allowance of 90,000 tons in submersibles for the British fleet and the American fleet and 54,000 for Japan be reduced, but that the size of future submarines should be limited. There is also the probability that France and Italy will figure largely in whatever the conference may decide as to undersea craft. This is said to foreshadow an early attack by the conference on the problem of bringing the French and Italian naval programs into harmony with a general scheme of naval limitations.

Japanese contentions for a higher proportionate strength in airplane carriers than Hughes proposed also may lead toward a five-power debate. Both France and Italy will prove to be more deeply interested in this new naval element than in capital ship ratios of the three major navies. Both are advanced in aviation.

Rail Clerks Want Increase.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HOUSTON (Tex.) Nov. 27.—Decision to ask for an increase in wages equal to the reduction in pay granted by the Railway Labor Board July 1 has been made by the clerks on the Southern Pacific lines, and a request for conferences on the matter will be made to road officials on or before December 1, it was announced today by the chairman of the union.

ARMS PARLEY IN NUTSHELL.

"Times" is Issuing Special Edition Weekly on Historical Conference.

Every Friday during the Disarmament Conference now in progress in Washington The Times will reprint from its daily issues a special illustrated four-page edition giving all the important developments of the history-making parley of nations for the week preceding. The first was issued Friday, November 18.

The Times has arranged for exhaustive reports on the proceedings of the conference to be written by experts of international reputation. These reports, which are those appearing daily in The Times, will be conveniently arranged and edited and will all appear in this weekly summary of the conference without the interpolation of other extraneous news matter. For the many persons who desire to preserve a complete record of this peace parley of the world powers, incomparably the most important one in history, these special editions will be of immense value.

The four-page sheets will not be included in the regular editions of The Times, but are on sale at the Los Angeles main and branch offices of The Times at the nominal price of 5 cents, or will be mailed to any address on receipt of that sum in stamps. They will be furnished free to any schoolteacher on application.

Student Shoots Self on Street in Sacramento.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 27.—Robert J. Riley, 20, believed to be a student at a San Francisco school of mechanical engineering, died at the Emergency Hospital from a pistol wound through the head, said by the police to have been inflicted by himself in a crowded downtown district today.

Two shots from an old-fashioned derringer were fired, the first missing, but the second taking effect in the right temple. A number of pedestrians witnessed the shooting. The police were unable to assign any motive for the deed.

CANAL TRAFFIC HEAVY

American Vessels Lead All Others in Tonnage in Last Fiscal Year; British Ships Second.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Ships of four nations moved 11 per cent of the approximately 11,600,000 tons of cargo which went through the Panama Canal during the fiscal year ended June 30.

American vessels led all others with 5,165,000 tons, a new record by increasing the total tonnage of the previous high by 615,885. British ships were second with a total of 3,736,000, passing their high mark of 1917.

Japan and Norway took third and fourth with 753,600 and 637,830 tons respectively. Japan exceeded her last high mark of 32,279 tons.

Of the nations which shared in moving the remaining 11 per cent of tonnage, the most important were Denmark, Holland, Spain, Sweden, France and Peru.

Gov. Morrow in his report says that the most important trade route served by the canal "was that between the east coast of the United States and the west coast of South America." Others of the principal routes were those from the east coast of the United States to the Far East, and between the west coast of America and Europe.

In terms of money the Panama Canal had gross revenues of more than $27,000,000; increased investment additions, stock, etc., of $8,000,000, and gross operating expenses of $24,500,000. The excess of revenues in the last fiscal year, the report shows, was $2,750,000 more than operating expenses, without allowing for interest on the capital cost of the waterway.

The Panama Railroad Company, according to the report, had a gross revenue of approximately $22,000,000, an increase in investments on capital additions of $1,500,000, while the gross operating expenses were $22,000,000 on June 30. Gross revenues of the Panama Railroad steamship line, at the same time, were $5,156,446, while operating expenses for the fiscal year totaled $5,857,257.

FEAR PACE OF UNITED STATES.

by the favorable reception accorded by the foreign delegates to his hope that an association of nations for consideration of world problems would grow out of this conference. Such an evolution, he recognized, is primarily dependent upon the success of this conference but he is more confident than ever that such success will be achieved.

A naval holiday, as proposed by this conference, would be a demonstration of the possibility of this method of disarmament as contrasted with the failure of the League of Nations, which confessed utter failure to check any step toward armament, clearing the path for a race so radical a return to peace.

The League also failed spectacularly to prevent a recurrence of the little wars that broke out in Europe and Asia as the great war ended despite the elaborate war suppression machinery provided by the League covenant. For that failure the absence of the United States from the League was blamed in European capitals. European members pointed out that the force necessary to the functioning of the covenant was impossible if they were worried by the threat of domination of their affairs by a power that had professed a preference for the United States over membership in the League.

Restoring Treasured Rugs at The City Dye Works

Worn-out Oriental Rugs Restored by Native Weavers

One grows to feel a sincere friendship for a fine Oriental rug—to regard it as a real companion. It breathes the quaint traditions of far-away lands, often reflecting in its intricate pattern the patient weaving of many years.

To see one of these becoming frayed or worn is like seeing an old friend in distress.

Rug-lovers in all parts of the country send their rugs to the City Dye Works of Los Angeles when they need attention. We freshen their fading colors, re-weave the damaged places. We have scores of warm letters of thanks from these people in appreciation of what we have done.

This work is done by native Armenian weavers, men who love their work as a painter loves his art. They have devoted their lives to it.

It will be a pleasure to consult with you, to advise or submit estimates on the restoration of your rugs.

Phone South 120 or 27071. If you wish, our rug expert will call.

UPON receipt of your name and address we will mail you gratis a copy of our "Glossary of Oriental Rugs and Tapestries." It is an interesting little booklet, containing valuable information about Oriental rugs, how to recognize them and how to tell the difference between the genuine and imitation.

British Queen Orders Gowns from Germany.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—The Queen of England has taken a step which many Berliners regard as more important than lessening the reparations in promoting friendship between the victor and defeated nation. The Queen has ordered two dresses from Berlin dressmakers, the first royal order since the war, and her action means the resumption of sartorial relations, broken off in 1914, when the Queen bought her clothes here.

The Queen made a bargain price, for the same gowns would have cost her three times as much in Paris and five times as much in New York.

NEW LIQUOR ACT HIGHLY PRAISED.

Bootlegging Unknown; Obey Law in British Columbia.

Revenue Aids Government to Keep Up Institutions.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Nov. 24.—The Province of British Columbia, now operating forty-seven liquor stores, estimates an annual net profit of $8,000,000. The second year with a full quota of seventy-five stores a yearly net profit in excess of $6,000,000 is expected. The amount invested outside of equipment and fixtures is $1,250,000 for liquor and beer stocks.

The Liquor Act is administered by a board of three commissioners. Under its terms no independent retail liquor stores are allowed to operate in the province. The public must purchase from the government vendors, or through wholesale firms who, under the act may import liquor from other provinces. Liquor brought into the province in this manner must bear the government seal. According to Mr. J. H. Falconer, liquor commissioner for Vancouver, there is less drunkenness under a strict administration of this act and bootlegging is almost unknown.

RESULT OF PLEBISCITE.

A plebiscite was taken in British Columbia a year ago, when a majority of 36,000 was obtained for the control of the liquor business by the government. This necessitated the passing of an act known as the "Government Liquor Act." Under this a liquor control board was formed consisting of three members known as commissioners, one of these being appointed chairman. The duties of the board consist in establishing liquor stores throughout the province, provide for the construction of, leasing of all premises for stores and warehouses, the appointment of an analyst and the authorization of such officials as will issue permits.

Any person of the age of 21 years, who has been a resident of the province for one month immediately preceding his application, may, for $6 cents, obtain a permit entitling him to a single purchase of two quarts of liquor other than malt liquor or twelve quarts of malt liquor. An annual permit limited to the purchase of malt liquors only may be had for $2 and a permit entitling him to purchase any kind of liquor may be had for $5. For the tourist a temporary permit entitling him to purchase any kind of liquor for a period not exceeding two weeks may be had for $5. What liquor is bought is noted on the permit and if the amount appears to be in excess of what the permit holder should have, his permit is cancelled. While only in operation in this province for a few months, reports indicate that the tourist traffic from the south is growing in volume.

VENDOR IN EACH STORE.

Each store has a vendor, and an assistant vendor, a chief clerk and as many clerks as are necessary. The vendor of a store is appointed by the board subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in council, is bonded for $5000 and is responsible for all stock and all employees in his store. Although not yet in force, it is the intention of the board to have every employee bonded for honesty.

When the new law came into force the middle of June, there were only twelve liquor stores throughout the province. Now there are forty-seven. When the province is fully covered there will be somewhere in the neighborhood of seventy-five. This number of stores will take care of the whole of British Columbia, with a population of over 500,000. Each store is leased for a period of from three to five years. The stores are located according to population, the larger cities having several.

POLICY OF THE BOARD.

If a municipality petitions against having a liquor store opened within its boundaries, the policy of the board has been not to force one on it. The friends of the act are hopeful that government control of liquor has come to stay. They claim that it is better than prohibition poorly enforced, and instead of huge profits going into the pockets of private interests, as under the old administration of liquor laws, the government has added materially to its revenue. Under the act, one-half the net profit reverts to the municipality, be used to support their schools and hospitals, and maintain roads. The other half goes into a fund for public service, throughout the province. If this new form of vending is kept free from corruption and scandal its promoters believe public opinion elsewhere will demand the control of its liquor policy under some similar law.

Deaf Man, 78, Killed by Bandits.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WENATCHEE (Wash.) Nov. 27.—Jacob Webber, 78 years old, was shot and wounded probably fatally by three bandits while returning home last night. Webber is partly deaf, and it is believed his failure to obey the highwaymen caused them to send three bullets into his body. One hundred members of the American Legion were deputized to aid in the search for the bandits.

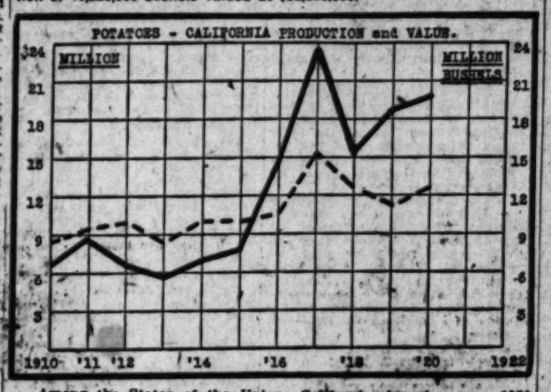
The World Today

This article on potato production is one of a series on California products compiled by the Research Department of The First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank.

The potato was one of the great discoveries made shortly after the new continent of the Americas was found by Columbus. This plant is a native of both North and South America, and has become an article of food as stable and necessary to man as wheat.

The potato can still be found growing in a wild state in Chile, Peru and the State of Colorado. However, without cultivation it grows only to about the size of the English walnut. Intensive cultivation has increased the size and productivity of the potato, and especially has this been true in Europe where the average yield is 186.4 bushels to the acre as compared to ninety bushels per acre in the United States. While America is the home of the potato, it is more in favor in Europe than in the United States. The European per capita consumption in the United States is only 4.50 bushels.

The accompanying chart shows the condition of the potato in California, a healthy increase in production and total crop value since 1910. For the year 1920, the potato crop was the eighth most valuable agricultural product of the State—amounting to $19,522,000. In 1910 the crop was only $6,851,000. The record year of 1917 showed a production of 15,225,000 bushels valued at $22,838,000.



Among the States of the Union, California for the year 1920 ranked ninth in production and seventh in the value of the potato crop. The States of New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan rank as the leading producers in the order named. However, west of the State of Minnesota, California is by far the largest producer of potatoes.

In Southern California the potato can be planted every month in the year with the exception of October and November. However, the commercial crops are produced twice a year, the first maturing in June, the second maturing in November.

The potato is a cold country plant and thus requires considerable moisture, and at the same time it must have good drainage. The problem of Southern California is not drainage so much as the proper application of water, and the supply of humus in the soil, so that excessive drying out of the soil will not decrease the yield. The potato needs moist, loose, aerated soil; and, on the other hand, too much moisture develops the root and top at the expense of the tuber, while too little moisture causes the stem to dry out.

The soil requirement is a free, light, sandy loam. However, in Southern California peat land or silt sand loam, rich in humus, will produce good crops. A fairly heavy soil will yield good crops if there is artificial drainage and careful cultivation.

INHERITANCE TAXES

There is no longer need for property owners of Los Angeles to puzzle themselves over laws governing California inheritance taxes and Federal estate taxes, for the Trust Department of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank has issued a booklet fully explaining their content and operation which the bank is presenting to patrons and other friends.

The frequent revisions and amendments to the original law, which was passed by the Legislature in 1893, has caused considerable confusion in the minds of many not thoroughly familiar with the technicalities, and this led the bank to request its vice-president, Judge Wm. Rhodes Hervey, to elucidate the status of the law as now effective.—Reprinted from the "Commercial Comment" column of W. H. Leonard, Financial Editor, in the Los Angeles Herald.

This booklet may be obtained from C. E. Pyle, Trust Department, Third Floor, Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, Sixth and Spring Streets, who, upon request, will point out the proper methods of procedure in individual cases.

Fifteen Ships of Old Navy to be Sold at Auction

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Fifteen ships of the old navy will be put on the auction block soon, it is announced by the Navy Department. Among them are the cruiser Brooklyn, flagship of Rear-Admiral Schley, during the battle of Santiago.

Others are the cruiser Columbia, the battleship Maine which replaced the battleship of that name destroyed at Havana, the battleship Missouri, launched in 1901, the cruiser Memphis, now a wreck on the San Dominican coast, and the torpedo boat Dale, recently known as the Oriole.

Four monitors on the list are the Minatonomah, built in 1863; the Ozark, formerly the Arkansas, and the Puritan, both of which have served as naval militia ships, and the Tonopah.

UTAH FIGHTS WANTED CUT IN FREIGHT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 27. — Utah shippers yesterday completed the presentation of evidence in opposition to the application of the transcontinental railroads for relief from the long and short haul clause of the Transportation Act at a hearing here before William A. Disque, attorney examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Utah witnesses declared that to permit the railroads to charge a lesser freight rate for commodities moving from the East to the Pacific Coast than on the same commodities moving to Salt Lake from the same points of origin would be to limit the distributing area reached by Salt Lake and Ogden jobbers by from 50,000 to 100,000 square miles.

OPPOSE LAMBETH UNITY PROPOSAL

Methodists Won't Accept Plan of Episcopalians.

Board of Bishops Takes Action at Conference.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Nov. 27. Proposal for the reunion of Christendom as put forth by the Lambeth Conference of the church of England and agreed to by the Protestant Episcopal church will not be accepted by the Methodist Episcopal church.

This was decided by the Board of Bishops of the church, which concluded a four-day session in this city. While agreeing on the necessity of co-operation, the bishops declared they cannot agree to any method which appears to question the validity of their own ministry.

LAMBETH PROPOSALS.

The Lambeth proposals, which, since their promulgation in August, 1920, have been one of the chief topics of discussion of the religious world, provided for a reunion of the churches of all Christendom in essentials. This was on the basis that priests of the Roman and Greek Catholic churches would be accepted as priests of the Anglican Church and their own communions would so reciprocate. With all of the Protestant churches it was advocated that they allow their ministers to submit to reordination at the hands of Anglican or Episcopal bishops.

In their reply, the Methodist bishops express a belief in the spirit of fellowship and of the spiritual reunion of Christendom. They call attention to the similarity in faith and practice between the Methodist church and the Anglican body. They hold, they say, to the same articles of faith and the same sacraments.

But with respect to the conditions of union they differ. The Methodist church cannot, the bishops say, accept a program which would appear to invalidate their own ministry, which has, they point out, been so visibly blest of God.

They are aware, they state, that the Lambeth proposals expressly insist that reordination shall be only considered as a form and shall not be considered as impugning their own orders, but they feel that the fact of reordination would be a confession on their part that those orders were not valid.

In this connection, the Methodist bishops state that the Lambeth proposals do not require reordination of priests of the Protestant churches. This they say, represents a theory with which they feel they can in no wise agree and they feel that in doing so they are but expressing sentiments of the members of the Methodist church, which is, they say one of the largest of all Protestant bodies.

Finally, they say, this opinion is merely their own reasoned conviction. They have no desire or intention to start a controversy, but merely to state their position, which in no way conflicts with their hope for a spiritual unity of faith and purpose of all Christian people.

the last two weeks, in the custody of a deputy sheriff, at a San Francisco hotel. They have not been permitted to read, and on a few occasions have been herded like sheep into a theater at night. They are persons of families, including five women and are showing signs of homesickness.

The defense intends to call to the stand today the proprietor of Taits Cafe, headquarters of the shapely cabaret girls, who are reported to have had a conversation with Alice Blake, the show girl, who appeared as a prosecution witness, pertaining to her knowledge of Virginia's injuries.

Arbuckle remarks every day about his trial. It is the same remark every day:

"How does she look now?"

He is always eager to hear a favorable answer.

"Well," he adds invariably, "I'm not losing weight. There's nothing for me to worry about." Then he proceeds to roll a bunch of home-made cigarettes. "I see they are betting ten to six for my acquittal," says he, pushing his tongue along the length of the cigarette.

There is some speculation as to whether or not Fatty, guilty or innocent, will plunge back into the films. If he doesn't, success awaits him in another line of endeavor. He has blossomed out into the best confetti manufacturer this side of Oskaloosa. Since the first day of the trial, much of the indignation of the janitor, he has made enough confetti to equip the New Orleans Mardi Gras.

Inquiries at the home of Louise Glaum, 2122 Cambridge street, elicited the information from her sister, Miss Phyllis Glaum, that the actress is in New York, where she has been for some time. Jack White, whose home is at 4225 Prospect avenue, Hollywood, could not be located. The names of the other witnesses subpoenaed are not in the city directory.

SMALLPOX CONTINUES TO CLAIM VICTIMS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 27.—Smallpox continued to beat its way into the ranks of the unvaccinated yesterday. Six new cases were reported. Three more died.

The fatality list stood at ninety-one since September 1. There have been 265 cases of the disease since the epidemic started. Eighty-eight persons were in the hospital last night.

Dr. J. P. Leake of Washington, United States Public Health Service representative, sent here by the government, reiterated a warning to those not yet vaccinated.

LINER TAKES FIRE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The steamship Panhandle State caught fire in the Hudson River this afternoon, a few minutes after leaving her pier with about twenty-five passengers and a cargo for Plymouth, Eng. Fire and police boats responded to a call for assistance.

SEARCH LINERS FOR SMUGGLED LIQUOR.

GOVERNMENT USES SEVERE METHODS TO STOP FLOW OF CONTRABAND DRINKS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—In an effort to stop the flow of liquor into this country from European ports, officials of the United States government adopted what are considered the most severe methods yet put into effect when a squad of customs inspectors boarded the steamship Lapland of the Red Star Line and began a thorough search before any of the passengers left the ship.

It is estimated that millions of dollars' worth of liquor has been brought into the United States through steamship stewards, engineers, firemen and other employees who are met by professional bootleggers. Heretofore it has been the custom of the government officials to search a passenger vessel one or two days after the ship's arrival here.

Five million dollar's worth of liquors will be seized in ports along the northeast Atlantic seaboard within a few days, Prohibition Director E. C. Yellowley prophesied today.

Liquor Drinker Dead.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

considering the situation as divided roughly into three sections. First, there has been a grouping of all the sovereign rights that China still retains, with general agreement that all must be preserved. In the second group have been placed all rights in dispute as a result of the treaties and other agreements, with the understanding these will be restored to China as far as possible. The third group comprises rights which China declares have been seized from her without any pretext whatever and which it is the desire of the conference to give back unless valid reasons can be produced to the contrary.

Seventeen Hurt in Wreck of Fast Freight.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—The second section of an eastbound B. & O.S.W. fast freight train was derailed five miles west of Seymour, Ind., last night, according to reports received in this city and seventeen men riding on the train are reported in the debris of eighteen cars. W[illegible] crews with derricks from Seymour were summoned and have recovered two bodies, according to reports received here at midnight but the bodies have not been identified and are believed to be those of tramps. A broken rail is reported to have been the cause of the wreck.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—[Advertisement.

Boils and Pimples Are Danger Signals

They Denote with Unfailing Certainty a Weakened and Impure State of The Blood.

For Absolute Relief You Must Clear Your Blood of Waste Products.

Modern life, with its rich foods and lack of exercise, often advertises its effects by disfiguring the skin.

Acne, small abscesses and boils are all too common.

To correct the basic trouble—waste products—the blood must be purified. But don't clog your blood. Just clean it out. Nature will do the rest. Pure, rich, red blood nourishes the body and fights off disease.

S. S. S., the standard blood purifier and system builder, is the ideal remedy for skin eruptions. The effect of S. S. S. is to rid the system of the waste products which are causing the trouble. For over 50 years S. S. S. has proven to be of unusual merit. Begin taking S. S. S. today and write for 56-page illustrated booklet, "Facts About the Blood"—free.

Personal medical advice, without charge, may also be had by sending a complete description of your case. Address Chief Medical Director, Swift Specific Co., 740 S. S. S. Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga. All drug stores sell S. S. S.—[Advertisement.

A Blemished Complexion

You can remove those embarrassing skin blemishes by a simple and inexpensive home treatment—one that does not require tedious hours of application.

Bathe your face with warm water and Black and White Soap. Dry and lightly apply Black and White Beauty Bleach. Allow to remain on overnight. Repeat this treatment for several nights and your skin will be soft and smooth, and the blemishes disappear. Should your skin seem oversensitive or the least bit irritated, apply Black and White Cleansing Cream after your Beauty Treatment.

All drug and department stores can supply you with Black and White Beauty Bleach, 50c; Soap, 25c; and Black and White Cleansing Cream, 25c and 50c. Write Dept. J., Plough, Memphis, Tenn., for a copy of your Birthday Book and leaflet, which tells all about Black and White toilet preparations.

FALL TO VISIT IN CALIFORNIA.

Secretary of Interior Coming Next Month.

To Inspect Imperial Valley if Possible.

Will Make Stops in Texas and New Mexico.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Secretary of the Interior Fall will leave Washington Tuesday night according to his present plans and hopes to reach Riverside December 7 or 8. His present plans call for stops in Texas, New Mexico, and possibly the Grand Canyon. If Secretary Fall stops over at the canyon it will be to act as host to Marshal Foch who is due to arrive there from Los Angeles on December 5.

If time permits the Secretary of the Interior will personally inspect the whole Imperial Valley irrigation system and especially as it is affected by the development of the Colorado River, the control of its flood waters, the development of electricity and the allocation of water for irrigation purposes. If possible, Secretary Fall will make this inspection before hearings to be conducted personally by the Secretary at San Diego on December 12, in connection with protests against the Boulder Canyon development by any municipality as provided in the original draft of Director Davis's report on his preliminary examination of this power project.

Since he wrote the report he had a conference in Denver with some of the Imperial Valley people and subsequently to this meeting he wrote saying that he had somewhat modified his views and believed the Federal government should build the dam and could thus best safeguard all the rights of everyone interested. This letter does not in any way commit the Secretary of the Interior, who is making an independent inquiry as to every feature of the suggested improvement and every one interested in the future use and development of the Colorado River whether in the United States or Mexico, is invited to be present at the San Diego hearing and, if they desire, to submit their views will be given an opportunity.

NO FORMAL INVITATIONS.

No formal invitations have been issued to anyone and no formal action can be taken by the State Department in advising the Mexican government of the contemplated action, but the Mexican authorities have informally been advised of all the plans for this hearing as well as the recent legislation looking to a disposition of the water rights of the Colorado River between seven States and the Federal government as authorized by a recent act of Congress. Inasmuch as the Colorado River is an international stream it is quite unlikely that any action will be taken in the matter of disposing of the water rights until Mexico has had an opportunity to enter a convention in regard to the waters of this stream. Such an understanding was all but consummated in 1914, at the time of the outbreak of the World War. In this connection, Secretary Fall has made a recommendation for the appointment of the Federal member of this Colorado River commission but no action by President Harding is expected until the pressure of the conference on disarmament has been somewhat eased.

PREFERS DEATH TO TRIAL FOR MURDER.

CHARGED WITH KILLING FELLOW CONVICT, KOULOURIS ENDS HIS LIFE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN RAFAEL, Nov. 27.—Louis Koulouris, who would have gone on trial tomorrow on a charge of murdering Harold Wilson, committed suicide by hanging himself in his cell in the County Jail here today. Koulouris stabbed Wilson in the stomach as they, with other convicts at San Quentin penitentiary, were leaving a hall after an entertainment.

Koulouris was serving a life term for murdering a woman in San Francisco. Wilson had but a month of a short sentence to serve.

Koulouris had torn up blankets and made a rope of strips. He had attached one end of this to the bars across the top of his cell, which was a "flank," and tied the other about his neck. Apparently he had stood on the bed to do this and then stepped off, death resulting from strangulation.

BERLIN AGAIN PUTS UP POVERTY PLEA.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Privy Councilor Duisberg, general manager of the Farben Fabriken, formerly the Friedrich Bayer Company, speaking yesterday before representatives of the German chemical industry, said it would be impossible for Germany, from her own resources, to make her reparations payments due January and February.

Denying German chemical industries constituted a war menace, he asserted that, due to overproduction in the chemical production and the waning consumption in Germany, the industry had fallen to half its former peace-time production.

Double-Edged Sword Used in Fight With Contributor; Neither Wins.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROME, Nov. 26.—Deputy Alfredo Rocco, editor-in-chief of the Idea Nazionale, and Gen. Roberto Bencivenga, a regular contributor to the Paese, another Roman paper, recently fought a duel with double-edged swords as a sequel to a newspaper controversy.

They were both wounded in the arms after sixteen rounds and both declared out of combat without defeat or victory on either side.

PLAN NEW WAY TO BAR WARS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—In an effort to make effective the use of agriculture in a plan to outlaw war, C. S. Barrett, chairman of the National Board of Farm Organization and president of the National Farmers' Union, has issued a call to agricultural leaders to assemble in Washington December 6 and meet the foreign and American delegates to the International Conference on Limitation of Armaments. Mr. Barrett is a member of the advisory council to the American delegates to the arms parley.

The Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, Lord Riddell, Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States, and other distinguished Britishers, will be among the guests. Invitations will be sent to the President, members of the Cabinet and all of the visiting delegates. Mrs. Henry C. Wallace, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and other women well known in social and political circles of Washington will receive the guests.

"There is every reason why the farmers of this nation should come into contact, through their leaders, with the men to whom the powers have committed the important task of reaching an agreement on limitation of armaments," said Mr. Barrett today. "The farmers of this nation and of the world, if not entirely ready, ought to get ready to assist in bringing to pass a condition of international thought and action which will ultimately outlaw war."

SAYS PARTY HAS NOT REDEEMED PROMISES.

REPUBLICAN MEMBER OF WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE HITS TAX REVISION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—That the revision of revenue laws just completed does not fully carry out the pledges of the Republican platform is the belief of Representative Bacharach of New Jersey, a Republican member of the House Ways and Means committee. Mr. Bacharach said today that it is his firm conviction that sooner or later the sales tax must be adopted as one of the chief features of the revenue laws. Mr. Bacharach quoted the following extract from the Republican platform in 1920, on the subject of tax law revision:

"But a sound policy equally demands the early accomplishment of that real reduction of the tax burden which may be achieved by substituting simple for complex tax laws and procedure; prompt and certain determination of the tax liability for delay and uncertainty; tax laws which do not, for tax laws which do, excessively mulct the consumer or needlessly repress enterprise and thrift."

Mr. Bacharach declared that the country at an early date must have more relief from present tax burdens than is provided in the measure signed during the last week by President Harding.

"Much as I regret to admit it, I do not believe that we have accomplished in this revenue bill all that is promised in that plank and I can only look at this as a temporary measure, which will need further revision in the very near future," said Mr. Bacharach.

FEDERAL COURT TO COLLECT FARES.

BECOMES STAKEHOLDER IN CHICAGO STREET CAR CONTROVERSY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The United States District Court will act as collector for all passengers on Chicago surface car lines and refund the excess 3-cent fares if the order of the State Commission to reduce fares to 5 cents is upheld by three Federal judges sitting en banc December 2.

Notices have been posted in all surface cars, directing passengers to take transfer slips from conductors and to save them, pending final decision in the case. Inasmuch as this extra fare runs about $60,000 a day, it will be seen that the outcome means much to the street car companies. The companies ran their printing presses all night, getting out 1,000,000 transfers, which constitute a receipt for each 3-cent fare.

CROWDER AWARDED LEGION OF HONOR.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—Maj.-Gen. Crowder has informed the French Ambassador in Washington he will be unable to go there to receive the Grand Cross of the French Legion of Honor which, it was learned, has been conferred for his services during the war. It is expected it will be given him by the French Minister in Cuba.

VALUATION PLAN HARD PROBLEM.

Opposing Forces Seek Aid of President.

Uncertainty Surrounds the Whole Situation.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Opposing forces are at work in an effort to influence President Harding's position on the tariff as it will be outlined to Congress in his message upon the opening of the new session next month.

The extreme protectionists desire President Harding to urge upon Congress the speeding up of the long-delayed tariff legislation and its enactment into law at the earliest possible moment. Furthermore, they are eager that the President shall strongly support the American valuation plan as incorporated in the tariff bill passed by the House and now before the Senate Finance Committee.

The opposing group, made up of more liberal protectionists within the Republican ranks, are endeavoring to convince the President that no harm would be done by a longer delay in view of chaotic conditions throughout the world and the difficulty of framing a satisfactory tariff measure. Some of this group would be glad if the whole tariff question could be put over until after the Congressional elections in 1922. Some of them are opposed to the American valuation plan and would like President Harding to abandon his support of it.

LONG DELAY EXPECTED.

Events of the last month have served to emphasize the uncertainty surrounding the tariff situation. While the leaders in Congress have not admitted any change in their plans to press the tariff legislation as expeditiously as possible and to adhere to the American valuation plan, there are increasing evidences that many months will elapse before the measure is enacted into law and there is a strong possibility of the rejection of the American valuation plan through a combination of the Democrats and a minority of the Republicans on the floor of the Senate.

With the tariff situation presenting so many disturbing features the Republican leaders frankly admit that the political possibilities are of serious moment to them. The leaders regret greatly that the tariff could not have been disposed of in the special session of Congress in accordance with the original plan. Such action, they believe, would have made it possible to demonstrate the good features of the measure in advance of the Congressional elections next year. Passage of the bill some time early next spring or summer will not give sufficient time to prove that the criticisms emanating not only from the Democrats, but also from many in the Republican party, are unwarranted.

SUBJECT IS COMPLEX.

They admit that the campaign against the American valuation plan, participated in not only by the importers, but also by leading wholesale and retail houses throughout the country, and by the American Farm Bureau Federation and women's organizations, will be hard to combat until the plan has been in actual operation for a year or more. The most ardent advocates of the American valuation plan admit that the subject is so complex that it would be hard to prove to the satisfaction of the voters that it does not involve an increase of the cost of living, as charged.

Approval or rejection of the American valuation plan as provided in the Fordney tariff bill may hinge upon whether Republican members of the agricultural bloc in the Senate act as a unit upon the proposition.

Up to date the question of American valuation has not been discussed in meetings of the agricultural bloc. It is likely, however, that conferences will be held soon after the opening of the new session to determine upon a policy with respect to the matter.

GOVERNOR TOO OLD, COMPLAINT

People of Chinese Province Cause Him to Go Into Retirement.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, Oct. 20.—Opposition by the people of the province of Anhwei to their new civil governor has caused that official to go into sudden retirement after only three days in office, according to official reports received in Peking from the capital of the province.

Objection of the Anhwei people to the new Governor, one Li Shao-chen, was due to his great age and the fact that Li has in the past been connected with the pro-Japanese Anfu party.

Peking is now looking for another civil governor to send to Anking, and this time, it is said, the government will first consult the people of Ahwei.

Clark, division engineer at Needles, succeeds Mr. Kelly here; R. S. Goodrich, trainmaster of the Albuquerque division, is transferred to Needles; O. W. Schleuter, chief dispatcher at Needles, is appointed trainmaster of the Albuquerque division; W. P. Arntz was appointed trainmaster to assume the duties of H. C. Story, assistant superintendent of the Phoenix lines, who was killed.

TAKE FIVE SUSPECTS AS TRAIN BANDITS.

POSTAL INSPECTORS BELIEVE THEY HAVE MEN WHO DID PAXTON JOB.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—With the arrest of five men by postal inspectors in Indianapolis and the finding of another man dead from a bullet wound on a lonely country road near Rockville, Ind., Federal officials announced yesterday they have solved the hold-up of an Illinois Central train near Paxton, Ill., on the night of November 7, when one man was murdered and others badly wounded and a mail car burned.

It is believed the unidentified dead man was wounded in the hold-up and that his companions threw him out to die on the country road, after assuring themselves he was too far gone to talk.

Postal authorities decline to give any particulars, but declared flatly that they have the guilty men in custody.

TONOPAH DANCING PAVILION DESTROYED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Nov. 27.—Fire today destroyed the Airdrome Dancing Pavilion here and two adjoining residences, with a loss of $8000, partly covered by insurance. Water also damaged the linotype machines of the Tonopah Bonanza, across the street.

One of the homes burned was built by George Wingfield, mining man and banker, when he resided here.

NOGALES' DAYS ARE QUIET NOW.

City on Boundary Misses Mexican Trade.

Tucson Gets New Building for Deaf, Dumb.

Arizona Changes System of Tax Collections.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Nov. 27.—Nogales no longer enjoys the halcyon days when a brigade of American troops occupied Camp Little instead of the single regiment of negro infantry now occupying the barrack buildings a mile from the center of the city.

Nogales inhabitants frankly state that commerce with Mexico is their main dependence, even though the American valleys near by are rich and productive. Through Nogales annually are taken millions of dollars' worth of vegetables, but from Mexican mines little benefit has been derived for several years past.

Nogales is a town unique in that the American and Mexican boundary is marked only by the width of a well-traveled street, across which there is continual travel. Nogales, Ariz., has the hotels, but Nogales, Sonora, has the restaurants, in which an American evokes surprise when he fails to order at least a bottle of beer. Since prohibition has been revoked in Sonora, scores of drinking places opened in Nogales. The American also finds attraction in the supply of venison that comes to Nogales from the Sonora interior and in excellent oysters and fish that come from Guaymas. The American householders do much of their marketing across the line, though not allowed to bring over the Mexican fruit that is so abundant, cheap and excellent. On the other hand, Nogales, Sonora, appears to purchase its clothing and other supplies on the northern side of the line.

TUSCON (Ariz.) Nov. 27.—Tuscon is the site of the Arizona State asylum for the deaf and dumb, an institution attached to the University of Arizona for administrative purposes. Under legislative appropriation of several years ago, there now is being completed a $100,000 building for the use of the school, with an administration and class-room building flanked by boys' and girls' dormitories.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 27.—On January 1 there will be a change in Arizona's system for collecting license taxes, with possible confusion and irritation. Heretofore, the secretary of State has issued all license plates. For the first few months of each year he has had to organize a special department and to provide room for tons of plates, properly pigeon-holed that an owner might be returned his old number, year by year. The last legislature changed the system by placing the issuance of the license tags on the fourteen county assessors, to whom the plates already have been shipped.

TRUCKEE MAN HELD ON MURDER CHARGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEVADA CITY, Nov. 27.—Gus Branch, Truckee pool hall proprietor, was placed in the County Jail here tonight to await preliminary hearing on the charge of having murdered Annie Boyle, whose body recently was disinterred at Ogden, Utah.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF—

It has been conclusively proven many times over that the Buick is by far the best value in the used car field, evidenced by the registrations with the Motor Vehicle Department. Bearing this fact in mind and placing your confidence with the Howard Automobile Company, Buick distributors, where a used car transaction is on the same level with that of a new car, you are assured that you have used good judgment.

SUPREMACY.

Among all of the used cars of today the BUICK stands supreme. Next to the Ford there are more used Buicks sold than any other make in use. In addition, though the prices are high in comparison to the other cars, it has proven worth while as evidenced by the continued demand. The HOWARD AUTOMOBILE COMPANY, Buick distributors for the Pacific Coast, maintain a used car department where they rebuild Buicks which have been taken in on new models and the purchaser of one of these rebuilt Buicks is assured that nothing has been overlooked that would in any way jeopardize its well earned reputation.

STATE SCHOOL TEAM PLAYS FOR BENEFIT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITTIER, Nov. 27.—The State school football team is to stage a Red Cross benefit game on the College gridiron Tuesday afternoon when they meet the fast Burbank High team in a return game. They met the Burbank team earlier in the season and played them to a 0-to-0 tie.

Smith's State school team has played eight games, won five, lost two and tied one. They defeated El Monte 28 to 7; Norwalk 28 to 7; Jefferson High 21 to 12; Jefferson High 15 to 0 and Riverside High 28 to 14. It will be seen that 28 is a favor score with the local lads, having made it three times out of five. They lost to Fullerton 10 to 28 and the second State school team lost to Chaffey Junior College 7 to 21.

The gate is to be divided fifty-fifty between the State school and the local chapter of the Red Cross. Out of the receipts of the school, football sweaters are to be provided for the players.

PACKY McFARLAND WANTED BY POLICE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—"Packy" McFarland, one-time boxer, but who went into the brewing business after his marriage, is being sought by Federal agents with a warrant charging his concern at Joliet, Ill., with turning out large quantities of beer containing more alcohol than the law permits. Prohibition officials say the brewery has been disposing of large quantities of illegal beer over the northern part of Illinois. Others besides McFarland for whom warrants have been issued are Henry Schodtten, Casper Wanner, Thomas McFarland, brother of Packy, and Edward Denohoe, all officials of the brewing company.

TALKING OF ANOTHER DEMPSEY-BRENNAN GO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Digging up an opponent for Jack Dempsey is surely a man's sized job. Looks as though Jack might have to shut down shop unless some one trips in with some one to play with. It has been announced that promoters were trying to match Bill Brennan for another jounce with the rugged champion.

But what would another match between Jack and the willing Bill mean? It would seem that twice in a row ought to be convincing enough for Mr. Brennan. At any rate, the fans are convinced that Brennan does not belong in the same ring with the champion.

McCOMAS WINS DEL MONTE GOLF TOURNEY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DEL MONTE (Cal.) Nov. 27.—The Del Monte Thanksgiving tournament was won by Francis McComas, of Pebble Beach, today when he defeated George B. Carpenter, of Medford, Or., one up.

Miss Helen D. Foster, of San Francisco, took the women's honors, defeating Mrs. D. R. Potter, San Francisco, 6 and 5.

DEFEATED CADETS ARE VERY GLOOMY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WEST POINT (N. Y.) Nov. 27. The defeated Army eleven returned home from New York shortly after noon today. The customary welcome accorded the team by the waiting cadet corps whether in defeat or victory, was missing today.

There was no waiting party in evidence. Twenty deep, thick gloom pervaded the Army camp today and the men went silently to their quarters. No excuses are being made for the defeat of yesterday. Navy just simply had the punch and landed it opportunely.

NEW HOTEL IS PLANNED FOR HARBOR

Contract for Structure to be Let This Week; Will be of Concrete.

A new hotel, modern in every respect and to cost approximately $300,000, is to be erected at Los Angeles Harbor. The contract for the structure is to be let this week. This was the announcement made at the harbor yesterday by W. G. Kreigbaum of Riverside, who, with three associates, has purchased a site at Pacific avenue and Ninth street.

The building will be of concrete with storerooms, lobby and a restaurant on the ground floor, according to the plans that have been prepared. The two upper floors will be given over entirely to suites and single bedrooms, the plans calling for a total of 110 rooms. In order that additional floors may be added as the growth of the city demands it, the foundation will be constructed to permit of a total of six floors.

MAY ASSUME LOWER RANK UNIFORM NOW.

ISSUE ORDERS RELATING TO GARB OF OFFICERS WHO FAILED IN TESTS.

Commissioned officers of the Navy who are scheduled to revert to a lower rank in the service at the close of the present year have been authorized by the department at Washington to assume the uniform of the lower rank at once if they so desire. Advices to this effect have been received at Pacific Fleet headquarters. Scores of officers were reduced in rank as a result of the examinations last May. The order relating to the change in uniform is as follows:

"Commissioned officers who, on or before December 31, 1921, are due to revert to a lower commissioned rank, or to a warrant rank, are hereby authorized, if they so desire, to wear the uniform of such lower rank prior to the date of reversion.

"This authorization is issued to enable officers serving on vessels to have ample time to convert their uniforms to that of the rank to which they are due to revert, prior to the sailing of the fleets to the winter rendezvous.

"Upon the completion of the transfer of the temporary and reserve officers to the permanent Navy a redistribution will be made. A selection board has convened to fill vacancies in the grades of rear-admiral, captain and commander.

"As it will be impractical to issue, on or before January 1, 1922, permanent commissions to all officers who become due for promotion on or before that date, such officers are hereby authorized to wear the uniform of the grade to which they become due for permanent promotion as soon as they become due for such promotion."

NAVAL CLUBHOUSE TO BE BUILT HERE.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WILL DONATE SITE FOR PETTY OFFICERS' HOME.

Assurance that the proposed $100,000 national home of the Chief Petty Officers' Club of the Navy will be located at Los Angeles Harbor, instead of at San Diego or San Francisco, was given at the Harbor yesterday by Chamber of Commerce officials. A suitable site for the erection of the big clubhouse will be donated by the chamber, according to a statement made by President C. J. Colden to Henry Lee, head of the C.P.O. Club.

A site now under consideration is located near the water front at San Pedro and not far from the business section. It is valued at $12,000, and will, in all probability, be accepted by the C.P.O. Club at its national convention to be held at the Harbor December 15.

The proposed building will be five stories high and constructed to accommodate 500 members of the club.

ASK DOUBLE TRACK.

Harbor Business men will Petition Railroad Commission.

A committee of Los Angeles Harbor business men will go before the State Railroad Commission at Los Angeles tomorrow in an effort to secure an order for the Pacific Electric to install a double track on Sixth street, San Pedro's principal business thoroughfare. The company is now operating cars over a single track on that street.

The committee is composed of C. H. Fawcett, C. F. Waite, P. L. Baker, R. G. Whitlock and R. H. Beaton.

ANNAPOLIS ELEVEN IS GIVEN WARM WELCOME

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 27.—Sylvester J. Weaver, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speaker Tuesday evening at the annual duck dinner of the National Orange Show, when plans for the show to be held February 17 to 27 will be completed.

Mayor S. W. McNabb will preside, while 150 of the leading citrus fruit men from all parts of the State will attend.

TIE FOR GOLF TURKEYS.

In the play-off for the Thanksgiving turkeys at the municipal golf links yesterday there was a double-barreled tie. F. L. Knowith 78-14-64 tied with F. Cavanagh who registered 80-16-64. The Syd Chaplin cup will be contested for next Saturday and Sunday.

NEWS NOTES of FLEET

The dreadnaught New York weighed anchor and sailed for the navy yard at Puget Sound Saturday morning. She will be away from Los Angeles Harbor until the first week in January, at which time she will rejoin the Pacific Battle Fleet. Reports are current in fleet circles that the New York and Texas, the only coal-burning ships of the fleet, will be sent to the Atlantic Coast at the close of the joint battle maneuvers off Central America in February. The new dreadnaught Maryland and one other ship not yet designated by the Navy Department will replace these two sea fighters, it is said.

The Navy transport Henderson, which has won the name of "The Nursery," because of the large number of women and children, members of officers' families, that she transported to the Pacific Coast from New York, will leave Los Angeles Harbor for the Atlantic Coast next Friday. The Henderson will leave San Francisco Tuesday, arrving here the following day. A large number of Navy officers and enlisted men, who have been transferred to duty on the East Coast, together with their wives and children, will board the transport Thursday morning, according to Navy orders issued yesterday.

Commander Walter S. Anderson, has been detached from the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., and assigned to duty with the destroyer force of the Pacific Fleet.

Commander Felix X. Gygax, has been assigned to duty as navigating officer aboard the dreadnaught Mississippi of the Pacific Fleet. He was formerly attached to the Naval War College at Newport.

The submarine mother ship Camden has a new officer in the person of Lieut. Leonard M. Desmond, who has been transferred from the New York navy yard.

Ensign Obed E. Williams has been detached from the naval air station at Cocosole, Canal Zone, and assigned to the air squadrons, Pacific Fleet.

Lieut. Harrison B. Duncan, detached from the dreadnaught Idaho of the Pacific Fleet and ordered to the navy yard at Puget Sound, has received a revocation of the original order and has been directed to report for duty at the navy yard at New York.

The big armored cruiser Frederick, which until the 4th inst. was the flagship of the Pacific Fleet train and which is now at the Mare Island navy yard at San Francisco, is to be dismantled and sold for junk, according to word that reached fleet headquarters at the Harbor yesterday. The Frederick will go out of commission December 31 and the 300 men and officers who are still aboard the cruiser, assisting in removing her stores, will be distributed among the ships of the Pacific Fleet.

Installation of the refrigerating machinery aboard the new supply ship Rappahannock, which is to relieve the U.S.S. Glacier and join the Pacific Fleet for the winter maneuvers off Panama, will be completed at the Mare Island navy yard today. Among her supplies will be 800 tons of flour for the bakeries on board the various battleships.

With only four superdreadnaughts of the Pacific Fleet remaining at Los Angeles Harbor yesterday, visiting aboard navy ships was considerably restricted. Thousands of civilians, however, journeyed to the harbor and enjoyed the hospitality of officers and men aboard the New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Idaho and Texas, who showed them around and explained the mysteries of modern man-o'-war. With a ninety-six-hour leave granted to the majority of the men on these ships Thanksgiving eve, which does not expire until this morning, those remained on board were kept busy looking after the comfort of the visitors.

Three men of the Pacific destroyer forces have been awarded lifesaving medals and letters of commendation from Secretary of the Navy Denby. The recipients are Theodore Bauman, chief machinist's mate of the destroyer Hogan; Edwin Ray Elding, fireman third class, and Arthur Kneebone, ship's cook first class of submarine chaser No. 274. Chief Bauman saved the life of G. M. Lumbattis, a seaman on the Hogan, who was thrown overboard from a motor sailer which swamped at San Francisco, April 7. Elting and Kneebone saved the life of Benjamin E. Foulkes, a seaman, who fell overboard from the submarine chaser at sea while the craft was en route from San Diego to San Clemente Islands, April 21, 1921.

Lieut.-Commander W. A. Corley of the dreadnaught Pennsylvania has been detached and ordered to duty on the Atlantic Coast. He will board a destroyer at San Diego for the trip East.

Gunner J. J. Brierly, also of the Pennsylvania, has been ordered to duty aboard the navy fuel ship Jason on her trip to the east coast.

The dreadnaught Oklahoma has been awarded the small arms trophy offered by the Navy Department for vessels attaining the highest score for the year in small arms target practice. The Oklahoma's riflemen attained a merit of 4.923 for year ending June 30, 1921, the highest merit attained by any vessel of the battleship class. This is the second successive year that the Oklahoma has won the trophy. The standing of the ships of the Pacific Fleet from which small arms practice reports have been received by the Navy Department shows the following: Oklahoma, 4.923; New Mexico, 3.720; Mississippi, 3.550; Nevada, 3.011.

HARVEY'S SPEECH PEEVES GOVERNOR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

AUGUSTA (Me.) Nov. 26.—Gov. Baxter took exception in a statement today to a remark by Ambassador Harvey in a speech at London, on Thanksgiving. The Ambassador was quoted as saying that in Maine the Pilgrim sons kept the faith of their fathers only intermittently.

"I resent any reflection on our past, equally as I do upon our present," said the Governor.

FAMILY IS AWAY; JEWELRY STOLEN.

While the family was away last night, burglars entered the home of J. W. Chitter, 238 West Avenue 56, and stole $400 worth of jewelry. They jimmied a rear window.

CAPTAIN'S PUNISHED FOR WRECK

Deprive Master of Steam Schooner Thomas Crowley of License for Month.

Found to have been unskillful in the navigation of his vessel, Capt. Valdemar Iverson, master of the steam schooner Thomas Crowley, which ran on the rocks at Point Concepcion in a heavy fog, on the 2nd inst., has been deprived of his license for a period of thirty days. This was announced at Los Angeles Harbor yesterday by Capt. Carl F. Lehners, local inspector of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service.

The action was taken by Capt. Lehners and Capt. S. A. Kennedy, of the inspection service, following an investigation into the causes leading to the accident, which cost the life of one seaman and badly damaged the hull of the Thomas Crowley. The evidence showed, it is said, that the steam schooner was proceeding at full speed in a fog and that soundings had not been taken with suf

BORAH HITS PEACE PLAN OF HARDING.

Objecting Senator Says Association of Nations is League With New Name.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The continuing "Association of Nations" which, according to reports, President Harding has foreseen as a possible outcome of the Disarmament Conference, would be "the old League of Nations under another name," Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, declared in a statement tonight.

Senator Borah's statement said:

"The proposed association of nations has not yet been reduced to form, not yet defined. But from what one can gather it is the old League of Nations under another name. It will be engaged in precisely the same kind of work and doing the same kind of things proposed by the League. It is not what you call it, but what it is, that counts.

"Fundamentally it will not differ from the League of Nations. I see no reason, therefore, why the forty-three nations which have joined the League should be asked to abandon it and transfer their names to an association of nations. If we want to go into this kind of a proposition there is no reason why we should experiment with the one they have.

"It is claimed by League advocates that the League has been of much service to Europe. If so, there is no reason for asking Europe to scrap the old League and try a new one. If we are going into Europe we ought to go in. If we are not we ought not to be handing her a new league every ninety days. She will likely conclude that after the next Presidential election she would have another league. I see no difference in joining the present League and joining another league under a new name."

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store. —[Advertisement.

HIROHITO POPULAR AS REGENT

Crown Prince in Public Speech Says He Will Seek Friendship of Powers.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, Nov. 27.—Crown Prince Hirohito, new Regent of Japan, in addressing a gathering yesterday, deplored the infirmities of the Emperor, which had rendered the necessity of naming of a Regent and expressed anxiety as to whether he could discharge the duties which had fallen on his youthful shoulders. He is 20 years old. His aim, he said, would be to further the friendship of foreign powers and to promote the national welfare while awaiting his father's recovery.

The general view is that the appointment was a timely development in view of the Emperor's condition. As Regent, the Prince will practically be ruler.

There is little doubt of his popularity, of which there have been many evidences since his return from Europe. He has shown a personal interest in various popular undertakings and has strongly established himself in the confidence of the people.

Viscount Chinda has been appointed Lord Chamberlain in Hirohito's household in place of Baron Arata Ramao, who asked to be relieved. Viscount Chinda also will retain the post of Privy Councilor.

Following the Prince's appointment, great crowds greeted his every appearance with wild enthusiasm.

TRAIN IS DERAILED. PASSENGERS UNHURT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Nov. 27.—The last three coaches of a train on the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railroad were derailed near Cooks, Wash., today by a broken rail.

According to advices received by the company's offices here, physicians were ordered to board the train at Stevenson, Wash., but they found none of the passengers injured beyond being shaken up.

ITALY'S ORGANIZER OF VICTORY GIVEN ROUSING WELCOME ON ARRIVAL

FIND COINERS IN BEACH CAVE.

Two Suspects Nabbed Below Ground at the Harbor.

Boy Used to Change Coins Leads Police to Lair.

Dollars Hot from Pot Are Seized in Port Den.

A chapter of a story having elements of adventure dear to the old-time readers of "Diamond Dick" was written early last night when Thomas Cline, 18 years of age, was arrested by Patrolman Gentry of the Harbor police force and held on suspicion of counterfeiting.

The boy approached the policeman, who was in plain clothes, and asked for change for a silver dollar. The coin was a rather poor counterfeit and the lad was taken to the station where he related a story which resulted in the arrest of Frank Williams, 52, and L. J. McCaulliff, 16. Williams is charged with counterfeiting and McCaulliff is held on suspicion of the same offense. The trio will be given into the custody of Federal officers this morning, it was said.

UNDERGROUND DEN.

Following information furnished by the Cline lad officers say they discovered a counterfeit den such as was pictured in the dime novel literature of a generation ago. A few several blocks from the highway between San Pedro and Wilmington had been fitted up with a bed, rugs and other household articles and the three men lived and worked in the underground home. When the officers entered, Williams, they say, was manipulating a crude, home-made, plaster of-Paris mold from which he was casting imitation dollars made of a combination of baser metals. A dozen of 114 of the coins, all new, was taken by the officers. Some of the dollars were still hot from the melting pot.

Investigation developed that about two weeks ago Williams approached the McCaulliff boy as he was standing in front of one of the Los Angeles missions. The boy said Williams told him he had a little deal on and if the lad would do his share he would be provided with food and clothing. McCaulliff said that when he found out the true state of affairs he refused to have anything to do with the actual making or circulating of the money. He volunteered to do the cooking for the man, however, and found th-

MUST DISARM OUR MINDS FIRST, SAYS WAR LEADER

Hero of the Piave Takes Sharp Issue With Harvey; Extolls Our Part in Conflict.

"Italy entered the war voluntarily to defend the cause of humanity, and this thing was done most generously by America, in her own time!"

With this ringing note of patriotism, which is sharply at variance with the declaration of Ambassador Harvey in London recently, Gen. Armando Diaz, hero of the Piave and one of the outstanding military figures of the World War, yesterday drove home a handful of opinions on peace and war in an address at a reception given in his honor at Exposition Park.

Wearing his honors humbly as only great men can, Gen. Diaz arrived from San Francisco on the Southern Pacific early yesterday morning and was met by a delegation of Army officers, National Guardsmen, ex-service men and city officials.

Mayor Cryer, President Weaver of the Chamber of Commerce, Sheriff Traeger and others called upon him at his private car and escorted him from there to the park at 9 a.m. At the park band stand, approximately 800 members of the local Italian colony and thousands of persons of other nationalities were assembled to greet the man who "licked" the Austrian army.

After making a brief address, the general was taken by Mayor Cryer and Gov. Stephens for an auto ride through the Wilshire district and Hollywood. His private car was switched to the Santa Fe tracks and the party left at 11:30 a.m. for the Grand Canyon. Summing up the aftermath of the World War he declared that the great problems preliminary to peace are being widely discussed, and that he thinks we can arrive at some durable understanding.

"But," he cautioned, "before we undertake, as nations, to dismantle our navies and disarm our armies, we must first disarm our hearts and minds."

WITHOUT GRIEVANCES.

The general pointed out that Italy and the United States came out of the war without grievances against any nation, and that while this country is regarded as extremely practical, it still clings to some of the Italy which Italy has, and Italy, while regarded as sentimental, has a great deal of the practical about her.

"These two countries (Italy and the United States) are going to be friendly at all times in the future," he said, "and any nation that does not think so will have to be made to think so."

This statement was loudly applauded by the audience.

"I look with faith toward the future," the general continued. "Out of the great war there rises a new conception of humanity. In the future there shall be neither oppressors nor oppressed. People must understand that their lives do not end with their boundaries. They must live in this world as members of a great family. The scope of the world is good, not destructive."

These pointed remarks were enthusiastically applauded by the audience, being punctuated from time to time by cries of "Viva la Italy!"

The general was introduced by Mayor Cryer, who was presented by Ernest M. Torchia. Mr. Cryer sped briefly over recent international history, summing up the collapse of the Italian army at a crucial moment, and crediting Gen. Diaz with having pulled it together almost miraculously in time to turn defeat into victory.

"The reconstructed Italian army under Gen. Diaz withstood the full force of the gigantic Austrian army," said Mr. Cryer, "and uncovered one side of the German army while the American soldiers hammered it on the other side. This concerted attack, coupled with the great work of the other Allied armies, turned the tide of victory in the right direction."

Mayor Cryer declared that whatever future history reveals, it will tell generations yet unborn that Gen. Diaz deserves to be forever known as one of the historic figures of the World War. His remarks were loudly cheered by a cosmopolitan audience which probably represented every nation

FOR MORE DEPOSITIONS.

Defense Seeks Further Proof of Burch's Insanity; Suicide Pact Told, Denied.

Application for permission to take additional depositions for the defense will be made by attorneys for Arthur C. Burch when his trial on a charge of killing J. Belton Kennedy is resumed this morning in Judge Reeve's court.

Paul W. Schenck, chief counsel for Burch, and Attorney Richard Kittredge and John J. Sullivan admitted last night that this will be done when the court is convened and that they will serve upon the District-Attorney notice of their intention to take the additional depositions and ask him to waive the necessary three days' notice to facilitate the work. The depositions are to be taken from eleven men in Harlowton, Mont., and are for the purpose of proving that Burch is and for the past five years has been insane.

The request for permission to obtain these depositions does not mean another delay of the trial. The depositions will be taken through interrogatories and cross-interrogatories to be prepared by the District-Attorney's office. They are expected to reach Los Angeles before the defense is ready to use them.

INCLUDES BANK HEAD.

Following are the men named in the interrogatories:

William N. Smith, president of the First National Bank; Dr. P. E. Thompson, Dr. Elsworth F. Ross, C. A. Hunt of the Consolidated Bank and Trust Company; James Lunney, farmer and stockman; N. O. Husband, cashier of the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank; Richard D. King, Andrew Egenbergur, Arthur J. Hamilton, garage man; Charles F. Kirk, contractor and builder, and William T. Jacobs, former Mayor, all of Harlowton.

Four other men—H. G. Giltman, W. C. Hart, J. D. Lilly and Henry Alm of Living Springs, Mont.—are mentioned as witnesses to the asserted insanity of Burch.

ACTIONS CITED IN SUPPORT.

According to the attorneys for Burch, the Montana witnesses will testify they were convinced of Burch's insanity during his stay in Montana from 1916 to 1919.

IN SUICIDE PACT?

A suicide pact between Burch and Mrs. Madalynne C. Obenchain, co-defendant with him in the Kennedy murder case, was asserted by Burch a few weeks after his arrest on the charge of killing J. Belton Kennedy.

Definite statements to that effect were made by Burch to two persons, it was learned yesterday by The Times. Burch's explanation was that in the event "things go ... of tired of them," both he and Mrs. Obenchain would take their own lives rather than lose faith in each other. He also stated at that time that he and Mrs. Oben-

SOON WILL BE TAXLESS TOWN.

Long Beach Municipal Oil Well Comes in Big.

See Cool Cash Rolling in from Holes in Earth.

City Producer Only Short Ways from "Pioneer."

A new oil well came in on Signal Hill last night.

It was not cause for rejoicing for a group of stockholders of a big corporation, but tidings of gladness to an entire city. It means, say those who say they know, that Long Beach is soon to discard the title "Queen of the Beaches," for that of "Taxless Town."

The well, which shows a production of from 500 to 1000 barrels of the black gold a day, belongs to the city of Long Beach. It is the first municipally owned producing oil well in the world, it is asserted, and proves that the territory being developed by the city is "pay dirt" and that in a short time many holes in the ground will be pouring money into the city treasury.

Ramsey Municipal No. 1 is the well's official title and it has been drilled to a depth of 3131 feet. Since Friday bailing has been in progress and those in charge were in a position to place the gusher under control as soon as necessary. Just one big splash as the gas pressure forced the fluid over the top of the derrick. The waiting cap was quickly put in place and the gusher was under control.

The newest producer on Signal Hill is just 200 feet from the Shell Company's Alamitos No. 1, which was the first producer in this territory. The city owns many acres in the immediate vicinity and its officials have every reason to believe that in the near future scores of producers will be in operation. The city has a contract with Ramsey Brothers, who have been doing the drilling, and will share on a fifty-fifty basis with the drilling company.

PNEUMONIA TAKES AGED MANUFACTURER

George Adam Pfaffmann, aged 76 years, formerly a well-known manufacturer of Philadelphia, died of pneumonia yesterday at his home, 460 Russell street. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Riedeman undertaking parlor. Rev. R. Zurbucken will officiate. Burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery. Mr. Pfaffmann, who retired from active business life twelve years ago and came to Los Angeles to reside, leaves a widow, Mrs. Margaret Pfaffmann; three sons, Arthur, Oscar and William, and two daughters, Mathilda and Flora Pfaffmann, all of Los Angeles.

FALL IN PLANE KILLS ROGERS.

Crescent Flying Field Race Has Tragic Ending.

Airman Believed to Have Had Fainting Spell.

Nearly Every Bone in Body Broken, Doctor Says.

Emery H. Rogers, aged 27 years, former Army aviator, president of the Rogers Aircraft Corporation and a pioneer of commercial aviation in the Southwest, crashed to his death at the Crescent flying field yesterday before a large crowd of horrified spectators, who had been watching his thrilling feature race.

The doughty flyer was racing his monoplane C-1 against Kenneth Montee in a French Nieuport pursuit plane. The two planes were circling the field neck and neck at a speed of 140 miles an hour.

Observers saw Rogers clear the fence on the left turn at the east end of the field. He was flying only fifteen feet from the ground and swerved upward to a thirty-foot level for the turn. Instead of straightening out the plane careened on its side and fell to the ground a mass of twisted wreckage.

The spectacular race has been a Sunday feature at the flying field. Rogers was carried unconscious to an automobile of one of the visitors to the field and taken to the Hollywood Emergency Hospital. He died ten minutes after being placed on the operating table. Dr. F. G. Stadfield, who attended him, said that nearly every bone in Rogers's body had been broken.

Rrogers was one of the best-known flyers in the West and had the reputation of being a careful and expert pilot. That his fatal fall may have been caused by a fainting spell was advanced as the most likely explanation of the fatality by J. B. Webster, secretary-treasurer of the Rogers corporation.

"One of the aviators standing near where the fall occurred was watching the controls of the plane closely," Mr. Webster said, "and he declares that Rogers made no attempt to move the controls. A slight move would have prevented the crash. Emery had been complaining of dizziness and of a heavy cold in his head as the after effects of influenza. It is my belief he fainted while in the air, thus being unable to guide the plane."

Lieut. Rogers gained much distinction as an expert aviator during the World War. He enlisted in the aviation service in 1917, was sent first to the Berkeley ground school, later to Fall Field at Wichita Falls, Kan., from there to Lake Charles, La., and finally to Southern Field, Americus, Ga.

Elizabeth Jordan's Column.

WOMEN AS PATIENTS.

"Women have won a big reputation as stoical sufferers," began the trained nurse as she folded a binder around her patient with a tightness that made the latter gasp, "but I give you my word, Mrs. X., that you are the only woman patient on this surgical corridor who isn't fussing most of the time."

"I'm going to fuss right now," murmured the patient, faintly. "I like to breathe every little while and that binder you have put on me is so tight that I can't."

The nurse laughed.

"Oh, yes, you can, after you get used to it," she declared, cheerily. "You can stand anything. Why, the way you went through those first three nights after the operation—"

ALL SHE DID.

"I lay still and groaned," said the unappreciative patient. "If I could have done anything else that I thought would relieve me I would have done it."

"No, you wouldn't," contradicted the nurse. "You're not that kind. You're the level-headed tremendously plucky sort who follows the surgeon's orders because you know it's the best thing to do. And I don't mind telling you now, when all danger is past, that it's to that very fact that you owe your life. You lay perfectly quiet, and you didn't thrash or writhe or squirm or work yourself into a collapse."

"But what do the others do?" asked the patient, with interest. "What can they do? They can't move."

MAKING THINGS HARDER.

"But they can do what I just said you didn't do. They can toss their arms and twist their bodies and have hysterics and sometimes even reopen their wounds by their twisting and writhing," asserted the nurse. "And they do," she added coldly. "You would be amazed to know how much of it they do, and how hard they make the case for themselves, their nurses and their surgeons. And you would be still more amazed to know how often they are women of the world who are supposed to have special poise and self-control."

"What's that noise in the next room?" asked the patient, suspiciously, as a series of staccato cries came to their ears.

"That's Mrs. Blank," said the nurse, mentioning a name well known in the social world. "She is exactly the type I have been describing. She was operated on for appendicitis this afternoon. There were no complications and she will be out of the hospital in two weeks. But to hear her you would think she would die before morning. She is making a special fuss just now because her husband is sitting by her side holding her hand and she wants him to think she's dying. Also, her nurse told me a little while ago that she is not quiet a minute. She would break her stitches if she were allowed to keep it up, but she won't be. Her nurse will give her a little morphine—which, of course, we never like to do. It makes the next day so much harder for the patient."

MOST WOMEN STILL PLUCKY.

"Come now," said the patient, "I have a lot of friends who went through operations and every one of them was as plucky as she could be. I think what you notice is that men are pluckier than they used to be."

"There may be something in that," the nurse admitted, "I know plucky women, too. There are lots of them. But frankly, taking them on an average, I'd much rather take care of two men surgical cases than of one woman. The men hate it, but they are philosophical. Also, of course, they are ashamed to make a fuss. They don't think it's manly. They have much more pride about 'standing the gaff' than women have, especially spoiled women who have never had to stand anything before. And of course you are right in saying the war brabed men up. When think of what the soldiers went through, their own suffering seems trivial in comparison. Whatever the cause," she added, "there has been a big change in the past six or seven years. I don't think many surgeons would tell you now that women patients are so much pluckier than men!"

LETTER TO "THE TIMES."

Use for Old Ships.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Why not take a number of these scrapped warships, moor them in the proper position at San Pedro, open a sufficient number of compartment sea valves to sink them, fill the other compartments with concrete, and then use the line of old fighters for a breakwater that will enlarge the harbor? The U.S.S. New Hampshire, which went ashore on a West Indian reef years ago still stands rigidly upright and solid as a rock despite the storms that have made that section famous. Surely this would be a better fate for old warships than using them for targets or selling them to junk dealers for a song.

FRANK P. CLARKSON.

All Hate Us.

LONG BEACH, Nov. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your correspondent, R. T. McClung, is a man ahead of his time.

One man lives who is not infected with the germ, "Pax Vobiscum!" Remember the clown, Wamba, in "Ivanhoe," who ran around anointing the hapless populace with that phrase?

That's the Disarmament Conference all over.

Except that Wamba was sincere and I cannot believe the conferees are.

How can Robert T. take it so coolly? It will end in a fight, just as the other peace parleys have. Only now it brings the scrap to our own soil.

In bringing this next fight to a head, the nations will spend millions more of our good American money. Our money that is held in such contempt. Held in contempt, I say because we have been too generous.

Ingratitude is the strongest human trait.

They all hate us—France, England, Japan, Italy.

Why? Because they owe us money.

Another thing: does any one know what "armistice" means? And why all this brainstorm over "victory"? No wonder the nations cannot decide who is victor. "A truce means cessation of hostilities—until one or the other are strong enough to resume the fight.

ETTA WILLIAMS.

Punishment and Crime.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—[To the Editor of The Times:]—How strange are the workings of the law and how nice are its discriminations! There is, in the eyes of the law, a vast difference between the person who attempts murder and is prevented from the full realization of his malicious intent by chance or untoward incident and the man who tries to kill and succeeds in his endeavor. I believe that there should be no such distinction. Consequently, I have been surprised to notice during the last few days in the daily press several instances of such a differentiation on the part of the Los Angeles courts. I will cite one instance briefly.

A man in the decline of life quarreled with his neighbor, and in the course of the dispute drew his gun and shot him. The administration of justice was delayed in this case until it became certain that the assassin's victim would live. Now the man who raised the hand to slay is reasonably sure of being placed on probation; but had his neighbor died the long and serious suffering he endured, passed away, at a moment when his vitality was low the aged man would instead be confronted with the dread spectacle of life imprisonment or death.

What makes the crime less black when the victim of the murderer's gun is able through no miscarriage or lack of criminal intent on the part of his attacker to overcome his wounds? Should the would-be murderer be punished to a lesser extent because his victim lived and did not die? Consider that if McKinley had recovered from the attack of his assassin after weeks of awful and fearful suffering that Czolgosz, although no one ever deserved death more than he, could never have been deprived of his life by process of law. Likewise if Lincoln and Garfield had not succumbed to the stroke of cowardly and despicable men, their attackers, provided that the laws of the land had been observed, would also have lived.

Murder is committed by the mind, not by the hand. Although this truth cannot find a very general application in our courts, yet it should be observed in so far as it is practically possible in cases whenever the criminal intent and malicious desire of the murderer are thwarted only by the vitality of his victim or by other incidents unfavorable to the complete execution of the criminal's plans.

The spirit of the law may give life, but it also killeth. Let those who enforce our laws and maintain order not forget this fact. Let them remember also that there is no justice when justice is delayed; and then, many of the adverse criticisms of the courts and their functioning will cease.

Question: Where is sea level reckoned from? H. L. T.

Answer: Mean sea level is the average height of the water, all stages of the tide being considered.

Q.: Is this a good time to invest money in the Philippines?

V. K. I.

A.: Gov.-Gen. Wood says that American investments in the islands are secured, that conditions of public order are excellent throughout the archipelago and that there is a keen desire for investment of foreign capital.

Q.: Who was the originator of mesmerism? F. F. F.

A.: Mesmerism, a form of animal magnetism, not unknown in previous centuries, was advanced and exploited by Frank Mesmer, born 1733, died 1815, at Paris. He was a physician and used the art of physical magnetism in curing diseases.

Q.: Should potatoes be cooked in salted or unsalted water?

F. W. H.

A.: Potatoes should be put on to cook in salted, boiling water. Salt added at the beginning of the cooking reduces the loss of mineral matter about one-third.

Q.: Why do we have an "e" in liquefy, instead of "i," since liquid is spelled with an "i"?

M. S. B.

A.: Liquefy is derived from liquefacere; liquere, Latin words meaning to be liquid, and to make. Liquid is derived from liquidus (liquer liquere,) the Latin word meaning to be fluid. From these base words you will see the reason for the "e" in liquefy and the "i" in fluid.

Q.: What is the insignia of the American Army of Occupation in Germany? A. D. H.

A.: Their insignia is a large white A surrounded by a red circle, mounted on a circular piece of blue.

Q.: How many of the manufacturing establishments of Illinois are in Chicago? O. N.

A.: In 1919, out of 18,594 manufacturing establishments in the State, 10,623 were in Chicago.

Q.: Who are Spain's delegates to the Disarmament Conference?

V. D. M.

A.: Spain is not represented by delegates in the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments.

TRAIN PASSES OVER GIRL.

Miss Agnes Schnupp, 22 years old, of Jeanette, Pa., apparently failing to hear the approach of a fast passenger train, started to walk along the Pennsylvania Railroad near the Jeanette station.

Blinded by the glare of the headlight of the engine, Miss Schnupp stood still for a moment as the big engine bore down on her. Then she threw herself between the trucks and the train passed over her.

Score of persons standing on the station platform thought the young woman had been killed as she dropped in front of the train. Miss Schnupp, however, while unnerved, was able to walk to her home, where it was found she had suffered no injury.—[New York World.

COLORS IN THE SEAS.

Where the Water Appears Blue, Red and Green.

Placed in a vase, sea water appears perfectly transparent and colorless, yet when gathered in a large mass it reveals a number of beautiful colors, the most common being a fine azure blue. This coloring of the sea is caused by filtration of the sun's rays through the innumerable small salt particles held in suspension in the water.

The Mediterranean, which holds an unusual proportion of these salts, is blue to excess. The polar seas also are described as being of brilliant ultramarine blue. So are the waters of the equinoctial Atlantic, while the Pacific approaches more nearly to indigo. All four, however, are alike in one respect. Near shore the color changes and becomes green; sometimes such an intense green as to appear almost black. When the waters are agitated the green changes to a brownish hue. Beneath a calm sunset the surface seems lit up with all manner of delicate tints—pink, topaz, emerald and purple.

Many local causes influence the color of marine waters and give them certain decided and constant shades. A bottom of white sand causes a grayish or apple green color. In the Bay of Loango the water appears to be a deep red owing to the red bottom.

Around the coasts of New Zealand are seas in which countless floating red animalcules cause the water to adopt a crimson complexion, known to local fishermen as "whale-spawn red." Nearer home there are the South of France salt marshes, where red sea water is concentrated, but the color is due to the presence of a red-shelled parasite of microscopic size. The salt lakes of the watershed of Great Tibet owe their color to the same cause. The tiny creatures are present in their millions, but do not appear until the salt water has attained a certain degree of concentration, and disappear just as mysteriously when a further density is reached.

Off the coasts of Japan the sea is yellow, and to the west of the Canaries it is a vivid green. Near Callao, the port of Lima, in Peru, the water is olive colored, while near Cape Palmas and along the Gulf of Guinea the ship often appears to be moving in a sea of milk.

Practically all of the tropical seas occasionally assume the hue of fire. Phosphorescence, it is called, and the effect is produced by thousands of floating animalcules, or by the dead and putrefying bodies of certain other fish, from which an intense white light is given off.—[London Daily Mail.

WISDOM OF WEATHER MEN.

Some encouragement is held out to the "sure-sign" observers who make long-range forecasts of the weather by the actions of animals in their back yards, by Dr. C. F. Brooks, meteorologist at Clark University, and formerly a government forecaster. Dr. Brooks points out that American and European investigators seem to have established the fact that in ordinary times a season appreciably above or below normal in temperature is likely to be followed by one to three or more seasons having temperature departures in the same direction.

"Thus it may be that forecasters of mild or cold winters who rely on some biological signs in autumn may justly claim more than chance success, though for reasons different from those commonly advanced," he declares. "Five out of the seven winter predictions which came to me last fall from newspapers east of the Mississippi River were to the effect that last winter would be mild, according to indications afforded by birds, worms, squirrels, muskrats, frogs and the like."—[Kansas City Star.

CHALLENGED AUNTIE.

Nine-year-old Ruth had a very thin hair, but still it was long enough to come to her waist, and she was proud of it. The family tried to get her to have it bobbed, but she stubbornly refused. One night Aunt Nora's young man, who, by the way, happened to possess a great charm for Ruth, arrived. Auntie, thinking that he might be able to persuade her on this occasion, secretly informed him of the affair, and then when Ruth came into the room mentioned the fact that she wished her niece to have her hair bobbed. He took the cue, and immediately told of how thick it made hat to have it bobbed. Ruth listened a minute and then looked at auntie's mass of pinned-on curls.

"Well, auntie," she said, sweetly, "which one of us shall try it out first?"—[Indianapolis News.

ARMS CONFERENCE INTERESTS CHEMISTS.

The question of [illegible] fare and disarmament will play a large part in the conference in Washington, unofficially, the program of little has expressed itself unofficially, the [illegible] the situation can be summed up.

It is likely that the chemists will stand pat on the question of the prohibition of the use of gas and other means in warfare. Although the war the United States became a party to a treaty prohibiting the use of gas in war, although Germany used it and was afterward developed their chemical industries into powerful [illegible] factories. Chemical warfare is inexpensive in time of peace, and reduction in the armament is to be one of the subjects of the conference.

Chemical warfare is not likely to stay in the future, it is pointed out that no longer [illegible] fense guns or [illegible] that cost fortunes to [illegible] maintain are necessary to be fought with gas, says Washington correspondent of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. It is only a step from the wrist from poisonous explosives to dyes, medicines and other chemical products. A change in the nature of [illegible] and you have weapons of peace. Friss, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, tells how the army in its recent experiments with hydrocyanic acid gas, which they got it from Germany, in terms of the treaty of Versailles, many could set out to use as gas, but there could be no use of sodium cyanide and other which when combined with water produce deadly gas.

To limit the chemical industries, it would be necessary to limit chemical industries. This would be not only impossible in peace-time welfare of the people, but the group of nations that developed their chemical industries at the mercy of the nations that developed their chemical industries into powerful [illegible] factories. Chemical warfare preparation is inexpensive in time of peace, and reduction in the armament is to be one of the subjects of the conference.

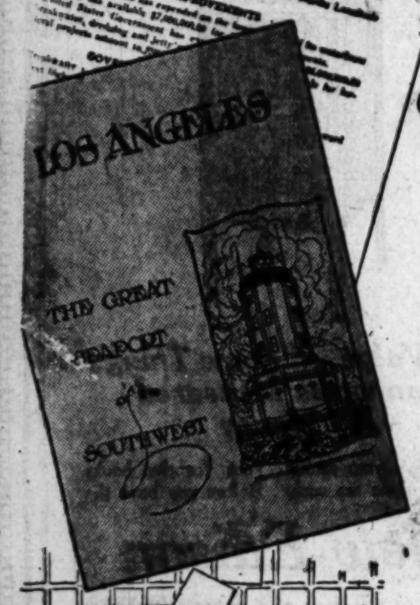
Another big job~



IN telling the story of the development of Los Angeles Harbor, the Board of Harbor Commissioners has sought to place before the public in a graphic, concise portrayal, its main features of interest and importance.

To say that they have accomplished their aim with the interesting 62-page, profusely illustrated booklet: bound in artistic Castilian covers and printed on heavy coated stock with special two-color insert—is putting it mildly.

Because there must be no doubt as to its final outcome—Times-Mirror Printing & Binding House was selected to print this booklet. And, as in hundreds of other cases, Times-Mirror has justified the selection!

ARMS CONFERENCE INTERESTS CHEMIST.

The question of chemical warfare and disarmament is sure to play a large part in the peace conference in Washington. While little has crystallized, officially or unofficially, the probabilities of the situation can be summed up.

It is likely that the various countries will stand pat when it comes to the prohibition or limitation of the use of gas and other chemical means in warfare. Even before the war the United States did not become a party to The Hague treaty prohibiting the use of gas in war, although Germany signed it and was afterwards the first to use gas in battle. It would be logical if American delegates should again refuse to become a party to gas warfare limitations. France is likely to oppose disarmament of any sort unless her safety from Germany is guaranteed by the other powers.

Chemical warfare has come to stay in the belief of many, who point out that no huge coast defense guns or floating fortresses that cost fortunes to build and maintain are necessary in battles fought with gas, says the Washington correspondent of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. It is only a twist of the wrist from poison gas and explosives to dyes, medicines, photographic chemicals, and a hundred other chemical necessities. A slight change in the making of mustard and you have mustard gas. Gen. Fries, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, tells how the Polish army in its recent campaign used hydrocyanic acid gas, and how they got it from Germany. The terms of the treaty of peace Germany could not send them this gas as gas, but there could be sent to sodium cyanide and sulfuric acid which when combined give off the deadly gas.

To limit the chemical armament it would be necessary to curb the chemical industries. This would be not only dangerous for the peace-time welfare of the country, but the group of nations that limited chemical armament would be at the mercy of the countries that developed their chemical industries into powerful potential war factories. Chemical warfare preparation is inexpensive in time of peace, and reduction in cost of armament is to be one of the objects of the conference.

CHRISTABEL IN PLACID ROLE.

Once Militant Suffragist Now Hollywood Rustic.

Says Things Have Changed, Oh, So Much Lately.

Begs to be Excused from Discussing Ireland.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

There is one thing about Christabel—the only Christabel—she is very thorough. And considerable of an artist.

In the flaming role of a modern Joan of Arc, emancipating her sex from the tyranny of its "protectors," raising and commanding an Amazon army against the fondest traditions of the stolid Britisher, she rocked an empire from 1906 to 1913 and monopolized the front page of the newspapers of the world for seven hectic years. Even Ireland was mild and peaceful by comparison. She ran a newspaper with virile hot shots on every page, she addressed monster mass meetings, she organized what had been regarded as her unorganizable sex and devised ways of annoying the entrenched male and keeping him in a blaze of wrath, compared to which a bloody invading enemy would have been a mere incident. She was a fugitive from justice for nearly three years, and winked at her pursuers across the channel from Paris, whence she continued a mighty and potent a leader of militant feminism, ever eluding the boasted efficiency of Scotland Yard.

Miss Christabel Pankhurst.

And when the war broke out in 1914, behold her promptly transformed into the ardent patriot. In a single night she and her Amazon army had joined forces with the home enemy against the foreign enemy. Every iota of sex controversy was honorably buried. And for five years she was at once Boadicea and Florence Nightingale, "My country—right or wrong!" And the indignant male, remembering his broken windows, his gummed-up mail, and his lacerated amour propre, gaped, wondered and reluctantly admired. Being a gentleman at heart, the first thing he did when the war was won was to confer the vote, with as much gallant gratitude as he could muster, upon the nigmatic sex so baffling in peace, so glorious in war.

And now that the cause of women is won, what of Christabel—Miss Christabel Pankhurst, you have perhaps gathered before now?

I found her in a cute little mission house in the Hollywood Hills, a little bijou doll's house with toy windows and doors and a rustic yard. She was dressed in flowered georgette with a pink sash. Her hair dressed with wavy simplicity, her hands folded in her lap with infinite docility, her face devoid of sophisticated make-up, her manner the quintessence of mild gentility. And she is accompanied by Crystal, a little auburn-haired maid of 6, one of the many orphan kiddies she and her mother adopted during the war. Crystal, who has selected Christabel on whom to lavish her childish love and admiration. And Christabel might have sat for a modern Madonna conning over the nursery rhymes for Crystal.

Where she was once highly decisive and held adamant opinions upon every public question, she is now sweetly, passive, gently neutral.

Asked about the Disarmament Conference, she answered wistfully, "How can we tell? Who knows? There have been no official reports yet. But politics, without religion, can avail so little."

"But do you not think there is a spiritual revival?" I asked.

"I hope so. But I should like to see it more official, more nationally applied," she said, oh, so gently.

"But when the world was nationally religious did it make for greater peace and happiness?" I suggested?"

IS ALL-ESSENTIAL.

"It had so much to fight for then," she replied, "but now there is nothing that cannot be better gained by understanding and co-operation. And religion is so necessary for that."

"Are you content with the 30-year-old age limit for the women voters in England?" I asked.

"Oh, we have won the principle. Age doesn't matter. Who knows how old we are, anyway? And there is a sufficiently large women's vote at that to have the necessary influence. The fight is won."

"What about the Irish conference?" I asked, switching to what I hoped would prove a more militant subject.

"Oh, please don't ask me anything about Ireland," she smiled. "I am resting."

"What made you choose Hollywood?"

"Oh, well, you know, we all feel that we must see California before we die. And mother found it so charming. I shall rest here for at least a year."

"And take part in Hollywood's frivolous society?" I asked.

"Is it frivolous? I didn't know. It all seems so cheerily peaceful. This little house is almost like a Christmas card church. It is called the Little Mission House, you know."

"And what" I asked, "is your little mission now?"

HAS NO MORE MISSIONS.

"No more missions," she laughed. "Oh, perhaps I shall write a little, of course."

"Your last book was on the social evil, I believe. You wrote it as a young girl and shocked masculinity."

"Yes, but people are much more frank about such things now, don't you think? Proper associations have taken it up now. The work is going on."

"What will your next book be—children's stories for Crystal?"

"Oh, perhaps a little more grown-up than that. I'm not sure yet."

"Why did you never marry?" I could not resist asking.

"I never had time," she laughed. "Oh, I am not against matrimony. I know many happy marriages. But—well, I suppose I have been too preoccupied."

"But there must have been occasions . . ."

"Now, that isn't fair, you know." And she blushed exactly like the authors of masculine novels depict their most charming heroine as blushing—replete with romantic modesty.

So there you have the new Christabel, the once virulent stormy petrel, metamorphosed into almost a Jane Austen heroine of bygone days. I expect to see her taking to tatting and fine embroidery. I feel sure she darns Crystal's stockings and sews her buttons on. I believe she knows how to make layer cake. And one day she will be answering the great, potent question with drooping lids and—

"I am sensible of the great honor you would confer upon me by offering me your hand and heart. If you will discuss the matter with mamma . . ."

Hollywood close-up and fade-out.

Induces Blunt Remarks.

Drive to Sell Stadium Seats Begins Today.

More than 5000 five and ten-year seats in the million-dollar stadium to be built next year by the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association have been allotted to the Los Angeles district for the four weeks' sale, which begins at 9 a.m. today simultaneously in the lobbies of the First National Bank and the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank.

Under the direction of Frank G. Hogan the drive will be conducted in this city with the co-operation of A. J. Bertonneau, manager of the stadium committee; George H. Frost of the Tournament of Roses Association and Jack Scanlon, director of the stadium publicity department.

Mr. Hogan pointed out last night that only purchasers of stadium seats will have an opportunity to obtain tickets for the big East-and-West football game to be held at Tournament Park January 2. He urges the public to buy its seats early to obtain the best available stadium vantage points.

GUARDING THE HOLLY.

Young folks are warned that the indiscriminate picking of Christmas holly over the hills is forbidden. The California holly is a rather delicate and fragile plant and is protected from invaders by the law. Already numbers of arrests have been made of careless ones who have garnered holly in the hills, parks or forest reserve without first obtaining the required permit. Best to be on the safe side.

THE GERMAN WONDER.

Hugo Stinnes, the German colossus of industry, has returned from a trip to London. He is said to have designs on British fog. He wanted to cut the stuff up into smoke for one of his blast furnaces. Stinnes is the man who can give the English more to worry about than the Kaiser, yet it is important that he be encouraged. He is doing much to enable Germany to get back on a paying basis.

THE SCENT OF THE ROSES.

According to some of the testimony the differences that broke up the honeymoon of a couple of film favorites began when the husband made use of some of the wife's perfume. The wife might have evened up by using the husband's razor, but instead she became enangered and bitter words inspired a parting. Our screen folk are temperamental and a husband who coarsely plunges his beak into the favorite scent of the lady cannot hope to retain her affection and esteem.

FOR A SMALLER CONGRESS.

A constitutional amendment has been introduced which would reduce the membership of the lower house of Congress to 300 persons and maintain it at that figure in perpetuity. It has always been found that a House beyond 300 persons becomes unwieldy and ceases to be a deliberative body. But there is no chance for a reduction when every Congressman feels as if he might be cutting his own political throat. The amendment, however, would not be applied until most of the present Representatives have flown. The amendment provides for a reapportionment of Congress in 1970 and every thirty-one years thereafter.

HELPING YOUNG WOMEN.

The women directing the affairs of the Los Angeles Young Women's Christian Association will launch a three-day membership campaign today. The present membership here is about 4000 and it is hoped that the campaign will succeed so well that the San Francisco organization of 6000 members will be surpassed and a good start will be made toward equalling the New York membership of 33,000.

The work of the Young Women's Christian Association has become more important as the city takes on a metropolitan aspect. As the need of the work increases it becomes necessary for more people to take an interest in it and to support it by membership. As an agency for keeping girls out of trouble the organization performs a valued function. Its Traveler's Aid representatives meet every train. Conductors know this and thus are able to help travelers take advantage of it.

Thousands of girls are helped in one way or another every month in Los Angeles. Employment is found for those out of work. Comfortable lodging places are found for business women and in some cases loans are made from a fund provided for the purpose by Los Angeles women. Central reading rooms are maintained and social affairs arranged. Much effective work in Americanization is also done among foreign-born girls. The Young Women's Christian Association is one of the helpful agencies of the city and as such is deserving of the support of the people generally.

THE BANISHED FLEETS.

Henry Ford makes a proposition to the Disarmament Conference to purchase the dismantled ships of the battle fleets and use the iron and steel in his business.

But is this disarmament?

The noes have it.

To turn an antique gunboat into a flock of fussy Fords does not make for world peace. The sword has slain its thousands, but the Ford has bunged up its tens of thousands and is still going. The battleship New Mexico is a large and impressive thing. It carries massive guns that can hurl a wagonload of lead and steel for a dozen miles. But mostly the New Mexico is used to furnish salutes of honor to visiting notables and to transport gallant and handsome admirals to their stations. It is a service of honor and dignity and really makes for the peace of the seas.

Supposing a horde of mechanics with acetylene torches were to cut the New Mexico up into 3859 irate and inflamed Fords. Supposing the specialists carved all our battle cruisers up into hectic buzz wagons. Where would be our world peace?

If Henry wants iron and steel the government already has quite a junk pile. There are a lot of worn and wasted ships that may be had at scrap-iron prices. He might practice on these first and see if they cut up to advantage. For him to break into the international conference with a proposition to buy the navies of the world smacks of advertising—and Henry doesn't need it. To make disarmament effective and impressive would be to escort the battle fleets to mid-ocean and sink them without trace. To send the warship to Detroit to be made over into nickel-plated joy carts would turn disarmament into a quip and jest.

THE UNKNOWN FACTOR.

Slowly but surely the world is working upward to the true ideal of a neighborhood of nations—an orderly community, where each nation shall be master in its own house and where, nevertheless, the heads of the various families shall join together to prevent any breach of the peace likely to jeopardize the general harmony.

For the realization of this practical ideal President Harding has already paved the way, and he would be a rash reactionary, in the face of general popular approval of the President's stand, to attempt to block this mighty forward movement.

Auspicious as the start has been, however, the goal is still a long way from attainment. The first rays of the new dawn are breaking over the Pacific, where intelligent and progressive nations have at last come together in open forum to adjust past disputes and to remove causes for future friction.

But beyond the Pacific, beyond Japan, beyond China, stretching across a continent to the borders of Mittel Europe, lie thousands of miles of disorganized and misgoverned territory which, excluded from the new order in international affairs, render reconstruction and rehabilitation still incomplete and charged with hidden danger.

Unfortunately, too, for the peaceful joining together of the world's many broken highways there is at present no means of bridging this vast chasm of mystery and menace. Yet it represents one-eighth of the world's total land surface and the potential energy of 150,000,000 man power.

In solving the international equation Russia is the unknown factor, and while Russia remains an uncertain quantity no world pacification can be permanent. It is impossible either to disregard or to deal with the present conglomeration known by courtesy as Russia.

This Russia cannot be ignored because she is too vast in extent and too requisite to the general scheme of world economics. No nation, on the other hand, can have dealings with her because she has no responsible head on whose pledged word the most unsophisticated would care to place reliance.

About this chaotic interregnum one thing only is certain. An eighth of the world's land surface cannot be politically erased from the map nor can 150,000,000 people be diplomatically exterminated. Underneath the present anarchy is a real Russia that some day will rise again. But how soon that resurrection will come to pass and what form the newborn Russia will take and how the newborn Russia will receive plans formulated by live nations of today, whether it will be a warlike or a peaceful Russia, whether it will evolve a Moses or an Alexander to lead it to the promised land, whether its complexion will be occidental or oriental, autocratic or democratic, whether it will press forward with the restless energy of the American or lie dormant with the apathetic repose of China—these are puzzles and perplexities and enigmas of the future about which delegates to the Washington conference hardly dare to speculate lest they be overwhelmed by a storm of ghosts and specters.

For the time being Russia as a nation may be regarded as nonexistent. She resembles a giant that has been temporarily knocked out and put to sleep like the trustful Sisera in the tent of the treacherous Jael. Yet no scheme for world reconstruction can afford to disregard the time when Russia wakes again and claims her rightful place in the family of newly-welded nations. For, if no provision has been made for this colossus of two continents, the whole work of present world statesmanship may have to be done all over again.

While we talk of disarmament we cannot help remembering that just now Russia has the largest army existent and that just now Russia's hand is against the hand of every other nation. We cannot help but remember that in 1913 the same Russia, today unable to feed its own people, produced ten million tons of food for export and held a controlling interest in the world's platinum and oil markets. We cannot help but remember that oppressed Russia under the Czar had a great deal to say as to the prices of goods and the extent of employment not only in Russia itself, but in every other country, including the United States.

Two dictatorial usurpers have been able to wipe out all the useful services that Russia performed for the world under the autocracy of the Czar. But, while we remember this, it is not altogether out of place to surmise what a restored Russia, guided by intelligent, democratic leaders, may achieve in the fields of trade and commerce when business brains are once again able to develop her matchless and almost inexhaustible natural resources.

Besides, we must remember that commerce is older than war and that when war has been abolished the fight for commerce will be even intenser than it is at present. And in these new commercial battles resurrected Russia is likely to be as keen a competitor for world leadership as ever was Germany, Japan, Great Britain or the United States.

The unknown factor in world affairs is not Russia as she really doesn't exist while extinguished in the personalities of Lenin and Trotsky, but the Russia that is still living and breathing hard in the stranglehold of her present tyrants, the Russia that some day will revive and throw her mighty resources into the struggle for trade supremacy. That is the unknown factor to which world statesmen must assign a definite value before they can hope to solve successfully their present complex problem in international quadratic equations.

AGE AND MARRIAGE.

A St. Louis man is asking for a divorce because his wife insisted on dressing him up like a youth home from college. He wanted to wear the stuff that went with the staid business man, but his wife would put him in one of those snappy belted coats with lapels a foot wide. He wanted to wear nothing noisier than blue serge, but the wife insisted on his appearing in checks and plaids that could be heard for a nautical mile. He liked black ties, but the wife would drape his neck with a tie that looked like a Rubens painting of an omelet. He preferred a solemn black hat, but the wife put him in a rakish mauve fedora with a feather in it. If he smoked cigarettes and gave his college yell two or three times a day the wife would be pleasant with him, but if he tried to ease his lumbago into a rocking chair or wear an old-fashioned night shirt the wife would be after him like a hyena. The moral is that a wild woman has no business marrying a man older than herself.

"Oh! Grandmother, What Big Teeth."
"All the Better to Eat You Up With."

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

FINISH IT FIRST.

Fully a score of the aggressive publications in different Allied and neutral countries are claiming the credit for having brought about the Disarmament Conference by their appeals for such a gathering.

Delightful stories are also becoming current regarding the circumstances under which President Harding worked out his idea for the conference by means of a lead pencil and a few sheets of scratch paper. We are also being liberally instructed as to the contributions of different individuals, from the time of the Greeks on through Tennyson and the last Czar of Russia, to the idea.

But what we are most in need of right now is not research work on the origin of the plan so much as getting it actually and permanently into operation. The ideal state outlined in Plato's republic is all very fine and has undoubtedly influenced the world through the effect which it has had on many vigorous minds. The poets and the writers of all types have doubtless added impetus to the movement.

However, disarmament will really be brought about because of the fact that the call came from no ruler nor dreamer nor system of philosophy, but out of the anguish of the peoples who have borne the burdens of war. The people are the puppets of war and they must put a stop to war if it is to be done at all.

But people, poets, philosophers and organizations of every kind must postpone their arguments as to "who won the peace" until peace is really attained and made sure. They must drive with full force ahead, toward their goal, before they feel that they have surplus energy to expend upon dividing the credit for what is still to be done.

It is everybody's longing, but it will never be put across until everybody concentrates upon making it a fact. Finish the conference successfully first and then let the historians and the poet laureates of the new order do their worst.

A STRANGE COMPARISON.

It remained for Admiral Sir Cyprian A. H. Bridge, "a noted British naval authority," to throw a new light upon President Harding.

The President, according to this judge of men and events, is comparable with Bismarck and Cavour, but superior to both. Just why, out of all of the men who have had a hand in world affairs, these two should have been selected in such a connection is a mystery.

Harding has almost nothing in common with either of them. Bismarck was the personification of militarism, and Cavour was the apostle of intensified nationalism. The comparison is all the more ludicrous when it is recalled that it was made upon the announcement of this government's naval limitation policy. Both Bismarck and Cavour were landlubbers in international affairs. The sea was the one factor with which they had but little to do and about naval affairs they knew almost nothing.

Bismarck would have had nothing but contempt for a conference such as Harding has called, and Cavour would have been too keenly alive to the interests of Italy to have been a real asset to such a gathering.

The truth is that it is a mistake to attempt to compare Harding with any of the European leaders. He is of a totally different type and signalizes the entrance of a new force into world politics. Although he is not a business man nor a scientist nor a cosmopolitan, President Harding represents the combined characteristics and influence of these three groups in international affairs today. He is the voice of the New World at the council table of the Old. He is America, with all of the vigor and self-confidence and belief in human kind which are so much a part of American life.

America is essentially industrial, scientific and made up of many races. It wants things done in business-like fashion; it wants an increase of those human devices which make life easier and more enjoyable and it wants to waste as little money, life and time as possible on wars.

This country is the only one in the world which has no traditional enemy. The only nation with which we ever had a real war is the one to which we feel closest at this time.

It is not that we are better than the other nations, for we are made up of people from all of them and share most of their vices as well as their virtues. The simple fact is that we have never had any reason to intensely and continuously hate and suspect any nation or nations. We cannot get the attitude of mind of the old diplomacy because we have never had to face the terrible conditions which produced the craft and deceit and militarism of the Old World.

We were fortunate enough to stand apart from Europe politically and at the same time we received and made the most of the tremendous intellectual and commercial stimuli which came to us from Europe during the last century. In other words, we get the fruits of the awakening in the Old World, with but few of its disadvantages.

Thus it is that we now have a freshness of outlook which the rest of the nations lack. Harding typifies this national characteristic, which, disregarding for the moment our tremendous physical assets, makes it possible for this country to influence the world as no other power can.

Harding speaks the language of Edison, Hoover, Ford and the ordinary man and woman of America. He is a product of a commercial, broad-visioned, lusty young nation, rich in physical things, responsive to lofty appeals, abounding in faith, quick to act, eager to exchange ideas with men everywhere.

There is no more point in attempting to classify him in a gallery of the old statesmen than there would be in trying to evaluate Washington alongside Buddha or Laotse.

TRAGEDIES OF LIFE.

An unhappy citizen has obtained the arrest of another on the grounds of fraud. It seems that the citizen bought what he thought was twenty-six barrels of rye whisky, but which turned out to be a rather inferior grade of slough water. The price paid was $14,000. This is a reasonable price for twenty-six barrels of skee, but it is a frightful figure to ask for the juice of a swamp. Hence the complaint and arrest. The man who bought the stuff was permitted to bore a hole in any of the casks and sample the stuff. But the negotiations were largely conducted in the dark and the buyer was not aware that the rubber tube through which he did the sampling was also connected with a hot water bag filled with fine whisky which was fastened within the coat of the seller. Every time he took a nip this was the source of supply and he came away feeling much like a millionaire, although in fact he had separated himself from $14,000 in real money. The party who made the sale thought he could disappear and the victim would remain silent. But not so. The tragedy was too deep. The man didn't mind the loss of the money so much, but the thought that there was no more whisky like that he had sampled filled his heart with vengeance. Even a worm will turn—especially a distillery worm.

LEARN CONTROL.

You admire the man of poise, yet you do not make an effort to control yourself when something occurs which angers you.

You admit that when you are angry you cannot think, and so cannot talk, with telling effect.

You excuse it because you are quick tempered, and for this reason you cannot control yourself.

But such an admission, even to yourself, is weakness.

You know the cool, collected man, who can think when circumstances ruffle the man with less mastery of himself, wins out.

Then why not get a better hold on yourself and be the winner?

When a man offends you, you want to fight—to do some pounding.

Have you ever followed such a course with beneficial results?

Many a time that you can remember, had you been able to control your temper and keep cool, your head and not your hands, would have saved you.

Or do you think it is smart and manly when another addresses insulting remarks to you to "punch his head?"

It is merely venting your spleen to no purpose. Control yourself.—[J. J. Mundy in Columbus Dispatch.

An Unsuccessful Opening.

Sam: No; doing time! He was caught in the act of opening it!—[London Weekly Telegraph.

WATCHING THE PROCESSION.

BY H. C. WARNACK.

Don't Get Yourself Born.

A disarmament conference on a purely economic basis is not merely ineffectual, it is immoral. We don't need an economy that will stop making guns. We need a morality that will hold guns in leash. If we wanted to make poultry yards safe for chicken hawks we could do it by disarming poultry raisers, but if we want hen coops safe from chicken hawks we must change the nature of chicken hawks by changing their diet. To change the mental diet of human chicken hawks would take time, but the cure would be lasting.

The fools who say preserve peace by birth control are as negative and immoral as those who want to disarm to save money instead of saving life. Their argument seems to be that the unborn cannot fight, that the nonexistent will be peaceful. Oh, no, for you could kill off all those already alive and the jackals and vultures would still fight over their bones.

Life Savers.

Every plunge in the land is graduating classes in life saving who will inevitably need saving from those they try to rescue. What is really needed are classes of inexpert swimmers who will learn how to be saved without drowning their saviors. There ought to be a law preventing drowning persons from appearing in water. Put a drowning person in the Vernon arena Tuesday night with Jack Dempsey and if the champion escapes with his life we will know that he is really an able man. So far there has been no opportunity whatever for Mr. Dempsey to prove this. Willard and Carpentier were tinsel toys. Let Dempsey fight with a drowning schoolgirl and show real class.

Unions Wanted.

Give us a labor union whose members will regard the interests of their employers as something remotely to be considered, who will think of an employer in some term other than a natural enemy and who will be genuinely concerned about giving a day of work for a day of pay and we will all join the union.

Disarmament.

We are for it. New Jersey should be compelled to lay down its mosquitoes, Arizona its Gila monsters and Texas its rattlesnakes. Even the Panama Canal Zone, which requires protection, should be made to abandon its typhoid germs. Meat packers should put up their ptomaine and chicken hawks should give up their bills and claws or be excluded from every poultry farm in good unarmed standing. Then, with the world at peace, Mr. Woolwine and Mr. Erbstein may be invited to make the situation unanimous.

Asking for Fish.

You owe the world a living. So far it has given you every good thing you have had the gumption to grasp. It is time to settle up. For every breath of air that was sweet and sustaining, for every taste of food that nourished you, for every bit of fruit you found luscious and inviting, for every heart throb of affection, for every mental thrill, for every vision of beauty, for every hour of slumber you owe the world an equivalent in good work. When you think how much more the world has given you than you have put back you will see that it is high time you were paying up. Every man owes the world a better living than it has had before by helping to make it a better place for the rest to live in.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

OVERWORKED BLESSINGS.

The greatest boon becomes a bore when it's not wisely handled;
And now my head and heart are sore, for I've been Gothed and Vandaled. I like the tuneful phonograph when cultured people grind it, and long I lean upon my staff and bless the guys who wind it. I love to hear it sending out fine songs of sense and feeling, composed by some accomplished scout ere jazz bands broke the ceiling. I like to hear it in the dusk, its strains are most consoling, before the watchman, grim and brusque, his curfew bell is tolling. When curfew rings I go to bed, as do a seemly number, and, with a pillow 'neath my head, invite refreshing slumber. Then all the phonographs on earth proceed to make night horrid, and, lying sleepless in my berth, I hand out language torrid. I hear the swirling swish and swash of jazz strains most befogging, I hear the whine of Uncle Josh, who's busy monologuing. I hear the counter-tenor squeak as though his voice needs greasing, I hear the high soprano shriek and thus it goes, unceasing. And when the hour of midnight's struck the racket's still proceeding; what wonder if I run amuck and leave some victims bleeding? There is a time to dance and preach, remarked the wise apostle, and there's a time to can the screech of every human throstle.

WALT MASON.

Sampson's Speech.

A good story is told by Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, of a visit which the late Lord Fisher paid to this country.

Asked by Mr. Daniels "What was the best speech you heard in America?" Lord Fisher immediately replied:

"Admiral Sampson's reply to my little address at the big dinner at Philadelphia, when I warmly praised the American Navy in the terms they deserved and expressed a sentiment of the friendship existing between the two great English-speaking nations. Admiral Sampson wanted somebody else to reply, but finally rose and, without preface, made this brief and brilliant speech: 'Well, all I have to say is this: it was a darned fine bird that hatched that American eagle.'"—[Columbus Dispatch.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM.

BY HERMAN J. STITCH.

Life Is Worth Living.

"Life isn't worth living" was the scrawled comment found on a tattered piece of paper in the vest pocket of a man who killed himself. "Strikes everywhere, no work and the little there is paying niggardly wages—it isn't worth while." And so he committed suicide.

The newspaper account indicated that there were no dependents—that there will be no hungry little tots to be fed by charity, no tired little mother to wear herself out further, not even a grieved parent to brood over a lost son. So perhaps it is just as well. Of all cowards, the suicide is the most craven.

Yet, there are a good many people who feel that life is not worth living, that it "is naught but a vale of tears."

Those folk are wrong, totally and absolutely dead wrong. They are victims of self-delusion.

Life IS worth living.

It is worth living if only to see the sun shine, the seasons vary, the storm lash itself into fury.

It is worth living if only to feel the love of our nearest and dearest.

It is worth living if only to go about from place to place, to see everywhere the same faith, the same ambitions, the same aspirations, prayers and yearnings on the part of all mankind.

Of course, there will be times when, looking back upon our lives, we seem to see only failure and wasted effort; times when we are sick and in pain and the poor, frail body cries out for surcease; times when, wounded by those we counted upon most for understanding and encouragement, we shrink within ourselves and become silent and morose and indifferent to life.

Then—a smile—a rift in the clouds—and lo!—the world changes, stars shine again on our path and, as through our tears we greet these heavenly harbingers of hope and steadfastness and faith, all qualms as to whether life be worth living flee. And we KNOW life IS worth living.

So: Courage all ye who despair beneath the load.

Keep cheerful, confident, busy and do your level best every day.

You can make flowers grow where only stones lay before; you can transmute your burdens into privileges, your disappointments into blessings, your sorrows into glories incomparable; yes, even though you be wracked with pain, you can rise superior to it and prove, by your example, that man is GOD.

DROLL STORIES.

Court Decorum Forbade.

The trial of Rollin Bunch, Mayor, and Horace Murphy, prosecuting attorney, of Muncie was on in the United States District Court at Indianapolis, and every day Muncie persons and others who were acquainted with the remarkable case came too late to obtain seats in the courtroom.

A Muncie young woman one day rushed impulsively up to a man acquaintance whose business took him inside the courtroom and, finding all the seats were taken, she exclaimed:

"Oh, can't you squeeze me in there?"

"No," he responded gravely, "not in there."—[Indianapolis News.

Longest Drought on Record.

William Allen White, the Kansas editor, was talking about droughts.

"One summer, during a terrible drought," he said, "a tourist was passing through Arizona. He put up one night in a town so dried up that even the trees had yellowed and withered.

"'Does it never rain here?' the tourist said to the landlord of the hot, dusty hole.

"'Rain?' said the landlord. 'Why, stranger, there's five-year-old bull frogs in this here town wot ain't never learned to swim yet.'"—[Nation.

Doubted His Word.

When the Widow Mingus came into Andy White's store for her weekly supply of groceries the front of her dress was disfigured with splotchy bars of red paint.

"How did you ever come to get that, Mrs. Mingus?" asked Mr. White.

"I was leaning over that Sandy Bevan's fence to look at a hog," angrily answered the widow.

"But Sandy has a big sign up," put in Deacon Petty, "WET PAINT—SANDY BEVAN."

"I saw that," snapped the widow, "but everybody knows what a liar he is."—[Toronto World.

He Must Give Up One.

A well-known Scotch "meenister" took up golf and, despite great practice, could not succeed in passing the tyro stage. His simple exclamations of "Tut, tut," "Oh, dear, now," "Well, well" and the like were plain evidences of a perturbed spirit. One day when the perspiration flowed freely from his lofty brow and his honest countenance shone with a luster and radiance which, alas, was not due to calmness of soul, but rather the heat of the sun and his laborious efforts to move the obstinate gutta percha from its station on the tee, he was tempted to indulge in strong language.

"Dear, dear, but I'll have to give it up. I'll have to give it up!" he said at last, with a despairing look at the ball.

"Give up the game, Mr. D—!" exclaimed his friend, who had been a witness to his attempts.

"Na, na, the meenister," answered the other, with a sigh.—[Argonaut.

Shiploads of prayer pianos are going to Africa. More tough work for the missionaries.

What do they do with the great quantities of mashed potatoes carried back into the kitchens of the cafeterias?

With the Arbuckle, Burch-Olsen chain, Irish and armament cases on there is just one crisis after another in this wicked world.

So many of the young men are spending their money for hooch these days that the proprietors of the local dance halls are complaining.

Why is it that the way of the transgressor is so crowded? Is it really necessary for the transgressor to detour in order to avoid the crush.

That fire on the South Side the other day was caused by the purchase of the local prohibition enforcement agents after a bunch of bootleggers.

The Italian government says that Secretary Hughes made several errors in his disarmament program. Woodrow Wilson is also understood to hold the same view.

It strikes us that a dentist who did not insist on asking a patient a lot of questions when his mouth is full of instruments ought to make a hit in this town.

It has been figured out that a man might live at an expense of $34.86 a year if he subsisted on sugar alone. Which proves to what nonsensical use figures can be put.

The arms parley must be shot right, for Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, says it is a "most heartening thing." Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed.

An Indiana woman offers her husband for sale for $5000. Husband must be a bit high in that part of the country. We know of some in Los Angeles who would dispose of themselves for 50 cents—on installments.

The eastern press says that President Harding is showing the wear and tear of the Presidency. The chances are that the tired look comes as a result of the campaign of the Southern California office seekers.

Not one girl in Willard Hall, Northwestern University's new dormitory, in Chicago, is able to qualify as "a perfect lady." We take it from that result there are no Southern California girls in the institution.

Jake Schaefer, Jr., has won the championship in the world's 18.2 balk-line billiard tournament. Dad will tell. His father was one of the marvels with the cue, was Hoppe, title holder, has lost his honor. He may now be inclined to cut out the "Willie."

An unfortunate is better off in the psychopathic ward of the County Hospital, whom they think insane because he offered a check for $5,000,000 at a local bank. The fellow got into the wrong place, he thought it was one of the "neighborhood butcher shops."

Charleston, S. C., will welcome the Governors of the various States the first week in December. We understand both the Governor of North Carolina and the Governor of South Carolina will be in attendance. But the historic rivalry between the two is no longer good form.

PEACE.

"The Army and Navy Forever!"
No! nations of God, if ye be,
Condemn thou this merciless hatred shed
That crimsons the land and the sea!

"The Army and Navy Forever!"
No! silence that cruel refrain!
Too high is the price we are paying,
Too dear are the sons who are slain!

"The Army and Navy Forever!"
No! some day when we shall have peace
The dread-naught will all be amantled.
The forging of bayonets cease!

"The Army and Navy Forever!"
No! better your millions expend
In rearing your sons to be men
Than hastening may to an end

"The Army and Navy Forever!"
No! bury the cannon and shell!
And free men from that effort
To face this most pitiless hell!

"The Army and Navy Forever!"
No! hasten the dawn of that day
When swords shall be beaten to plowshares—
When peace is bought more than

IMMANUEL PRESBYTERIAN.

"It is the God of materialism, of things, which we discuss today. which have been proposed to solve There are three general theories the great problem of the universe: materialism, all phenomena of the universe referred to matter; Pantheism, all phenomena referred to the one universal mind, and Theism, which avoids the extremes of the other two and gives place for both mind and matter. Paul says that matter, instead of leading men to dispense with God, ought to lead formation of the world; but give me matter only and I cannot explain the formation of a caterpillar.'

"Materialism teaches that the only difference between inorganic dead matter and living plants or animals is the manner in which the atoms are congregated together. Carlisle said that 'Materialism is a gospel of dirt.' It's the philosophy of the five senses. It admits nothing but the testimony of sensation and denies the existence of God, the soul and immortality.

"The man in the street has never been near a chemistry laboratory or studied a text-book in physics, but without knowing it he may have a philosophy of life which is simply a Main street translation of the scientist's theories. If Tennyson could stand at the corner of Seventh and Broadway, he would probably underscore what he once wrote, 'Things are in the saddle and ride mankind.' Russia is the most outstanding illustration in the world today of materialism. The world is surely getting an awful picture of the limitless brutality of a materialistic civilization. It ought to frighten mankind for 1000 years to come. One of the English papers admits that philosophers are bewildered by the collapse of materialism, for matter turns out to be as elusive as spirit. And yet a large section of English society apparently lives as though satisfaction could be found in temporal things. Dr. Jowett says that multitudes are content to remain on the outside of things.

"Materialism would emphasize nature, the dissemination of knowledge and the omnipotence of the eternal substance of law; but there would be no place for God, no belief in free will, no hope of the unity of the soul. When a man assents to the three propositions of God, freedom and immortality, he has some sort of a religion and these must all be denied by materialism. Mr. Francis Grierson suggests that the governments of the world will soon be forced to fight materialism as we now fight tuberculosis, because civilization may outlive the onslaughts of disease, but it perishes before materialism. You can't substitute matter for God. Give up the gospel of dirt, therefore, and accept the Gospel of Christ."

REV. R. P. SHULER.
TRINITY METHODIST.

"All agree that to be a good American a man must love the old flag and be willing to defend it. We agree that American institutions must be dear to the heart of such a man. We agree that his arm should be ever reached forth to conserve and protect freedom, and his heart be ever full of love for the heroes whose blood paid the price of our liberty.

"But some of us seem to have forgotten that this country was founded in the name of God and for the promotion of His worship. We do not often remind ourselves that those historic conferences in which our fathers forged the very framework of this republic were conferences held in the name of God and conducted by divine guidance. We are prone to forget that those documents that have lived since the birth of this nation and must live to her final victories have God's name written largely within them. 'In God We Trust' is America's very motto. 'Our fathers' God to Thee; author of liberty, to Thee we sing,' has been chorused the world around in the name of our mighty America.

"I cannot help but ask how any man can claim to be a good American who does not believe in, who does not honor, who does not worship God? This republic was founded by Christians to be a Christian nation. This republic was set apart within the world as the one nation where men should be free to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. And so I would say to this host of men and women who in the name of 'personal liberty' and according to the pernicious doctrine of license would turn this country over to every kind of variety of infidelity and unbelief; America belongs to God. The man who denies and defies God can be nothing less than the enemy of his country. How any other attitude can be assumed by any man is beyond me."

DR. E. ELLSWORTH HELMS

"Physical conditions mightily affect a people. Mountain ranges, coast lines, the presence or absence of rivers, are mighty factors in molding, making civilizations. No part of Greece was more than forty miles from the sea. The sea kept singing, 'Launch out,' and they did and became the sailors Homer shows us. The Greeks planted colonies everywhere. Greek life and letters went everywhere until Alexandria, Babylon and Rome became centers of Greek civilization. So that when Christ came He found a language and literature—the richest and most varied ever fashioned—the Greek, in every city and center, ready to carry the Gospel to all men in their own tongue. Yes, physical conditions are mighty factors in fixing the destinies of nations.

"The bed of the Nile is the mold in which Egypt is made. Damascus in the valley of the Albana, Babylon in the valley of the Euphrates, and in the valley of the Hoang Ho, Ganges, Indus and Amazon have existed great cities and civilizations.

"Egypt is not the great tract so marked in the geographies but a little narrow strip through which the Nile flows and over which it overflows. The Nile ripples and runs all through the Bible. Its waves lap the leaves of Ezekiel, Deuteronomy, Isaiah, Zechariah and Nahum. It was the crystal cradle of Moses. By its banks Mary, with the Babe of God in her bosom, found a safe refuge from the bloody Herod.

"For 3000 miles up the Nile there are endless ruins—Memphis, Heliopolis, Thebes, Karnak, Luxor. What is the meaning of all these old ruins of temple and pylon? Speak, Karnak and Luxor and tell us! And with voice hoarse from the exposure of forty centuries and lips palsied with age, they say, 'We were wise long before Athens had learned her letters. We sailed our ships before navigation was born. We were great when other nations were yet uncradled. But we sinned and we fell. Our learning could not save us. Our art could not save us. We had great military geniuses but they could not save us. Our Gods—Osiris and Isis and Ammon—see their fallen temples for 1000 miles along the Nile—they could not save us. Oh! you modern cities, get some other God than our Gods. Our Gods like us have gone down—dust to dust, ashes to ashes. Get a God who can help and save and rescue you. The Lord He is God—take Him!"

REV. E. F. DAUGHERTY.
FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

"Only one man out of ten cured of their leprosy by the Christ was big enough to honor his benefactor. It is rather a sickening fact, if applied to humanity in general as a measure of gratitude toward God; yet there is little profit in quibbling about proportions, there is large profit in keeping hold on the reality of human worth, in remembering there are 'tenth' men, that there are those who do the decent, becoming, heartening thing in any and all circumstances.

"And the nine who have been made synonymous with ingratitude, are merely representative of the average masses, who, dull, sordid, selfish, taking what the days bring, rarely lift their eyes above the dead level of commonplaceness. They were merely a part of the ever-present crowd who are spiritually deficient and unalert. They occupy their space, do their tasks, have their enjoyments, but on the material physical plane alone.

"Such people have been holding down the average of human worth since time's morning; prophets and messiahs come, Bibles are written, the heavens and earth show many wonders and through the cycles God in patience is speaking to men, trying to awaken their souls, to bring them to spiritual proportions, but men, keep busy with houses, business, pleasure, rarely looking above the ordinary things, until the summons at the journey's end. 'Thou fool, this night shall thy soul be required of thee.'

"But the tenth man saves our self-respect and keeps our hope of humanity pulsing. He sees, with all others, the material, physical, but he sees more, the spiritual, and pauses not until he can stand in veneration before life's author and sustainer and savior.

"The tenth, the exceptional man, is merely that one who lives in the consciousness of God, and by the testimony of his spiritual devotion and vision salvages the world when it is embarrassed on the rocks of materialism, saves it from plunge over the abyss of irretrievable wickedness."

REV. CLINTON J. TAFT.
PLYMOUTH CONGREGATIONAL.

"Men have sought in various ways to be delivered from evil. Some have betaken themselves into a cloistered life. This was the popular method of the middle ages. Then others have banded together in small groups of congenial spirits to live a communal type of life, apart from the common herd of humanity. But this was not the way of escaping evil which Jesus recommended. He prayed not that His disciples should be taken out of the world of their fellows, but rather urged upon them the importance of becoming lights in the world. Withdrawal from the world is no guarantee that one will escape from its evil. The walls of monasteries have never been barriers to the entrance of evil, nor have the confines of communal existence.

"So others have said, if you would be delivered from evil you must fortify the walls of your personality against it. Make the inner man strong against temptations of all kinds. Guard well the citadel of the heart. Learn self-control, for 'he that ruleth his own spirit is mightier than he that taketh a city.' Grow a great soul, nay, rather let Christ dwell within you and He will make you impregnable against the assaults of evil. Obtain the experience of the Apostle Paul, who affirmed, 'I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me,' and then with him you will be able to say, 'I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me.' Orpheus and his lyre were mightier to resist the subtle sirens than were Ulysses and his thongs.

"But we long for something beyond even this when we pray, 'Deliver us from evil.' We yearn for a human society from which evil shall have been eliminated. Redeemed individuals here and there are good, but we want a redeemed earth—'a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.' The present world is organized on the egoistic basis; competition is the ruling principle. 'Get' is the watchword among men. Hence the awful scramble for the good things of life, with the resulting evils. This must be changed. A new social order must come built upon altruism. We must build 'the beloved community,' as Prof. Royce called it in his book on 'The Religion of Loyalty.'

"Too Utopian, do you say, my friend? And thus you settle down to the glum philosophy that the status quo is the best we may expect to achieve. But some of us are incurable optimists. We have seen a vision of a world in which there are none who hurt or destroy 'in all God's holy mountain.' We must follow that gleam; we cannot be disobedient to our heavenly vision.

"The Bible opens with a scene of rare pastoral purity and peace—a garden in which disrupting sin had not yet wrought havoc. It closes with a picture of a redeemed city, coming down out of heaven upon this earth—a city in which life has grown complex, but is in perfect adjustment, a city without tears, pain or distress of any kind, a city full of light and love, a city in which the redemptive process has become complete. That is the ideal toward which we are working. God helping us, we shall make it come true."

DR. BRUCE BROWN.
SOUTH PARK CHRISTIAN.

"There has never been any civilization worthy of the name where the gospel has not prepared the way. No nation can long exist that rejects the principles of morality that compose the warp and woof of the gospel. The hope the religion of Christ brings has never been renounced by a dying man. But many thousands have suffered death rather than give it up. A city without a church would soon become a pandemonium. Real estate is always low in a churchless community. No one fears to sleep beneath the roof of a man who honestly prays.

"When Sir Walter Scott was dying, he asked: 'Will somebody read to me?' 'What book shall I read?' said an attendant. There is only one book for a dying man,' was his reply.

"No one has ever dared to write as his epitaph: 'Death is an eternal sleep.'

"If Christianity were not a good and valuable thing nobody would take the trouble to counterfeit it. No chamber of commerce ever advertised that it had lots of saloons and no churches. Men who never heard a sermon will call for a preacher when dying. The majority of unbelievers wish that they could believe when the hour of trouble comes.

"A philosophy that won't do to die by is a poor one to live by. When men stand face to face with the great unknown they never call for infidels to comfort them."

ASKS LESS SELFISHNESS.

Declaring that more religion and less selfishness will solve every world problem, Clarence W. Chadwick, C.S.B., member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., delivered the last of a series of lectures on Christian Science yesterday afternoon in First Church of Los Angeles. He spoke in part as follows:

"Who but a God who is love, a kind and considerate Father, 'full of compassion and gracious, long-suffering and plenteous in mercy and truth,' could say to us: 'Come, now, and let us reason together; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.' When one experiences forgiveness of sin, one can say with the psalmist, 'O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good, for His mercy endureth forever.'

"Love's invitation, given to the world through Christ Jesus twenty centuries ago, 'Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest,' is reiterated today in the Christian Science text-book, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science. It comes with healing in its wings, revealing the sacred mission of Christ Jesus, to teach and to demonstrate the lesson of divine love.

KEEP COMMANDMENTS.

"Mrs. Eddy's teachings have thrown so much light upon the life and mission of the great Savior of men that the whole world rises to call her blessed. She says in substance to her followers: 'If you profess to love Him, keep His commandments.' Then she explains, in unmistakable terms, how we are to prove our obedience.

"When once asked whether she believed in the atonement of Christ, she replied: 'I do; and this atonement becomes more to me since it includes man's redemption from sickness as well as from sin. I reverence and adore Christ as never before.'

"What is demonstration in Christian Science? It is the practical proof of God's power and presence, resulting in moral and physical healing. By way of illustration: Suppose that a Christian Scientist reads in the morning papers that some dreaded plague is about to make its appearance in his community; that it has elsewhere already claimed its thousands of victims, and that materia medica is unable to cope with it. What does he do? He instantly refuses to accept sense testimony by striving to realize that the one mind, God, is ever present and all-powerful and governs the entire universe in perpetual peace and harmony; consequently, that there are in reality no evil minds to believe in disease nor to fear it; that there is really no evil power to mesmerize anyone into believing what is untrue. He knows that divine love is supreme; that it casts out all fear. He persists in abiding in this secret place of the omnipotence and omnipresence of good; and what is the result? He remains fearless and strong; he escapes the devastating scourge himself and he helps many others to recognize the nothingness of fear and hypnotic suggestion. This is Immanuel, 'God with us,' or demonstration. It is religion made practical.

SCIENCE TREATMENT.

"Treatment in Christian Science means doing something for the sick according to an understood principle instead of experimenting upon them with poisonous drugs and then waiting for days, weeks and sometimes for months to see whether they get well.

"When all manner of diseases are healed in a few Christian Science treatments, and fear and sin are destroyed, does this not prove that intelligent action has been taken in behalf of the afflicted?

"From various quarters there comes the amazing assertion that Christian Science treatment is nothing but human suggestion. Anyone who knows how to give a scientific treatment, knows that suggestion pays no part in it. When one learns how the sick are healed in Christian Science, one will neither advocate nor make use of hypnotic suggestion in any form. The only healing power is divine love, and the vitality and warmth of divine love could not be imparted through suggestion. Suggestion is the child of self-will; it is a lawless human make-believe, which neither heals nor blesses.

"The seething conflict between capital and labor is largely an exhibition of human selfishness, due to false standards of education. If the world's educational institutions could be founded upon the Christ, Truth, instead of upon belief in intelligent matter, there would sooner be a race of people, whose only aim in life would be to understand and to do the will of God; to live a life of Christian service."

WHO'S WHO AT THE CITY HALL.

Being Frivolous Facts About the Men Who Are Active in the Los Angeles City Government.

Oh, it's me for the life on the bounding main,
A sailor bold I'd be,
On the briny wet, I'll venture yet.
Yo, ho! Yo, ho! for the salty sea.

Frederick C. Langdon sat in his seat in the City Council and hummed these lines to himself, preserving meanwhile his calm, placid exterior, which is a most un-sea doggish exterior, to say the least.

And thus, "Who's Who" brings to light new facts in the lives of our city officials, for one would never dream that Councilman Langdon hankered for the sea, unless one had probed deep into the yearnings of the Westlake district Councilman.

Councilman Langdon began life, prosaically, enough, as a dentist. And as he hammered and sawed and yanked and pulled at reluctant molars, while the poor cuss in the chair groaned and writhed and squirmed, Dr. Langdon, with a far-away look in his eyes, would imagine himself down on the Spanish Main with Capt. Kidd and Buccaneer Morgan, and would inhale a chant or two along these lines:

"Fifteen men on the Dead Man's Chest—
Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum!
Drink and the devil had done for the rest—

The doctor soon saw that dentistry was not getting him very near life on the ocean wave, so he went into politics, planning to sneak up on a maritime career and grab off something nautical and at the same time profitable and political. He is now serving his fifth term in the City Council, and although much of his time has been devoted to uninteresting duties such as street improvements, he has always edged nearer and nearer to his sea waterish ambitions, and finally landed as the chairman of the Harbor Committee.

When he got this job, he breathed softly a couple of "Avast there, men! Up with the spinnaker boom," quotations from the quarter deck, and went right down to Los Angeles Harbor to study ships, docks, wharves, barnacles, submarines, lighthouses and other deep water stuff. You see he was edging toward his desires. Next came his famous voyage to Catalina Island, of which the less said the better, for the Councilman found that a pair of sea legs was one of the requirements of a true sailor, and that if he were to go to sea permanently he must be able to eat regularly, while on the Catalina trip—well, as we said, the less said the better.

The Councilman, on his return, practiced eating dinner while standing on his head, and also went boating at Westlake Park, and he was soon ready for a trip to San Francisco on the liner Yale. Did the Councilman find his sea legs and improved digestive apparatus on that trip? He did! Neptune's son had come into his own! He was ready for the next step. And so the Councilman, in his mild fashion, harked a couple of barks to Washington that he would not be insulted if he were offered the position of collector of the Port of Los Angeles, and he is waiting, waiting, waiting, for word from President Harding that he may resign and move to the seat now occupied by Collector Elliott.

If Councilman Langdon becomes Collector Langdon, it will be a great day in the Langdon family history, for as collector, the doctor can go down to the port at any time he desires and have a perfectly lovely time. He will be received, as he calls on the admiral of the Pacific Fleet, with ruffles of drums and flourishes of trumpets, and he can pace the bridge with the admiral, and talk knowingly of anchorages, bilgewater, marlinspikes, and other topics dear to the heart of followers of the sea. There is the only one fault Dr. Langdon has to find with the job of Collector of the Port. While as collector he will have all kinds of authority over mere captains and admirals, the collector has not as yet clothed his power with a dazzling uniform of blue broadcloth embellished, garnished with gold lace and buttons. The doctor has some ideas on the neglect of previous collectors in not appreciating their opportunities along these lines, and is just waiting, waiting, for word from Washington before he starts in. When the word does come, then watch the doctor's smoke!

SEEK GEM WORTH FORTUNE.

Police started a search yesterday for a costly black diamond stolen from the Edwin R. Pearce mansion, 430 South Westmoreland avenue, last spring, as a sequel to the recovery of $100,000 worth of stolen furs and the exposure of a desperate gang of burglars.

Detectives Sergeants Herman Cline, William Cahill and Cato, who uncovered the asserted "fur thieves' syndicate," believe that members of the gang looted the Pearce home. The identity of several of the criminals has been learned and arrests are expected.

Heirlooms, antiques and bric-a-brac valued at $30,000 were taken from Mr. Pearce after he and his Chinese servant, Charlie Chung, had been bound and gagged. Included in the loot was a marvelous black diamond of two and a half carats, valued at more than $3000.

The fur recovery came last week after months of investigation. Two men were arrested on charges of receiving stolen property, but the men who rifled local fur shops have thus far managed to escape the police dragnet, although they are known.

Joseph Rosengarten, proprietor of the Bear Fur Shop, Seventh and Hope streets, and Samuel Jacobson, wholesale dealer, 424 South Broadway, were arrested on charges of receiving stolen goods in the fur case. They are out on $4000 bail each.

The Neuman Fur Company, 134 South Western avenue, identified $30,000 worth of furs stolen on the night of May 14, 1921. Police are sanguine of recovering other furs valued at $150,000 stolen in six big local robberies during the last six months.

Christmas Fund Gifts Are Urged for City's Poor.

Requests for gifts and contributions to be distributed among the needy families of Los Angeles on Christmas have been made by the Council of Community Service. The council has the indorsement of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Social Service Commission, according to the letters sent out by the committee in charge of Christmas fund.

The subscriptions will go 100 per cent for charity, it is stated, and City Auditor Myers is treasurer of the fund. Checks should be mailed to the Council of Community Service headquarters, 215 Coulter Building.

"Please be as generous as possible," the letters read, "for the calls for clothing, food, blankets, etc., are greater than ever before."

STATUE OF SAVIOR IS VIEWED BY MANY.

DEDICATION OF FIGURE AT ST. BASIL'S CHURCH ATTRACTS THRONG.

Dedicated with prayer and song, and blessed by Rev. William Hughes, the life-sized statue of the Christ, recently installed at St. Basil's Church, was viewed last night by nearly 1000 persons. In the audience were Francisco Espana and Francisco Cervantes, the sculptors, who labored for three months at carving the statue from a single block of wood. As they gazed upon their completed work, with reverence for Him. It represents, it seemed to them the benign face of the Master suddenly lighted with a smile.

Standing upon an exalted pedestal, to the right of the altar, this remarkable figure, from an artistic standpoint alone, challenges the admiration of every beholder. The appealing face is the handiwork of Mr. Espana, the hands were wrought by Mr. Cervantes, while the marvelously carved form and sweeping robe were formed by the two artists in co-operation. The delicate painting is the product of Signore Alfredo Orselli, who also designed the mural paintings at St. Basil's Church.

The statue was made under the direction of Ross Montgomery, the wood was donated by D. J. Cahill and the expense of the work was borne by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Grant. In connection with the services last night was the blessing of [illegible] Hughes, of a beautiful [illegible] sanctuary lamp, [illegible] church by Mrs. J. P. RADIOS.

HAS HECTIC TRIANGLE.

COMEDY PLEASES IN "DON'T TELL EVERYTHING."

By Edwin Schallert.

There are two pairs of shoes under the bed at the finish, by which we take it that the ending of "Don't Tell Everything"—the latest ebullition of domesticity on the screen—is happy. You can see both pairs of shoes (at least on the screen) and the photoplay at Grauman's Rialto Theater. In some respects the shoes are much better than the picture.

"Don't Tell Everything" is really a sort of hectic farce. It's about a polo player who marries a a spoiled child of the rich—a perfectly plausible match. However, the ceremony is performed secretly, which, under the excellent social circumstances, isn't so likely, and there follows a theatrical row between husband and wife which causes hubby to dash away to a hunting lodge to spend his honeymoon with an old "pal," feminine gender.

If the picture were played in the farce key it would be more plausible than it is at the comedy-drama tempo that is maintained. However, much of it pleases the audience. The subtitles are clever, and the situations rather ingenious, though utterly foolish.

The maxim, "Don't Tell Everything," is settled neither one way or the other by the trend of developments—but the effect created by the husband's efforts to keep his wife in the dark regarding his somewhat rosy past, furnishes considerable amusement, particularly to the male members of the audience.

The picture echoes Cecil De Mille's "Affairs of Anatol" in presenting Wallace Reid and Gloria Swanson in the roles of husband and wife, and Elliott Dexter as the bachelor friend. Mr. Reid is thoroughly agreeable as the vapid polo player and sportsman, while Miss Swanson poses very alluringly in a number of handsome gowns as the equally vapid wife. Dexter does much with nothing. Dorothy Cumming gives a portrayal of the siren, who uses strong-arm methods.

Though its basis is cheap sex sensationalism, "Don't Tell Everything" will probably pass as entertaining because of its comedy.

More to the liking of the seeker of something worth while will be the interesting depicting on the screen of the manner in which Burne-Jones, the English painter, was inspired to do "The Beggar Maid."

Jan Rubini manifests virtuosity in violin numbers that is warmly applauded.

"LOVE CHARM" LEAVES MUCH TO IMAGINATION

There is hokum that gets over, and hokum that does not. The particular brand out of which "The Love Charm," running this week at Clune's Broadway Theater, has been manufactured is largely of the latter sort.

We have an all too-innocent country girl, played by Wanda Hawley, who makes up her mind to win Thomas Morgan, "the youngest bank president in the United States." She decides to apply modern psychology, ascertaining just what type of woman he will care for, and then playing that role. This strikes one, to say the least, as hardly a modern resolution. But worse is to follow.

Finding out that Thomas is a very old-fashioned young man, Ruth Sheldon, the country girl, dresses herself in the style of a bygone day and is on hand when, providentially, the young banker comes to call on her cousin.

Where the old-fashioned clothes came from is an unexplained mystery, for Ruth arrived on the scene with only one dress and a milliner's dummy, but she has them and they look expensive despite their lack of style.

Thomas falls at once, and in the thick of things the cousin, who is a vampish sort of person, returns unexpectedly. She warns Ruth to leave her prey alone. Ruth, it seems, had not known that cousin really wanted Thomas. She now decides to withdraw from the action, and to this end a party is framed up, whereat Ruth appears in a costume which would be darning on the Montmartre, and disports herself in a fashion that would not be tolerated even there.

Where she got her second outfit and her cabaret manners is another insoluble mystery. But, of course, Thomas is disgusted and leaves. Then cousin's suitor does a little eavesdropping, discovers the frame-up, and takes a hand chiefly composed of jokers.

Of course, it all ends as it should. Ruth is again the coy violet, Thomas wakes up to the fact that he is a bit slow, resurrects some up-to-date clothes (another mystery) and the last fade-out is strictly orthodox.

If you can believe all this without pain, you will find "The Love Charm" an attraction. If you cannot, the only charm will be Wanda Hawley's—in spots.

WILL SHAKESPEARE HERO OF DRAMA.

"Will O' Bishopsgate," an original play by Alfred Brand of Pasadena, based on the life of Shakespeare, will have its "first time on any stage," at the Pasadena Community Playhouse, next Monday night. This promises to be one of the big events of the year, dramatically speaking, in the Crown City.

The play will be produced under the direction of Gilmor Brown, who will also enact the role of Shakespeare. Opposite him will be Helen Jerome Eddy of Hollywood, who will play Mary Fitton, "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets." This will be Miss Eddy's first appearance with the Pasadena Players, though she has often appeared with the Hollywood volunteers.

Miss Louise Crawford has been cast for Anne Shakespeare. William Reis, Jr., who appeared with the Symphony Players in Detroit this summer, will be seen in "Will O' Bishopsgate." Others in the cast are Samuel G. McMeen, Lawrence M. Jones, William Griffith, Jr., and Jackson Kendall.

"Will O' Bishopsgate" won honorable mention in the play contest held last year by Pasadena Center of the Drama League. In token of this fact the first performance will be Drama League night in the playhouse. Mr. Brand, the author, has several one-act plays to his credit.

FLASHES.

POLA NEGRI BRILLIANT IN "ONE ARABIAN NIGHT."

By Grace Kingsley.

Never was Arabian night, even in midsummer, warmer than "One Arabian Night," which opened at the Kinema yesterday with that torrid bambina, Pola Negri, as the star!

The colorful story of "Sumurun" has been told, written, dramtized, pantomimed and danced. Now it is brilliantly picturised by the same foreign firm which made "Passion," "Deception" and others.

Personally, though, I believe it has been a bit doctored by the American distributors who bought it. Which makes me wonder why we're letting the Germans get away with these costume plays, instead of making them ourselves.

It defies all the conventions, both censorial and technical, does "One Arabian Night,' yet perhaps because of the first and certainly in spite of the second, it remains transcendentally fascinating entertainment.

Its action is free, swift, natural, vigorous, if sometimes pretty wild; it is beautifully spectacular; it has none of the wearisome pausing and posing over one thought that is the bane of so many films. Perhaps the secret charm of these foreign films is that the characters act as people feel!

In the vividness as well as the voluptuousness of treatment this hectic tale of the loves of the harem lady, the merchant, the dancing girl the hunchback and the sheik in its form reminds one of the brilliant pantomimic dance production which Gertrude Hoffman made of the tale.

But it has a thousand touches of by-play that make for realism. You are whirled from one fervid moment to another. The story has many forms.

This one ends with the sheik's wife fleeing the palace with her lover after the sheik's death, but with the ill-fated dancing girl stabbed by the sheik, after which her deformed lover plaintively wails his broken-hearted love song to the sound of his lute back in the old, squalid haunts where he and the dancing girl had played their shows for the dirty, ill-kept neighborhood.

The witchery of Pola Negri is heightened, if anything, in this role of the dancing girl. You sit breathless at her voluptuous daring, yet somehow unshocked, for she manages always an elfin touch that is disarming, as though she belonged to another order of beings.

Her freedom and naturalness, her vital fascination, her flexibility of mood remain as amazing, as intriguing as ever. Her experience as a dancer will, of course, account for her grace of movement.

The player of the hunchback's role, Ernest Lubitsch, the director, shares honors with the star. His depth of mood, the poignant quality of his power, are impressive. Like the work of an American girl is the vivacity of the characterization of the actress who portrays Haidee. She is the same actress who played Jane Seymour in "Deception," and bears a very great, almost a suspicious likeness, to Ann Forrest. She is delightful as the harum-scarum of the harem, and the brightness of her work dispels the tragic tone in more than one scene.

Not that the tragedy is heavy. It is, as stated above, more the tragedy of the pantomime, which does not linger over its woes, but hastens on with its action. Moreover there are hundreds of lightening touches. Some of these touches are grotesque, some of them are almost incongruous, as, at the end, when the Sheik passes and everybody scatters, the effect is almost that of comedy.

There are some scenes that will not soon pass from your memory. Among these is the wild lure of Pola Negri in the episode with the merchant; later her light-hearted acceptance of the Sheik in his bedroom; but, most of all, perhaps, that last scene with her hunchbacked lover, whom she has despised, but who, having slain the Sheik after the Sheik has stabbed his love, caresses her body brokenheartedly as she dies in his arms.

How to get by the censors? Make it abroad, would seem to be the answer.

"CUP OF LIFE" HAS CHARMS AT LOEW'S.

Some time, no doubt, somebody will make a real study of the Chinese, and present him with all his faults and virtues, his traditions and his vices, his true inwardness. But just at present the idea of a Chinese is a man who grins a crafty grin, rubs his hands and thinks up original mechanical devices for trapping and destroying his enemies. A Chinese set has lots of cute little Billikin-like gods sitting around, together with a couple of vases in the background, and a Turkish cozy corner somewhere in the picture.

There's always a white girl whom the Chinese has adopted, and he tries to marry her to an ugly Chinese. There are lots of good-looking, attractive young Chinese, but this doesn't suit the old Chink, even though he does like the girl. Then the girl meets a nice white young man, there are stabbing frays in dark rooms, and the girl is carried off by the white man. Wish I could see her remain and fulfill her destiny with the Chinese, some time. There'd be a play, if you like!

The above formula has not been departed from in "The Cup of Life," at Loew's this week. It is, to be sure, tobasaced by Hobart Bosworth, an old salt, shiver my timbers! Bosworth never has gotten away from "The Sea Wolf." Bosworth tells the Chink in question that if he doesn't let the white boy marry the white girl he'll make him come on his ship, damn his eyes, as the cook! That settles the old chink. I don't know why he gave in after the big row any more than before, the logic of picture stories being past finding out. And the last we see of the doughty and stalwart Bosworth he's sailing his ship through a wintry sea stripped to the waist, with his hairy, manly chest exposed to the breezes, yo, ho, and a bottle of rum!

The vaudeville bill is clean, snappy and pleasing.

"GOLEM" TO SHOW TODAY.

"The Golem," in conjunction with the continued engagement of Max Fisher and his Follies orchestra, and numerous other presentations by Sid Grauman, will open at Grauman's Theater today.

SOUTH SEA INTRIGUE.

If you're a Pauline Frederick fan, and it's pretty sure you are, you may be lured to the California this week. And if you merely want to see Pauline, well and good. But if you expect to see your favorite in a play that is worthy of her talents, you're going to be greatly disappointed, I fear.

"The Lure of Jade" is the name of the picture and tempts one to pun on "the lure of the jade." For the heroine certainly did seem to have a lure for everybody who came near her. But she stayed true to her first love and went to the South Sea Islands, exact location airily ignored by author, where she started some sort of a gambling joint, but remained chemically pure herself.

However, being good probably was an awful strain on her, for she developed an ingrowing bitterness toward her old enemy, the lady who had spoiled her life at home by tattling when she saw the girl jump out of a gentleman's apartment window at night. So she decided to fix her when said lady and her husband came down to the South Sea Islands. She sic-ed a he-vamp on her and then betrayed her to her husband.

But fate mixed things up so that the woman's son killed a man. Then the author sends the heroine away, once more, and the last we see of her she's trundling along in a little cart. She even has a "misery cloak," such as they used to wear in the old melodramas, which she swathes around her head!

It's just as if the author said, "Well, I've got everybody all balled up. Now get them out of the mess if you can!"

"The Lure of Jade" is dreary, without being in the least real; it is complicated, without being ingenious; it is superficially tragic, without the least humanness. What's the use to talk about the players? They did as well as they could with the poor thing.

A Carli D. Elinor score helped out a little, and a Christie comedy lightened up the bill.

MISSIONS COP THE BIG END.

Win Opener from the Angels and Get a Tie.

Thrills Reserved for Last of Ninth Inning.

Baseball Boys Have Trouble With Black Specs.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Harry Heilman's modernized, steam-heated Missions were the only warm things in the California Winter League yesterday.

They won the opening game of Sunday's double-header from the Angels, 8 to 7, therefore, copping the series, four games to three, the final combat being called in the fifth on account of darkness with the teams deadlocked at 4 all.

RESERVED THRILLS

Most of the thrills were reserved for the last inning of each combat. Los Angeles swung into the ninth of the opener two runs to the bad, and Loverens was yanked by Heilman after passing the first two. Fasth being given the tough finishing-up job. The Angels got one of these runners across without a hit, had another man caught at the plate and there were still two on bases when Siglin sprinted back and caught Cox's towering fly for the final out just as he fell into Heilman's encircling arms.

Los Angeles leading, 4 to 3, in the second game, when Hornsby started the fifth by making one of his rare errors, a low throw on a difficult chance. This, with Kamm's bunt, Miller's single and Sheely's sacrifice fly, tied the score, and it remained this way as the Angels could get nothing in their half, and darkness mercifully ended the aerial struggle at the finish of the fifth. In fact, the last two innings resembled shortly after sunset in Sweden, where it lasts six months, and it has been so long since Beans Reardon left that country that calling balls and strikes in the dark doesn't conform to his ideas of sport. Says next time he officiates in a double-header he is going to hold a flash light in his hand and wear a coal-oil torch on his cap.

NO SUCCESS.

Hornsby had no success with his pinch-hitters, two of them whiffing and another hitting into a double play.

As an aftermath of Saturday's trouble-torn game, it develops that Hornsby contested it on two counts. Firstly, because Heilman put on a uniform and got into the game after being ordered off the bench because in civilian clothes in the fourth, and secondly, because the Missions scored a run in the eighth while the field umpire was absent.

"I saw a bootlegger near the Mission bench, and went over to chase him off," explained Umpire Toman. While Toman was doing this, Compton drove O'Doul in from second with a double. Our bootleggers should change their office hours so as to not interfere with the great national pastime.

Some of the boys had trouble with their batting because of the black spots which floated in front of their eyes. These black specks were due to biliousness caused by overeating on Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving, like the war, left a lot of us dizzy. Some of the athletes swung at these black spots, thinking they were a flock of baseballs, and as a result the batting billious averages were high.

PETE SEES BLACK.

Out in left field, Pete Compton looked up and saw a black speck high over his head, and made a wonderful one-handed running catch of it, believing it to be the ball. It was the most spectacular catch of the season, and stamps Pete as one of our most billous athletes for the time being.

Hank O'Day sat in a box, and kept fanning the elusive black specks away from his face with his right mitt. Hank thought the specks were a flock of Jersey skeeters, which he is accustomed to combatting when umpiring in New York.

There were so many billous specks buzzing around inside of Umpire Toman's mask that he thought he had put on a cageful of bees by mistake. Mr. Toman has gone back to corn beef and cabbage, and hopes soon to be a well man again with a vision as clear as his conscience, and his chin as free from grease as his immortal soul is of sin.

Harry Heilman didn't wait until the fourth inning to change his clothes this time. Changing his clothes almost caused a riot on Saturday. The world has seen bread riots and babies have been known to do acts of violence during the milk mobs, especially following the Galveston flood, when there was more than the usual amount of water in the milk, but this was the world's first haberdashery riot. The sight of Mr. Heilman changing a clean shirt for a dirty one inflamed the public mind, and caused a wave of protest to sweep the cash customers.

So in order to prevent a sartorial scandal, Mr. Heilman appeared in his work clothes right at the start.

WINTER SEASON ALMOST OVER.

Los Angeles and Vernon will clash tomorrow in the opening game of the last long series of the California Winter League. This will be followed by a three-game series between San Francisco and Vernon here, with Los Angeles and the Missions in the north. Then will come the play-off between the leading team and the runner-up for a $3000 purse. Right now it looks as though the Tigers and Missions would tangle in this final money series.

LA BARBA AND MARKS TO TANGLE.

Will Feature Fancy Card of Bouts at Newsboys' Program.

Another of the splendid newsboys' boxing contests will be held at Foresters' Hall, 246 S. Hill street, tomorrow night. This card of events is scheduled to outdo all of the previous fight cards put on by the local newsies. Carlo Curtis is the promoter.

In the main event Fidel La Barba, the newsboy champ and 100-pound bantamweight champ of the Pacific Coast, will battle Benny Marks, the brother of the Vernon favorite, Georgie Marks. These two lads were donated to the program of scraps by the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

The other bouts will be as follows: Kid Chili vs. Young Red in the semi-wind-up; Battling Hen vs. Young Felix; Rocky Kansas vs. Benny Leonard; Young Hymil vs. Irish Kilbane; Dynamite Kelly vs. Dutch Miller; Perry Mack vs. The Whistler; Harry Mackey vs. George Adams; Ted Silva vs. Jimmy Griffith. There will also be a battle royal. Jack Davis and Tony Geyer will entertain the boys with songs, and Prof. Signor Procasi will preside at the piano.

GRID DEATHS THIRTEEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Football claimed thirteen victims during the 1921 season, which closed with Thanksgiving Day games, according to reports to the Associated Press today.

The death list was the same as 1920, and six above the toll of two years ago. Ten lives were lost as the result of games in 1918, twelve in 1917, eighteen in 1916, and fifteen in 1915.

As in former years, the majority of youths killed were members of high school teams. The figures apparently uphold the contention of football experts that proper training and physical condition greatly minimize the danger of the game, for only one of the players killed was a member of a college team. One was a semiprofessional player, one a member of a naval team, and the remainder were high school or sand-lot players.

With one exception none of the victims was more than 20 years old.

Waldo Menkel, 22, quarterback of the Mounds (Okla.) football team, died last night of injuries in a Thanksgiving Day football game.

"Sim" Barber, captain of Abilene (Kan.) High School team, died November 7 of injuries received November 3.

Charles Breewood, Kansas City (Kan.) high school player, died early in the season as result of internal injuries received in practice.

KILLEFER TO TALK TERMS.

Red Killefer, manager of the Los Angeles club last season, will leave for Buffalo today to attend the annual minor league meeting. While in the East, Killefer will talk over terms with Owner Wrigley of the Angels on the assumption that he is in line for the position next year. It is not known that Killefer is a holdout, but he wants to discuss terms with his employer, and probably will ask for more money than was called for in his contract with Powers, on the strength of winning the pennant last season.

MAKE WAY FOR THE COUGARS.

Aggies Step Aside for the W.S.C. Crowd.

Pullman Football Boys Move in Tomorrow.

Will be Favorites Over the Trojans Saturday.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

The Aggies left Pasadena yesterday and the Washington State boys will step in tomorrow. Better to best seems to be the order of succession. Washington State cleaned up on everybody this year except California, and held the Bears to a 14-to-0 score. The Aggies couldn't beat any of the college teams except Baggy Bagshaw's lowly University of Washington crew, 24 to 0.

U.S.C. lost to California, 33 to 7, so the Cougars will be big favorites in the betting when they clash with the Trojans at Tournament Park next Saturday.

From what the Northwest sharps say, the Cougars will be stronger than when they tangled with the Bears. On that particular day little Moe Sax, quarterback, sat on the bench. Sax was able and willing to play, but because of his race didn't get a chance to show.

Since then Sax has starred in every game the Washington State eleven has played. He led his men to victory over the Aggies and in the game against the Sundodgers last Thanksgiving Day his speed demoralized Bagshaw's boys, and the Cougars scored two touchdowns in the first quarter.

Sax is the spinal column of the Pullman attack, and he is the man U.S.C. will have to watch with all eyes.

They're crying for Dik Rutherford's scalp up Corvallis-way because the Aggies started out this year like a Rolls-Royce and ended up in the flivver class.

For some reason or other Aggie coaches never last very long. In fact changes are so frequent one is led to believe that it can't all be the fault of the tutors. There must be strife somewhere in the internal organization. Rutherford may have assistant coaches who are pulling cross-currents with him, or some such trouble.

A lot of folks were surprised at the extraordinary amount of pep Swede Evans showed Saturday. He not only blocked the kick that resulted in U.S.C.'s only touchdown but on several occasions broke through the line and threw Aggie runners for severe losses. The Swede had his fighting dander up.

It was fine sportsmanship to see Miller of the Aggies bring Tiernan down with a hard tackle for a four-yard loss in the last period, help him to his feet and pat him on the back. Both boys were members of the State champion Long Beach High eleven of 1919. Chet Dolley, Trojan signal caller, was also on that team.

The Trojans didn't come out of the Aggie game in any too good shape. Hester had an elbow twisted out of joint, and Fat Calland received a groin injury that's liable to keep him off the field for several days.

Says Lenglen Doesn't Know How to Lose.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Capt. A. R. De Joannis, who accompanied Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis player, to the United States last summer, has resigned as vice-president of the French Tennis Federation, and also as a member.

He resigned in protest against the federation's "order of the day" published today, blaming directors of the "United States Lawn Tennis Association for unjustified commentaries on the sporting spirit of Mlle. Lenglen."

His resignation is the climax of a controversy that has been going on inside the federation since the return to France of Mlle. Lenglen. He was accused of having urged the French player "to engage in tennis matches while physically unfit.

"Mlle. Lenglen," he said, "was fit when she met Mrs. Mallory at Forest Hills. She was defeated by a player who on that date showed a better brand of tennis.

"I shook hands with Mlle. Lenglen before she entered the court. Her hand was cool and pulse normal. She only commenced coughing after having lost several games. I blame her for refusing to continue when I could have obtained a recess. Suzanne's attacks against the United States lawn tennis officials and the United States are unwarranted. She was received like a little queen and treated with the utmost courtesy. Her every whim and mood was satisfied.

"She knows how to win, but she does not know how to lose gracefully. She placed the personality of Suzanne before the good name of the sporting world of her country, and could not face defeat."

Look Him Over Carefully.

May be Hero of Next Saturday's Game.

Here we have little Moe Sax, quarterback of the Washington State football team, who has been setting the Northwest football world on fire by his speed and wonderful headwork. Sax will arrive in Pasadena tomorrow with the rest of the Cougar eleven to put in some early licks for the game with U.S.C. at Tournament Park next Saturday.

EXPECT COUGARS TO WIN.

Northwest Fans Expect Washington State to Beat U.S.C.—Rutherford May Leave O.A.C.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND, Nov. 27.—With the regular football schedule in the Northwest completed, with the exception of club and intersectional games, the fans will watch closely the outcome of the contest between Washington State College and Southern California in Pasadena next Saturday. The general opinion here is that the Cougars will win, although that does not seem so certain since the Trojans defeated the Oregon Aggies.

Washington State is champion of the Northwest, not having lost a game except to California. Her supporters contend that next to California she has the strongest team on the Coast, basing her superiority over Stanford on the comparative scores of the two schools in their games with California.

SIX VETS TO GO.

The Cougars may be expected to round out their season by playing one of the best games of their season at Pasadena, as the contest will mark the breaking of the present eleven. Six members of the team, including Capt. "Dutch" Dunlap, center, will be playing their last college game. The outlook at Pullman for next year is somewhat uncertain. Besides the loss of these players, the rumors continue that Coach Welch will leave. Welch admitted this possibility when in Portland Saturday, although declaring that if he left it would be an entirely friendly and voluntary withdrawal.

Washington State is not discouraged as to the 1922 outlook, however. Dr. J. F. Bohler, athletic director, has just applied for the use of Multnomah Field, Portland, next Thanksgiving Day. The club will not grant the request unless it is for an intersectional contest or a game of more than ordinary importance. For many years Multnomah Club and the University of Oregon have met on Thanksgiving Day and it is not desired to abandon this custom. Incidentally the Oregon Aggies' game with the Trojans was the last for six members of the squad. Those who have reached the limit of their college football days are Capt. "Gap" Powell, Ted Hayden, Bob Stewart, Christianson, Joe Kasberger and Andy Crowell. Two others, Stanley Summers and Ralph Richert, do not expect to be in school. This will make only a small nucleus of the present team to build on next year. The present year was supposed to be the banner season at O.A.C., and since it has flivvered, there is deep gloom on the Corvallis campus.

AX FOR RUTHERFORD.

As the result of the Aggies' repeated defeats, it is reported that Coach Dick Rutherford is scheduled to go. A movement has already been started among Portland alumni to bring about a change in coaches. They contend that if Rutherford could do nothing last season and this with the wealth of material he had to work with, the outlook for next year is worse than hopeless. In some quarters at Corvallis, however, there is a feeling that the blame for the present situation doesn't rest altogether on the coach. It is known that there has been friction among the players and among the coaches. Issues have been injected that have no place in football and there is a lack of harmony for which Rutherford may or may not be responsible. The situation somewhat resembles the dissension that early last season all but broke up the football team at Washington State College. Little or nothing has been printed in Oregon about the friction at O.A.C., but everyone on the inside knows that it exists and that it is probably the reason the team blew up after getting off to a good start.

WANT TO PLAY HERE.

Two of the minor Northwest colleges, Whitman and Pacific University are seeking post-season games in California. Whitman wants to play St. Mary's College at Walla Walla on New Year's Day with a provision that a return game be played at Oakland next year. The Walla Walla school has an unusually good record this year, having beaten the University of Idaho, 13 to 3, and otherwise came through with flying colors. St. Mary's was after a game with Whitman earlier in the fall, but none was arranged.

Pacific University, which has beaten all of the nonconference teams in Oregon, as well as the University of Puget Sound at Tacoma, would like to play Occidental or Whittier. Negotiations are on for this contest, which will be played in Southern California, if at all.

IMPORT "CUSHION" GRASS.

Here is something worth watching, especially by baseball folks.

Albert Conrad and George N. Gray, gardeners for William Wrigley, Jr., have imported what is known as "cushion" grass from Australia for the new baseball plant at Catalina, where the Chicago Cubs will train.

So far, no grass has yet been found which will successfully withstand the wear and tear of baseball. Major league club owners have even gone so far as to send to Ireland for their sod, in order to produce an approximately perfect diamond. Conrad and Gray believe the Australian grass will be successful, and clubowners all over the country will be watching the experiment.

The new grounds comprise three acres and a trifle, and this week work will be started on the grand stand and bleachers under direction of Pat Brown and his force of island carpenters. Pat, as a builder, is said to rank second only to the Pharaohs, and that includes the entire Pharaoh family. President Patrick states that the first contingent of Cubs will arrive from Chicago the first week in February. He also says the Angels may do part of their training at Catalina.

ERTLE IS TO MEET NEW YORK BOXER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Nov. 27.—Johnny "Kewpie" Ertle, St. Paul bantamweight boxer, will meet Billy Marlowe of New York, at Madison Square Garden, N. Y., in a fifteen-round bout, December 16. Johnny Buff, bantam champion, has promised Ertle a chance at the title if he receive the judges' verdict over Marlowe.

DUE TO MAKE MILLER HUMP.

Pinky Gardner Shows Class in Early Workouts.

Eastern Grappler Trains at L.A.A.C. Gym.

Bout Thursday for Title to be a Thriller.

The fans who saw Pinky Gardner get busy in the Los Angeles Athletic Club gym within an hour after his arrival in the city Saturday were delighted with his physique and personality and predicted that he will make Walter Miller hump himself Thursday night. At that time the young eastern grappler will tackle the middleweight champion for the title, and he's very much in earnest about annexing it. The battle will be fought at the Athletic Club.

Gardner, a clean-cut youngster of charming personality and surprising muscular development, looks the part of a great wrestler and has demonstrated that he ranks with the best. He is instructor in Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., has been a professional six years, and has trimmed about all comers, including the brightest eastern mat stars. Joe Turner, Rentrop, Preen Irslinger and scores of others have succumbed to his amazing combination holds—holds which none of the others ever have been able to get next to and employ successfully. He may slip something different over on the L.A.A.C. instructor. He has strength, speed and science and is good for all the hard knocks that can come along. It'll be a real finish match.

The easterner is 26 years old, He weighs 161 pounds and must knock off three pounds by noon Thursday, for which he says he will be all the better. He is in fine shape and hasn't lost a match in several years, a report that he had been defeated in Little Rock ten days ago to the contrary notwithstanding. On his way through that place Gardner was urged to put on an exhibition with Rentrop at a fair to boost the game and please the sports, and they did so gratis. When the time was up they quit. There was no defeat and no decision. Gardner will show the fans the real thing Thursday night, and Miller will have to extend himself. That is the prediction of the wise ones who watched him work yesterday. He will be in the L.A.A.C. gym daily, about noon, until the match.

Miss Liberty is En Route to California.

Miss Liberty the 2nd, the 62-ft. Great Lakes express cruiser that won the world's championship express cruiser race held in Detroit at the time of the International Harmsworth trophy race this fall, is now in Florida waters, on the first leg of a cruise to California via the Panama Canal.

This cruiser, which is built for heavy weather, has a speed of thirty miles an hour and is about the fastest thing of its kind afloat.

It has luxurious accommodations, three staterooms, crew's quarters, shower baths, hot and cold running water, electric fans, refrigerating system and all the modern luxuries.

It is owned by Humphrey Birge, Buffalo, N. Y., vice-commodore of the Buffalo Yacht Club.

BASKETBALL STARTED AT REDLANDS HIGH.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 27.—Coach Malcom Smith of Redlands High School has put the football appliances away in moth balls for a year and has dug out the basketball paraphernalia, calling his men out for casaba practice tomorrow. Smith was a crack basket-ball player in his college days and he is looking forward to putting out a good team for the high school.

Jackson, Bruce, Sturtevant and several others will be out for places on the team. This year there will be two games around in the Citrus Belt League and the schedule that has been arranged is as follows:

December 16—Pomona at San Bernardino; Riverside at Chaffey.
January 6—San Bernardino at Redlands; Pomona at Riverside.
January 13—Redlands at Pomona; Chaffey at San Bernardino.
January 20—Redlands at Chaffey; San Bernardino at Riverside.
January 27—Chaffey at Pomona; Riverside at Redlands.
February 3—San Bernardino at Pomona; Chaffey at Riverside.
February 10—Redlands at San Bernardino; Riverside at Pomona.
February 17—Pomona at Redlands; San Bernardino at Chaffey.
February 24—Chaffey at Redlands; Riverside at San Bernardino.

Parke Brings in Two Winners at Tijuana Track.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 27.—A big crowd, which included many race-track enthusiasts from out of town, witnessed a splendid program today. Jockey B. Parke, whose riding has been the sensation of the first three days of the meet, brought in two more winners today, when he piloted Smiling Maggie to the front in the second race and brought Teo Breckenridge under the wire first in the feature event of the day, the sixth race, at 1 1-2 miles.

Including today's work, Parke has won nine races in four days. Jockey T. Murray put over two winners today, Ikey T. in the fifth race and Sam Reh in the seventh.

The results:

First race, five and one-half furlongs—Jot Mommand won, Little Jake second, Cloudy Day third. Time 1:09 2-5.

Second race, five and one-half furlongs—Smiling Maggie won, Tillotson second, Early Hour third. Time 1:09 2-5.

Third race, six furlongs—Cafeteria won, Tea Rose second, Our Leader third. Time 1:16 1-5.

Fourth race, five furlongs—C. A. Comstock won, Myrtle A. second, Hugh Angleton third. Time 1:02 4-5.

Fifth race, five and one-fourth furlongs—Sue P. won, Cutfield second, Miss Mischief third. Time 1:08 2-5.

Sixth race, one and one-sixteenth miles—Teo Breckenridge won, Gen. Pike second, George Musshlach third. Time 1:50.

Seventh race, five and one-half furlongs—Sam Reh won, Gen. Agramonte second, Bob Baker third. Time 1:06 4-5.

POMONA SOPHS TIE SAGECHICK ELEVEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLAREMONT, Nov. 27. — The Pomona College freshman and sophomore football teams struggled manfully for two hours here yesterday afternoon in their annual class encounter, and at the end of the four quarters' play the scoreboard stood 3 to 3. It was a titanic battle, players on both sides putting all their strength into the game.

The Sophs drew first blood in the second quarter when diminutive Ron Walker, quarterback, stood on the 20-yard line and booted the ball between the posts from a difficult angle. Not to be outdone, Capt. Roland Clark took matters in his own hands, and just before the half ended kicked a dropkick from the 25-yard line. This ended the scoring for the game.

It was the first tie class game in the last half dozen years.

The line-ups:

Frosh (3.)		Sophs (3.)
Worden	L.E.R.	Harvey (C.)
Barnham	L.T.R.	Case
Haynes	L.G.R.	Maxwell
Kobel	C.	Schroll
Stewart	R.G.L.	Carter
Hodge	R.T.L.	Harris
Draper	R.E.L.	Sabin
Cillingham	Q.	Walker
Rounds	L.H.R.	Dudley
Flesse	R.H.L.	Lesser
Clark (C.)	F.	Collins

Scoring: Touchdown, Walker and Clark. Substitutions: Frosh, Kersey for Worden, Vernon for Draper, Bates for Rounds, Hodgson for Stewart; Sophs, York for Mooney, Bates for De Hitta.

Referee, Banesach; umpire, Whittle; head linesman, "Carnine" Kennedy.

WON'T ENLARGE THE YALE BOWL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 27.—Prof. C. W. Mendell of Yale, chairman of the athletic board of control, said today that the story of enlargement of the bowl to a capacity of 117,000 was a "pipe-dream."

PICKENS IS NAMED MANAGER.

Local Speedway Magnate to Direct Destiny of New Bowl Up North.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—After commuting between San Francisco and Los Angeles for the past three weeks, "Bill" Pickens is presiding permanently over a mahogany desk as general manager of the new $1,000,000 San Francisco speedway which opens on December 11, with a $25,000 international sweepstakes race.

Through an arrangement with President Danziger of the Los Angeles speedway the San Francisco directors secured the services of Pickens, following the Beverly Thanksgiving Day race.

Back in 1903, Bill, Barney Oldfield and Henry Ford, then unknown as a flivver magnate, formed a combination and introduced the manly art of automobile racing in America. Ford built the 999 racing car. Barney drove it with historic success and Bill told the world how thrilling it all was. Oldfield and Pickens came to the Pacific Coast in 1903, staged the first auto races held in California and never forgot which is the right side of the continent. Pickens also directs the destiny of the Uniontown speedway. Barney Oldfield was today named starter of the big race here.

HISTORY OF TENNIS GAME.

Importance of Knowing Fundamentals—Sport Dates Back to Fourteenth Century.

BY CHARLES ROSENBLATT.

(Specially contributed by a student of the game.) Article II.

Although tennis has recently become popular, it is by no means a new game. It dates back to ancient Greece and Rome. Europe has known it at least since the fourteenth century, and even Shakespeare speaks of it (Henry V.) It was patronized by kings and their courts to such an extent that it earned for itself the name of the royal game.

Until a few years ago it was known only to a few. Today it is almost on the same level of the national sports of this and other countries. All over the world tennis is being discussed, not only by individuals, but by governments. Nearly every great nation is competing for that most coveted of all prizes, the Davis cup. They are now preparing for the following international matches, and it needs no prophet to see that the game has a long life before it. Furthermore, it will be played with greater excellence than it ever was before.

Its standard is being raised every day. The champion of tomorrow will play a better game than the champion of today. He will be master of more strokes. And not only that, but he will have a greater knowledge of the art and science of the sport.

It is knowledge that is most important in this game. It is knowledge of what to do, knowing when to do, and why to do, that helps you win. Just let me point out the importance of the game. Let us take a time when one needs them most—on an off day. Now an off day, as every player has experienced, is a day on which everything we do goes wrong. (These days come upon one without the slightest warning and for no apparent reason, except, perhaps, as a reminder from the gods that we poor mortals are far from perfect.)

We simply cannot hit that ball right no matter how we try. Our service, drive, volley, our whole game is gone. That ball seems to have a contrary will to our own, seems to mock at us; and our thoughts, if we express any, are not pleasant to hear. We realize, at last, that we are having an off day, and if we haven't the knowledge to help ourselves, we leave it to the gods and patiently await its passing, which may take days and weeks. Meanwhile, some of us grow superstitious. We carve the racket handle to fit the shape of our hand. We imagine the gut is bad, or the racket itself is badly balanced, or weak in the head (although we played well with it last week.) We are afraid of the sun, wind and everything else. I knew one fellow who cut his racket handle in half because he had long arms. This is what usually happens to those of us who do not know on an off day.

Now, take the fellow who has learned the game, the fundamentals of it at least. He knows very well, gods or no gods, that there is something wrong with him somewhere. He immediately asks himself such questions as: "Am I disregarding the first law of tennis—keep the eye on the ball? Racket correctly? Am I holding my racquet correctly? Is my body in the right position when I hit the ball? Am I meeting my strokes right? Am I meeting the ball with the flat face of the racket when I drive? Is my foreswing impact, and follow-through as they should be?" etc. This fellow will not have a very long off day. It is gone as soon as he realizes his mistake.

Quakers Not Considering More Games.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITTIER, Nov. 27.—With the basketball season practically upon us and still another football game to play with the University of Arizona, December 3, we are not seriously considering other post-season football games," said Coach Perry of Whittier College when interviewed this morning regarding the proposed game between Whittier and Lombard College of Galesburg, Ill. He stated he had no knowledge of the offer, aside from the newspaper reports and when questioned regarding the prospect of such a game, should the offer come to him direct, he stated the prospect would be very remote, the expense of bringing the team to the Coast being prohibitive.

Whittier, however, is one of four colleges being held under consideration by San Diego to meet the Centre College team, December 25 or 26, but no invitation has been issued to the Posts to date.

OVERSEAS ARE STILL LEADING.

Retain First Place by Trimming Pasadena Club, by a Score of 5 to 1.

By defeating the fast Pasadena soccer club at Tournament Park yesterday afternoon 5 to 1, Overseas retained its place at the top of the list, with L. A. Uniteds, who also won their game yesterday, trailing half a game behind. It is more than likely that the leadership will change hands next week, always with the provision of course that the Uniteds can trim the Long Beach team in the playoff of their postponed game. The Overseas will remain idle next Sunday.

In yesterday's game the veterans, while not playing their usual high standard of soccer, were too much for the home team. Pasadena, it is true, was handicapped by the loss of Mintey, right back, who had to retire through injuries early in the game, and the loss proved a serious handicap for them. In the rearrangement of the team to fill the gap, their stinging attack which has marked their previous games was lost. There was too, a noticeable lack of concerted effort on both sides, especially in the first half. The ball was styled too much to make for good soccer. Fortunately this condition did not hold in the second period, and some really fine football was played.

Johnstone, the Pasadena goalkeeper, was clearly off color yesterday. Easy shots were converted into goals through his poor judgment and mishandling. His unsteadiness seemed to have its effect on the defense, and while they put up a dour contest were frequently forced to give way before the battering attacks of the visitors.

Overseas took first count with the game ten minutes gone, when McBeth netted. With the kickoff Pasadena bore down and netted but offside robbed them of the counter. McBeth again scored before the home team was able to penetrate and register. The score stood thus until half time. With the change of ends however the Overseas rode rough shod over their opponents and goals came in quick succession, Elder getting two and McGregor one. Wilkes scored for Pasadena.

The Mercury Club was much too good in the second of the doubleheader at Tournament Park taking the measure of Crown City by a goodly margin. The issue was never in doubt when the Athletic Club scored early in the game. It was simply a matter for the Crown City to keep the score as small as possible. Earle and Price starred while Howarth and Doyle played well. Finnist for the losers displayed excellent form.

As was to be expected the L. A. Uniteds found little trouble in winning from the Rangers at Exposition Park. The final score was 7 to 0, the counters being made by Elliott and Benton.

AUTO THIEVES GET NINE CARS.

REST CAMP FOR WAR VETERANS.

Foothill Ranch Given Over to Disabled Soldiers.

Railroad Official is to be Buried at Pasadena.

Crown City Odd Fellows Plan Big Meeting.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Nov. 27.—Many persons from Los Angeles, Pasadena and surrounding towns attended the opening and flag-raising at the new Rest Camp of the Disabled Veterans of the World War at the Giddings ranch in the foothills at the head of Lincoln avenue, today.

Use of the ranch as a rest camp for the veterans has been donated by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Giddings of Pasadena for a long term of years. Today marked the formal opening of the institution, which has been in the course of preparation for some time.

Among those who took part in the opening and flag-raising exercises were L. Bouter, state president of the disabled veterans; Dr Lloyd Mace of Los Angeles, J. H. Pearman, Mrs. Esther Smith, patriotic instructor of the Women's Relief Corps here; Grace Brown, grand-daughter of the donors; Dr. Robert Freeman of Pasadena Presbyterian Church, and the Fife and Drum Corps of John R. Godfrey Post, Pasadena, of the Grand Army of the Republic.

WILL BE BURIED HERE.

The body of H. C. Storey, assistant superintendent of the Albuquerque division of the Santa Fe Railroad, funeral services for whom were held today at Prescott, Ariz., will be brought to Pasadena for burial. Mr. Storey was one of the five Santa Fe operating officials killed at Wickenburg, Ariz., last week when a motor inspection car jumped the track. Mr. Storey's family has been residing here for some time, though Mr. Storey's railroad headquarters was in Prescott. The family and members of the Lake Avenue Methodist Church of this city.

I.O.O.F. BANQUET.

The Crown City Lodges of the Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs will hold a big banquet at the I.O.O.F. Temple December 5 for the benefit of the I.O.O.F. Orphans' Home at Gilroy.

Dr. Leslie E. Learned is announced as the toastmaster and Dr. John Marvin Dean, the new pastor of the First Baptist Church, as the principal speaker.

MACHINE GUN UNIT.

Pasadena's new National Guard Company has been changed from an infantry unit to a machine gun company, according to orders received by Capt. W. R. Jackson commanding officer of the company, from Adjt.-Gen. J. J. Borree.

The change will not, however affect the unit's regiment. It will be still in the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, being a part of the machine gun battalion which will be a part of that organization.

The company is to be equipped with four Browning machine guns.

INDIANS HAVE OWN CODE OF MORALS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 27.—Strange customs bordering on free love, existing among the Indians at Needles, and apparently sanctioned by those in authority in the Indians' service, has been brought to light through information developed in an action in the Superior Court when Judge R. B. Goodcell refused to commit Winfield Scott, an Indian, to jail.

It was brought out that Mrs. Edna Vannormand Fowler, Indian service officer, had permitted a moral code to be observed by the Indians that is contrary to the laws of the State.

A letter from Mrs. Fowler was submitted to the court in which she said that she had had "eighteen such divorces and remarriages since I came here in 1918, and the scheme has always worked out spendidly until the present case."

She outlined that with the consent of her superior officials she had permitted Indians to assume marital relations after an interlocutory decree with other members of the tribe and when the final decree was granted would have a marriage ceremony performed.

In the case of Scott he left his wife, Maude Harrison, for Annie Thomas, a young girl. He secured an interlocutory decree and now the Thomas girl is about to become a mother, but he has left her for still another squaw, Verne Brether.

Mrs. Fowler, the Indian Agent, said she thought that an example should be made of him by committing him to jail.

But the court refused in the light of the information contained in Mrs. Fowler's letter as to the custom she had encouraged.

Several Indians watched the case in court. Full text of the letter was not made public by the court, but his remarks from the bench indicated that he disapproved strongly of the practice countenanced by the agent.

MURDERS TWO; ENDS OWN LIFE.

Former Service Man Kills Wife and Mother-in-Law at San Luis Obispo.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Nov. 27.—Mrs. May Liebenthal and her daughter, Mrs. Ivaleen Spellenberg, were shot and instantly killed last night by George Spellenberg, husband of the younger woman. After killing the two women, Spellenberg turned his automatic on himself, inflicting a wound in the breast which resulted in his death shortly after his removal to the hospital. All three of the victims of the tragedy came here recently from San Francisco.

Spellenberg left a letter addressed to his sister, Mrs. D. McLellan, 556 Thirtieth street, Oakland. The letter will be opened by Coroner C. W. Palmer at the inquest, which will be held tomorrow.

Mrs. Liebenthal and Mrs. Spellenberg conducted a barber shop on Marsh street, and the shooting occurred while Mrs. Spellenberg was shaving a customer, E. T. Gamble, who recently came here from Long Beach. Gamble stated that as Mrs. Spellenberg turned for a hot towel she glanced at the window and saw her husband, from whom she was separated, looking into the shop. She remarked, "I have a notion to pull the blind down." With that, Gamble says, Spellenberg entered the shop and stood at the foot of the barber chair, and said, "You will, will you?" Spellenberg then fired two shots at his wife, the bullets passing over the body of Gamble as he reclined in the chair. Mrs. Spellenberg screamed and fell to the floor, the bullets having pierced her breast and killed her instantly.

Spellenberg then went to the rear of the shop, where his mother-in-law, Mrs. Liebenthal, and her husband, Fred Liebenthal, were at the time. The Liebenthals heard the shots and saw Spellenberg coming, and ran for an adjoining house. Before Mrs. Liebenthal reached the house she was shot by Spellenberg, the bullet entering her right shoulder, coming out at the top, and entering her neck, severing the jugular vein and killing her. Another bullet entered her back, and was evidently fired after she fell.

Spellenberg then shot himself in the breast, and died shortly after being removed to the hospital. Before he died he handed Chief of Police Cook the letter addressed to his sister, Mrs. McLellan, which he had in his coat pocket.

Ione, the 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Spellenberg, witnessed the tragedy, and ran screaming from the shop, crying, "My father has shot my mother." The child hid in the yard and did not come from her hiding place for some time after Spellenberg had shot himself.

The Spellenbergs were married last June, and according to neighbors, their married life had been a stormy one. They separated several weeks ago, at which time Spellenberg went to San Francisco and Oakland. He returned here Thanksgiving Day, and the next day went to see a local attorney about instituting divorce proceedings.

Spellenberg was 31 years old, and his wife 26 years old. He was an ex-service man, and had been wounded overseas. He had been taking vocational training and was receiving government compensation. During the time he lived here, however, he did not attend vocational school.

Mrs. Liebenthal is survived by an aged father, whose name is not known, but who is a resident of the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle.

GROWERS ENJOY PROFITABLE YEAR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 27.—The annual stockholders' meeting of the Redlands Orangedale Groves was held yesterday at the packing-house on Nevada street, and the lowing directors named for the coming year: A. Gregory, A. D. Knight, W. E. Grigsby, E. D. Nickerson, S. A. Grover, A. Keating, H. L. Knight, Ray Langford and M. A. Cramer.

The report showed the season to have been the largest in the history of the association. There have been 3150 cars of oranges shipped from the house during the year. This is about four times the amount of fruit shipped four years ago.

The association is now planning big improvements to the packing-house, for it is entirely out of debt. The directors organized with A. Gregory as president, H. L. Knight as vice-president and George Musson as secretary and treasurer.

ADVOCATE OF PEACE.

Man of Many Titles Writes to Congressman.

Would Prevent Purchase of All Kinds of Firearms.

Total Eclipse of Sun to be Visible Here.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Nov. 27.—Squire P. Duree, whose official titles include that of municipal market master, public recreation superintendent, superintendent of parks, superintendent of life guards, supervisor of the municipal band, municipal camp ground custodian and municipal adviser of community service, is a strong advocate for the extension of the Limitation of Armaments to private citizens, it became known today.

While the United States is discussing and acting upon this vital topic as it concerns nations of the world at this time, it would would be well for Congress to pass a law making it more difficult for a citizen to secure firearms, thinks Mr. Duree, so he is forwarding his ideas on the subject to Congressman Walter F. Lineberger of the Ninth District, with Councilman Filmore Condit, who will leave this week for Washington to attend the Law Enforcement Congress.

Mr. Duree will ask Congressman Lineberger to introduce a bill prohibiting a citizen from carrying a firearm of any kind unless a permit has been secured from the proper authorities and a description and registration of the firearm made. Elimination of crime would be greatly advanced if society exercised control over issuance of rifles, shotguns and revolvers, Duree said today.

"Individuals should be subjected to the same limitations as the nations," he said. "Unregulated traffic in firearms is worse than the liquor traffic.

"Men and women become frenzied because of domestic trouble and disappointments in love. They rush out and buy a gun with which to make an attempt on their own or somebody else's life. Stores and pawn shops are stocked with weapons, which anybody can obtain," Duree says.

TOTAL ECLIPSE.

A local event which Horace Mann, local astronomer, says seldom comes to any one locality twice, is the memory of man, is scheduled for Long Beach at 12:56 p.m., Sept. 19, 1932. This is a complete eclipse of the sun. San Diego is in the center of the path of totality and Long Beach comes within the path. The map showing the lines of total and partial eclipse, is shown in the nautical almanac from the United States Naval Observatory.

The condition at five minutes before one on that day will be similar to late twilight, says Mann. In 1900 a total eclipse crossed Florida, Colorado and Idaho. Another crossed the central part of the United States in 1869, but neither was visible as total in this section.

REDLANDS PUTS OVER SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 27.—Redlands has again gone over the top in Red Cross roll call with 2000 members, or one to every six people in the city, and more than $2000 in money. There are some life, some sustaining and some contributing members.

The campaign has been on for more than a week, Raymond Hornby was in charge, with Benjamin Hodge and Lieut. A. E. Drake as his assistants. Mrs. C. J. Barnes has charge of the office work and Mrs. W. B. Power was in charge of the street booths, where about 100 members were enrolled. J. H. Logie is the treasurer.

Three business houses in the city went over the top with 100 per cent memberships. They were the A. K. Smiley Library, the Edison Company and the Santa Fe offices.

Apple Picker Dies From Effect of "Spiked" Cider.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 27.—George Souther, 48 years old, surrounded by about twenty empty alcohol bottles, was found dead in his bed at his apartment on East Citrus avenue today. Souther is believed to have died from drinking cider fortified with alcohol which had been "spiked" with formaldehyde.

Souther has been here but a few months, coming to work as an apple picker in Yucaipa. He was last seen early this morning and it is thought that he had probably been dead eight hours when found.

Letters, showing he had friends in Yuma, were found and telegrams have been sent to them.

SIGNAL HILL MAKES GOOD.

Operators' Doubts Dispelled by Big Producer.

Eddystone Company Gets Large Well at Huntington.

Shell to Increase Output Within Few Days.

BY ELLWOOD J. MUNGER.

Signal Hill has made good. All doubt as to whether or not Signal Hill would make an oil field has been completely dispelled by the San Mirtenas Oil Company's 1500-barrel well that came in a few days ago. The big well came in in a portion of the field that was beginning to look a little doubtful, that is, production was expected but most operators figured that it would be deep.

The San Martenas Oil Company's Booty No. 1 came in in a 1500-barrel well at a depth of 3592. The well is producing 32 gravity oil and is the biggest well the Long Beach field has yet produced. The big San Martenas well makes the following properties and holdings assume new aspects: the Walker-Western, the Coast States, the Mike Michaels, the Guaranty, and the Spaulding Oil and Gas Company.

The California-Mexican Petroleum Syndicate will probably bring in the next big well on Signal Hill. The eight-inch casing was set at 2821 and drilling out the cement plug on the hole immediately filled with oil displacing the water as it stands. It is the intention however to drill on into the oil-sand before bringing the well in. Located only 100 yards from the Shell discovery well, the California-Mexican Petroleum's No. 1 looks good for 1000 barrels.

TO INCREASE OUTPUT.

The Shell Company will increase the daily production of Signal Hill in a few days to big figures. Alamitos No. 3 is due to come in most any time now. The drilling is going on under difficulties on account of the presence of oil in large quantities and gas under high pressure in the hole. Alamitos No. 2 will be ready for production soon also. Martin No. 1, the well that blew the cement out of the hole, caught fire and wrecked things generally, is a total loss. It will be necessary to rebuild the rig, replace all equipment anew and drill another well. Martin No. 1 did something never before known in oildom. It blew the cement plug and almost all the cement put back of the pipe, out of the hole.

The Standard Oil Company is not quitting the Bixby property in spite of the fact that it drilled a 5540-foot test well and got no oil. A second well has been located on the property. The Standard figures that there is oil somewhere on the Bixby lease and an effort will be made to locate it.

The Union Oil Company is going back to Long Beach. It will be remembered that the Union drilled a test well on the Bixby ranch four years ago. Some showings were obtained, but the well never assumed any commercial possibilities and drilling was stopped. The Union has leased the twenty-acre Hart ranch located on the west side of Signal Hill.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.

Huntington Beach is now producing about 17,000 barrels daily. New producers are coming in every week, and more of the field looks good now than ever before.

The Amalgamated Oil Company has the deepest well in the so-called lower zone ready to produce. Fowler No. 1, at 3475 is a great well and will serve as a sort of guide for drilling on the west side of the field. The Amalgamated's next producer will be Huntington No. 6. The cement was drilled out at 3427 and a little drilling will put this well in the oil sands.

The Eddystone Oil Corporation now has one of the nicest producers in the field at Davenport No. 1. This well drilled to 2692 started off at about 450 barrels. The production has steadily increased until now the well is running close to 900 barrels. The Eddystone's Huff No. 1 drilling out in the north side of the field is close to 4400 and has not made much of a showing as yet.

The Gypsy Oil Syndicate is striving hard to become one of the recognized Huntington Beach producing companies. With No. 1 standing around 225 barrels, No. 2 about to go on production and No. 3 about ready to set the water string this little company is making progress toward its goal.

MILLER SYNDICATE.

All eyes are riveted on the Miller Syndicate. At 3670 a formation was struck that indicated that the oil sand was not far away. On account of the excellent showing the water string was set.

The Republic Petroleum's No. 2 failed to flow. This new well, drilled in an undeveloped part of the Huntington Beach field has shown some oil, and as soon as the hole is cleared of sand a 300 or 400-barrel well can be expected. The Republic Petroleum's No. 1 has settled down to 450 barrels of clean oil, the water percentage having dropped to an almost negligible quantity.

Bob McKeon is duplicating the record of his brother Jack as an oil operator. Bob has Rio Brava No. 1 about ready to go on production. Rio Brave No. 1 is just a little west of the Gypsy Syndicate and should make 200 barrels. The Rio Bravo Oil Company has taken over the holdings of the Sunset Petroleum Company and will start immediate development of them.

The Standard Oil Company averages a new producer a week at Huntington. The latest producer on the Standard's holdings is Huntington B-4. This new producer drilled to 2845, is doing 425 barrels. The Standard's second larrest well Huntington A-12 continues to do better than 1100 barrels. Deepening of the Torrance well is under way at 4485, the deep hole and pipe trouble making the work go slow.

UNION OIL WELLS.

The Union Oil Company now has two producing wells at Huntington Beach. Copeland No. 1 continues to make its 200 barrels. Copeland No. 5 completed at 3700 is doing about 400 barrels. Copeland No. 2 is in the oil sand at 2955 and will be the Union's next producer.

The Standard Oil Company's work at Garden Grove attracts attention. Drilling passed the 4100-mark and those who are watching the well say that something will be found. The well is getting down to a point where something encouraging or discouraging can be expected soon. The drilling is going ahead nicely. At 3900 the formation carried a little oil-color and some gas. The showing caused quite a little excitement.

The Whitley Oil Company is determined to make a producer out of No. 5. Originally drilled to 2300 an initial production of 200 barrels resulted. This production did not hold. Deepened to 2565, the well came back strong but again did not hold up. It is the intention now to go on another 100 or 200 feet and tap a lower sand.

Liquid gold is now rolling out of the Union Oil Company's Bell well at the rate of 2400 barrels a day. The value of this oil at the well would run considerably more than $5000 daily.

SANTA FE SPRINGS.

The Union Oil Company is pushing its Santa Fe Springs development work with three rigs building on the Bell property, a rig on the Flood, one on the Alexander and one on the Sanches property. On the Meyer lease No. 5 is drilling at close to 5000 feet and has not shown any startling indications of oil.

The Test.

"But how can I be sure of your love?" she asked. "You may be marrying me for my money."

"Well," he replied thoughtfully, "you might give away your money before marriage."

"To whom?"

"Why, to me, of course."—[Boston Transcript.

HUGE CRUDE OIL SALE.

COLUMBUS (O.) Nov. 27.—The Pure Oil Company will handle 50 per cent of the crude oil produced by the Humphreys Pure Oil interests in the Mexia (Tex.) fields up to 40,000 barrels a day, under the sale contract made with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana interests disposing of the other 50 per cent and all over 40,000 barrels a day until 23,000,000 barrels have been delivered to the Standard.

This represents one of the largest sales of crude oil ever consummated and involves approximately $50,000,000 to be paid by the Standard interests at the rate of $1.50 a barrel for the 23,000,000 barrels contracted for. These arrangements contemplate an expected productin of 30,000 to 100,000 barrels a day by the Humphrey Pure Oil interests on their Texas properties.

The requirements of the Pure Oil Company are fortified on a basis permitting a broad expansion of its refining and marketing interests. In addition its holdings of a 25 per cent interest in this production gives it an important participation in the return for the balance of petroleum which it does not handle directly. When the Standard purchase contract for 23,000,000 barrels is filled the Humphrey Pure Oil interest will handle a full 50 per cent of all production and the Standard will purchase the other 50 per cent.

This arrangement which was worked out by A. E. Humphrey and B. G. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil Company, is expected within a short time to permit full development operations of the producing properties they control in the Mexia fields. Already the Humphrey Pure Oil Pipe Line Company, recently organized has a pipe line under construction from the fields to the Gulf. The Standard interests will build a similar line to handle their share of the production.

Entrance of the Standard into this arrangement further reflects the remarkable characters of this field as it is regarded by the leaders in the oil industry.

TOM REED CUTS DOWN ON LABOR.

Plans Methods for More Economical Working of Its Low Grade Ores.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Nov. 26.—Tom Reed is reported to be cutting down its activities rather than to concentrate on its higher grade ores, and to be planning methods for more economical working of the immense quantity of developed ore of medium or low grade. A number of miners are reported to have been dropped. There is hope that the mill may be substituted in full activity by taking about 100 tons a day of custom ores on a basis of $2 a ton cost, with payment for 95 per cent of the gold value and 80 per cent of the silver. Gold Ore is understood to be contracting for the handling of fifty tons a day and United American and Telluride, near-by properties, also have large quantities of available milling ore. Most of the high-grade Reed ore is being taken from the Aztec section, trammed to the Ben Harrison shaft.

Oatman United is working on development of a three-foot vein said to average $20 for a drifting distance of 200 feet. Drilling has shown the presence of ore much deeper than the drift level of 600 feet.

United Eastern is reported, by drilling, to have cut its vein 200 feet from the 850 fot level station. Development work is to be started soon on ground lately purchased from the Big Jim Company. On this ground ore was developed in the 600-foot level, the deepest working.

A stringer of rich silver ore has been cut in a tunnel intended to develop a water supply for irrigation from flooded workings in the old Silver King mine, fifteen miles east of Kingman. Operations were suspended years ago when the vein faulted. Now there is belief that the stringer will lead the way to a continuation of the main ore body. The new ore assays up to $700 a ton.

In the Katherine section, a footwall winze, at seventy-five feet below the 400 level, has found ore sampling up to $400. The material is clear quartz, abundantly speckled with free gold.

James F. Collins is in charge of development of the Big Four group, with W. W. Wishon of Searchlight as consulting engineer. A development fund of $30,000 is available. The property is near the Gold Chain. The company's main vein is said to sample from $2 to $5 a ton across forty feet of width.

The Adams property, a mile from the Gold Chain, and on the same vein, has erected a surface plant, moved from near Oatman. At fifty feet two feet of quartz is reported to average $30 in gold.

RICH ORE IN CITY.

Many Tons Stoped Near Bisbee Business Center.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) Nov. 25.—Several thousand tons of the best ore known for years in the Bisbee section are reported ready for stopeing in the Southwest claims of the Copper Queen Company, just above the library and back of the business section of Bisbee. The ground is near the upper end of the limestone and the Southwest workings are said to be close to the quartzsite bottom within which no values have been found. In this same section, around the famous Glory Hole, were the original workings of the camp, the only point where the copper ore was visible on the surface. Above, high on the hillside, are sand carbonate silver ores that have been mined for years by the Copper Queen.

Nearly all the slag of the old Copper Queen smelter has been used as flux in the company's smelter in Douglas, incidentally contributing about 5 per cent of copper that had been left by the imperfect smelting operations of pioneer days. The rest is to go to Douglas when the furnaces are again heated. Much of the old dump site is to be included in the scope of the steam shovel operations that are to start at Sacramento Hill.

Around Douglas landowners are making complaint of damage they say is done to crops by the smoke of the Copper Queen and Calumet and Arizona smelters. At a conference held between company officials and representatives of the landowners, there was indication of willingness on the part of both sides to adjust differences without litigation. A similar dispute taken to the courts from the Verde valley, near Jerome, gave the farmer plaintiffs a verdict of $1 and costs.

Origin of a Familiar Term.

Clay Center now has a "drive it yourself" auto livery. The term "drive it yourself" originated some years ago with Mr. Averaceman, who, when his wife kicked on the way he was driving the car, replied, "If you don't like the way I'm driving drive it yourself." It is a very commonly used remark these days.—[Clay Center (Kan.) Times.

News Trend of Trade, Finance, Oil and Mining.

WHEAT MARKET TREND UPWARD.

Traders Show More Friendly Buying Spirit.

Expect Cash Premiums Will Show Increase.

See Scarcity of Choice Grades for Milling.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—There is a decidedly more friendly feeling toward the buying price of wheat among traders, and while it is expected there will be numerous reactions from time to time, the ultimate trend is believed to be upward.

In some quarters the belief is expressed that it would not be surprising if there were sensational developments in December wheat at Minneapolis, where mills are understood to be the leading longs and are said to want the grain, as springs are selling above a daily basis and there is no material amount due owing to the short crop.

There is also a report that Northwestern mills are not entirely satisfied with the results obtained from the experiments with Canadian wheat so far, except from selected samples, although the use of the imported grain is increasing in the East. The latter has been unable to obtain domestic springs in volume this season and there will be no accumulation at Buffalo for Eastern distribution during the winter as is usually the case.

CASH WHEAT LOOKS GOOD.

A majority of traders are of the opinion that cash wheat premiums will increase as compared with the futures, the scarcity of the choice milling grades bringing about the advance, while futures may be held in check somewhat by hedging sales. Should the milling demand become active, it is believed that the shortage would become pronounced, as of the total visible of 11,000,000 bushels there are 16,000,000 bushels at Atlantic and Gulf ports awaiting export, in addition to 5,000,000 bushels running to Gulf ports that cannot be brought back on account of the expense.

Under normal conditions, a strong technical position does not start to assert itself very materially under early in the spring. The visible supply has started to decrease nearly six weeks ahead of normal, and with light arrivals the trade looks for it to be steadily reduced from now on.

DROUGHT DRAWS ATTENTION.

Drought in the Southwest, while not a serious market influence at present, is attracting more attention. The government report on December 17 is expected to indicate a condition of under 85, compared with a ten-year normal of 91, the excellent outlook outside of the dry area being responsible for the relatively high figure.

How much wheat will be needed by Japan and China and other non-European countries remain a mystery to the trade. The purchase by these countries and India are exceeding estimates made by European authorities, who have recently increased their guesses on import needs of the world to above those of last year, while the excellent outlook in the southern hemisphere has also led to expectations of exporting countries having more than anticipated earlier. The grain trade in the Canadian Northwest is not yet prepared to accept the Canadian government report showing 308,000,000 bushels as the three provinces as correct, the average trade guess being about 10,000,000 bushels smaller.

UNCERTAINTY IN MARKET.

Erratic Movements Laid to Other Causes Than Washington Conference.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Although last week ended with a rising stock market, it was characterized as a whole by indecision on the stock exchange. It is much more reasonable to suppose that this attitude indicated uncertainty over the course of trade than uncertainty over results at the Washington conference.

But this very indecision of the stock market, in the face of falling money rates has had a perfectly natural result in the rising price of investment bonds and the public's unusually active buying of them.

ENDING WAR EXPENDITURES.

In a way, the action of that market represents the readjustment in cost of investment capital which was predicted as a sequel to ending of the war expenditures, but which was long postponed. It is commonly said that this movement of investment values is a sequel to the 4 1-2 per cent reserve bank rate of three weeks ago and the 4 1-4 per cent rate established a month ago on the treasury's short-term certificates.

In the larger sense, however, the action of Federal reserve and treasury and the subsequent movement of investment prices were results of a common cause whose operation was plainly visible five or six months ago—completion of the release of capital from over-expanded trade from overvalued speculation in goods and securities and from the mass of forced credits.

The altered situation in that respect was evident enough in the early summer; it has developed with such great rapidity since then that the bond market's present action must almost be called belated. Probably the delay in really emphatic response of investment prices indicated only doubt as to whether a trade revival and advancing commodity markets might not, this autumn bring large requisitions of their own on the supply of capital. Neither of those things has happened.

OTHER MARKETS.

In other markets than investment bonds, the past week has been characterized either by purposeless and uncertain fluctuations (as in stocks) or else by reaction up or down, from a previous level of prices reached under impulse of speculation. With rather odd uniformity, the signal has been given for these reactions by the attaining of what might be called "traditional objectives" — round figures of price to which speculative markets look forward as the possible goal of an existing movement and which, when attained, are usually followed by relaxing speculative momentum and by heavy realizing.

That somewhat psychological process has been in evidence with the "dollar wheat" of three weeks ago for instance, with the "20-cent cotton" of six weeks ago, and with the four-dollar sterling rate, which the market has touched in three recoveries since the great decline of 1919, but above which it has not yet been able to maintain itself for more than a few days.

MORE ELK HILLS LEASES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 26.—Recent activity in the western end of the Elk Hills district of Kern county, near McKittrick, has aroused the interest of oil companies and some of the larger of these are beginning to invade the territory, which was all withdrawn in 1910 and is now being taken up and operated under permit from the government.

The latest lease to be made was a half-section to C. E. and R. E. Cooper in section 14, 30-22, which adjoins the naval reserve. The land was leased to the Coopers by K. C. Wallace. It is said the Coopers will at once start drilling operations. They are big operators in the Breckenridge field of Texas.

The Union Oil Company, which recently leased a parcel of land in section 12, 30-23, in the west end of Elk Hills from Wallace, paying $1000 an acre bonus and a royalty up to 25 per cent, has rigged up for drilling and will start in a day or two. This property is now known as the Union's Federal lease, No. 3.

W. R. Ramsey, who is drilling eight government offset wells in the naval reserve adjoining the Tupman section, has leased the northeast quarter of section 12, 30-22, just east of the Union rig and started drilling operations on Wednesday.

The activity in the west end of the Elk Hills is due to the bringing in about three months ago of a big gasser on the Transport Oil Company property. Tucker & Johnson, who drilled the Transport well, have associated themselves with a number of other well-known oil men and have secured a lease of 320 acres in section 10, 30-20, just across the government section to the west of the Union Oil Company's property, and are making plans for immediate drilling.

The West Elk Company, headed by Myrt Kowalsky, is also preparing to start development work in this territory, as is also a Mr. Daugherty of San Francisco. He holds a government permit on section 4, 30-22.

During the past week the Standard Oil Company has begun the drilling of its No. 16 well in the Elk Hills on section 31, 30-25.

The Brookshire Oil Company has spudded in its No. 8 well in the Midway, near Taft, on section 24, 31-22.

While there has been no excitement in the Arvin district, the oil activities have gone quietly forward and a number of new leases have been closed recently. The Salient Oil Company is now putting down a well three miles southwest of Arvin on the Tejon ranch property and preparations are being made to drill another well near Comanche Point.

The Federal Investment Company has had representatives in the Arvin district during the past week to make inquiries regarding leases and it is said that this concern plans to drill a test well there in the near future.

While prospects for the proving up of new territory in various parts of Kern county are going forward, development work in the Poso district, north of Bakersfield, continues on a large scale. Reports came to Bakersfield today that the Standard Oil Company has made a good strike in its No. 6 well on Section 27, 28-27, in the South Poso district. The well has recently been deepened.

The Caribou Oil Company is planning early drilling operations in its property in sections 8 and 11, 28-27 in the Poso field and it is said the Midway Premier proposes to drill on section 32, 27-27.

The East Puente, on section 13, and the Fresno-Montana leases promise to be the scene of development activity at an early date, while the California Central Oil Company has leased a portion of section 16, 28-27, which will be put to the drilling test by the first of the year.

Geologists have estimated that the Poso district contains a future production of 180,000,000 barrels of oil, while operators are confident that drilling will prove up a much wider territory with a larger yield. The daily average of this field at the present is around 1000 barrels.

FINISH VENTURA OIL MAPS.

With the completion of map No. 18, showing the Piru, Simi, Newhall and other old fields, a complete set of maps of the oil fields of Ventura county is now available at the various offices of the State Mining Bureau, it was announced yesterday.

Ventura county was the scene of the first search for and production of all in California says a bulletin of the bureau. Mexicans are reported to have developed petroleum in Ventura county as early as 1854, although at that time and for a number of years thereafter, the crude oil was taken principally from seepages or tunnels driven into oil sands near the outcrop.

The Standard Oil Company was operating in Ventura county in 1877, and the Hardison Stewart Oil Company, forerunner of the Union Oil Company of California, stated operating in Rancho ex-Mission and Seape Creek, in 1883. None of the present major producing fields of California had been discovered at that time.

VARIED CONDITIONS.

The oil fields of Ventura county represent a great variety of surface and subsurface conditions. The South Mountain field, for example, covers the almost inaccessible slopes of South Mountain, near Santa Paula. The construction of a well site and grading of roads along the steep mountainside represents expenditures which almost equal drilling costs. During the first six months of 1921 the wells in South Mountain field produced 547,870 barrels of oil.

The Ventura field, near the city of Ventura, has continuously lured some of the larger oil companies to large expenditures for development, where danger of losing wells from gas blow-outs and difficulties of shutting off water cause the most difficult drilling conditions existing anywhere in the State. The Ventura field produces some of the highest grade oil found in the State. During the first six months of 1921, wells in the Ventura field produced 82,240 barrels of oil.

SHALLOW WELLS.

Another recent development in Ventura county is the so-called "post-hole paradise" near Conejo. Here during the early part of 1921, a number of companies were organized to drill shallow wells in the old Camarillo field. One hundred and twenty-four wells have been reported ready to drill in this field since the first of the year. The wells are finished at depths of less than 200 feet. Some were drilled to oil in less than twenty-four hours and started producing anywhere from ten to 120 barrels of oil a day. The wells are reported to be short-lived.

The interest shown in the development and recovery of oil from the shallow Conejo pool was another manifestation of the stimulus given to the oil industry of California by the advances in prices of crude oil in 1920, and the increased demands. It indicates the extent to which operations will be carried when, in the years to come, the demands for California's petroleum greatly exceed production and every known accessible source of oil will be exploited.

OIL OPERATIONS.

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor Collom during the week ending the 19th inst., show twenty-eight new wells started, compared to fourteen during the previous week. The total new wells this year are 1166, compared to 789 the same date last year.

Tests for water shut-off numbered twenty-two, compared to fourteen during the previous week. Yearly total to date, 1294; total to same date last year, 1110.

Deepening or redrilling jobs numbered eleven, compared to nine during the preceding week. Total to date this year, 603; total to same date last year, 808.

Three wells were abandoned, compared to two during the preceding week. Total to date this year, 189; total to same date last year, 180.

GERMAN BOURSE IS UNCERTAIN.

Era of Selling Follows Heavy Buying Period.

Professional Speculators Get Securities.

Public Later Gains Confidence and Buys Back.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—The financial situation here continued its uncertain zigzagging course during the week, although nothing happened which could be regarded as a serious aggravation of the general aspect. Following the great rise in nearly all securities of the week before which was accompanied by veritable buying madness on the part of the public, there has set in a sudden quiet due to the heavy taxation put in effect on all dealings on the house, especially on profits.

Thereupon selling rather than buying became widespread, driving securities downward at 100 point clips. The sum total of these developments, however, was to push an immense number of these securities back into the hands of professional speculators, who immediately drove them upward. The week's close therefore, saw a comparative balance of supply and demand, which was regarded as a satisfactory result. The public suddenly regained confidence in securities and began buying them back.

HOPEFUL TURN TAKEN.

A more hopeful turn taken in the negotiations between representatives of industry and the government looking toward the granting to the government of large credits contributed to this development.

Mining and oil stocks especially became buoyant but the general list settled somewhat in consequence of renewed disturbances in the political situation accompanied by food riots. A curious feature of the week's events, however, was the long unseen rise in government 3½ per cent loan bonds, which jumped from 72 to 105 per cent. Foreigners are said to be active in accumulating these.

As far as the mark is concerned it remained free from violent fluctuations, although showing at first a downward tendency with the departure of the reparations commission and the announcement that Germany would be given no additional time in which to meet January and February export payments. The optimistic reports on credit negotiations between the government and industrial leaders served as a restorative. The last few days saw a slight weakening in the mark, which both Hugo Stinnes's trip to London and Chancellor Wirth's announcement regarding prospects of German loans abroad failed to hinder.

INCREASED MONEY DEMAND.

The Reichsbank statement during the week showed a greatly increased demand for money, which was attributed to a wave of higher prices and to demands for higher wages. The circulation of paper marks is now estimated at 102,000,000,000. This marks a serious aggravation of the financial problem as compared with the same period of last year, when the flow of money was toward and not from the Reichsbank.

On the other hand, the government's finances showed an improvement, as the internal debt was reduced by 766,000,000 marks to 217,000,000,000. The postoffice showed a profit of 511,000,000 marks, but the railroads continued to show a deficit amounting for the period to 408,000,000 marks.

These figures are contained in the government report up to November 10. The price of gold marks remained unchanged during the week, the 20-mark piece selling at 850 paper marks and the 10-mark piece being quoted at 425 paper marks.

Money Machine Swindle Causes Cuban's Arrest.

Juan Castiglioni Estampa, a Cuban, was arrested last night on complaint of a man who said an attempt had been made to swindle him out of $20,000.

Detective Sergeants Simpson, Hawsey and Canto, who made the arrest at Seventh and Hill streets, said Estampa had tried to sell an interest in a "money-making machine" to L. D. Barrios, 626 West Sixth street.

The "money-making machine" trick is an old one. An unsophisticated victim is found and told the machine turns out United States currency as fast as the crank can be turned.

Estampa told the officers he was an actor by profession. He said he had come to Los Angeles from Mexico about a month ago. The detectives said they had been watching Estampa several days. Late yesterday they say they secured sufficient evidence to take Estampa into custody.

Hogs Kill Man on Ranch; Eat Head, Fingers.

Turning on the man who had often fed them, several large hogs in a pen at the Show Ranch, Calabasas, near Cramer Station, late yesterday afternoon attacked and killed Joseph Engstrum, age about 63 years, an employee of the ranch.

The body, with the head and fingers partly eaten away, was found at 5 p.m. by Joseph Gleason, another employee.

Deputy Sheriffs Dewar and Cooper, who investigated, believe Engstrum was knocked down and attacked when he was about to give the hogs their evening meal. Engstrum had worked about the Calabasas country for the past twenty-five years. No one was able to tell the deputies of any relations. The body was taken to the Noble undertaking establishment in San Fernando.

BRITISH TRADE IS IMPROVING.

Cancellation of War Debts Subject of Discussion.

Much Speculation Over Visit of Hugo Stinnes.

Trading Combine With Russia Forecast.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Improvement in trade conditions continued this week, according to the most conservative estimates of financial editors, bankers and merchants. This opinion appears to be general.

During the week there was a large contraction in currency and note circulation, which reflects the decrease in the country's weekly wage bill. Several Cabinet ministers have taken the opportunity to discuss the question of debt cancellation and German reparations.

DEBT CANCELLATION.

Birkenhead, whose political influence is increasing so rapidly that he is almost certain to become the leader of the Conservative party, declared that Great Britain's future depended largely upon the degree of co-operation with the United States and that one of the most important subjects for early consideration was the matter of war debts.

Sir Robert Horne has stated that Germany expected to meet the next reparations payment, but he also made the significant statement that if Germany is to receive further concessions she must tax her people harder and cease printing marks. Winston Spencer Churchill, Austen Chamberlain and Premier Lloyd George also have referred to questions of debt cancellation and reparations in speeches in the last few weeks.

These official utterances are apparently paving the way for a conference which will include all the late belligerents and will rank in importance second, only to the Washington and Paris conferences.

STINNES'S VISIT.

Hugo Stinnes, the so-called financial "Kaiser" of Germany, has returned to Berlin after a busy week in London, and although he did not meet Premier Lloyd George there is no doubt the government was fully informed regarding the German capitalist's mission.

Apparently Stinnes discussed various question, ranging from reparations to coal, ships and Russian trade, but there is ground for venturing the guess that Stinnes had a sympathetic hearing of his plans for an Anglo-German trading combination with Russia.

There are two obvious reasons why such a plan would receive favorable consideration here. Politically it would form a guarantee against a future union between Germany and Russia against Britani and economically it would make for reduction of unemployment in this country.

EXPECT FURTHER LIGHT.

Further light on these negotiations is expected soon because of the air of secrecy calculated to arouse suspicion which would injure both the German and British government. For the moment excitement of the prospect of general elections has subsided, but it is bound to rise again, for the Irish negotiations are still far from finished. The general public remains firmly convinced that a settlement will be reached eventually and consequently it discounts heavily all reports of political crises arising out of the negotiations.

WILSONS IN BATTLE FOR TWO CHILDREN.

REALTY MAN MUST EXPLAIN WHY WIFE SHOULD NOT HAVE CUSTODY.

A bitter legal battle for the possession of two children is scheduled to be staged in Judge Toland's court this morning, when Robert Lee Wilson, Los Angeles and Long Beach real estate man, brother of Dr. Byron H. Wilson, district superintendent of the Methodist Church, is cited to appear to show cause why his wife, Mrs. Meryl Richardson Wilson, should not have the custody of the children. The order to show cause also calls on Wilson to explain why he should not pay Mrs. Wilson $200 a month alimony, an additional $100 a month for the support of the children and attorney's fees.

According to an affidavit filed by Harrison Cassell, Mrs. Wilson's attorney, Wilson took the children away seventeen months ago. In her suit for divorce, filed the day her husband disappeared with the children, Mrs. Wilson charged him with cruelty. Wilson and the children were finally located by the San Francisco branch of the Nick Harris Detectives, and the court order was served on Mr. Wilson in Berkeley about three weeks ago.

Statements made by Warren L. Williams, attorney for Wilson, at the time the matter first came up in Judge Toland's court, indicated that Wilson will make counter charges, probably similar to those contained in his suit for divorce filed in Nevada, but never prosecuted. Additional affidavits, cross-complaints and amended complaints are expected to figure in today's hearing. Mrs. Wilson also seeks to learn more about the disposal of the community property.

POWDER PLANT IS NEAR COMPLETION.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BENSON (Ariz.) Nov. 27.—At land station, sout hof this point, is being completed the plant of the Apache Power Company, a corporation in which most of the larger mining companies of Arizona are interested. The only dangerous part of the plant, the placed by itself, behind a hill. Through operation of the works it is expected a large saving will be made in production costs, for the powder freight rate into Arizona is very high. This freight cost will be saved.

REHEARSING FOR "FATHER'S SIN."

Pauline Frederick.

Ever hear of a neo-classic picture? This is one of 'em. It represents Pauline Frederick, detected in rehearsing for "Father's Sin," a hilarious skit on filmmaking, under censorship, the picture, which is to be one of the big features of "The Writers' Cramp," the entertainment to be given by the Screen Writers' Club at the Ambassador Thursday evening. This picture is the first application of the neo-classic school of painting, of whom the Serbian artist, Slavko Vorkapitch, now a resident of Hollywood, is the father, and is the work of Jacques D'Ambry, president of the Hoover Art Studios.

NEW MOTION FOR BURCH.

chain had small quantities of powerful poison secreted about their persons and would use them at the proper time.

"I will take no action unless Madalynne knows it and she will take none unless I know it. Then, if things get to where we get tired of it all, we will act together," Burch is reported to have said in this connection.

"Asinine statements as far as I am concerned. Never have I planned or contemplated suicide. However, I can only speak for Madalynne Obenchain. I am indeed sorry if such ridiculous statements are being made," was Mrs. Obenchain's reply when told of Burch's purported statements yesterday.

Burch, when the subject was broached to him in the County Jail yesterday, refused to discuss it.

"To my mind, this is merely another indication of insanity." Paul W. Schenck, chief counsel for the defense, declared when told of the statements made by Burch. "We are not surprised at anything he may have said or done."

Ask Change in Hour for Foch Parade Here.

Resolutions were passed unanimously by the congregation of Temple Baptist Church at the services yesterday to ask the local committee in charge of the arrangements for the welcome to Marshal Foch next Sunday to change the hour now planned for the parade to Exposition Park. As explained by Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of the church, 11 a.m. is the hour of services in the Protestant churches and by setting the parade time forward the churchgoers will be given an opportunity to see Marshal Foch. "I believe that the pastors of 300 other churches of the city will join in our request," said Dr. Brougher.

SAFE IS JIMMIED.

Yeggmen Get Small Haul in South Spring Street Store.

Yeggmen last night jimmied open a safe in the Aggeler & Musser Seed Company store at 620 South Spring street and obtained $300 in cash and $800 in Liberty bonds, according to a report made to the police by W. B. Early, secretary and treasurer.

Evidence found by Detective-Sergeants James, Cline and Simpson showed plainly that the yeggmen were experts, who opened the safe with tools where less experienced safe-crackers would have used nitroglycerine. Care wats also taken by the yeggs to leave no telltale fingerprints. A. B. Carroll, watchman for the Merchants' Fire Dispatch, discovered the robbery.

Wants to Close up Business.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—The Fresno Land and Canal Corporation, once one of the largest irrigation companies in the West, asked the Railroad Commission today for permission to sell the last of its properties to the Consolidated Canal Company for $71,093. Recently it sold most of its system to the Fresno Irrigation District.

THE LAST WORD

BY Alma Whitaker

A gentleman writes to commend me for so frankly appreciating the "limitations of my sex," which he knows I do because I often poke fun at them (which includes myself.)

So he goes on to ask me if I see any hope of a stable government for the United States in the years to come "with this irresponsible vote" let loose on the country.

He signs himself "A Mere Man" —the quintessence of hypocritical modesty—and says he must remain anonymous because . . . . oh, weyy, you know people usually remain anonymous. 'Fraidy cats.

What do we thing about him and his kind, sisters?

I think myself that is tatETA I think myself that it is by and through appreciating the present temporary limitations of our sex and responsibly recognizing the irresponsibilities that beset us—in both the male and female vote—we stand a better chance of facing them and living them down. And, as a famous surgeon told the Ebell Club, "humor is the yardstick of sanity."

So you, dear "Mere Man" we are making and accepting jokes against ourselves and our little weaknesses in the cause of sanity. And it is going to spoil everything if the "Mere Men" of this world insist upon losing to us, instead of sharing with us, that monopoly of humor they were once so sure they enjoyed.

A very male writer says that "the average bachelor maids are such because, they, like Mr. Micawber, waited too long for something to turn up."

Yes, but most of them could have stooped to pick up nothing but a new name. So after studying some of their thrice-divorcing sisters' affairs, it may be that they have indeed waited in vain for "somethinz" to turn up as distinct from "anything."

Which reminds us. This passion for female modesty exhibited by the masculine sex—do they really mean it?

Of course, what they really admire is the assumption of a modest demeanor. Which is quite different. And is, by the way, equally becoming to men.

But if men would really have us "modest" as they pretend, life would be peculiarly dull both for them and us and — er — very meagerly populated.

Most of the predestined spinsters I know are inherently modest.

I observed that Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain was deeply shocked because some one hinted that she might be a "mother-elect." And she assures us that "she has nothing to be ashamed of."

So that's a comfort. Madalynne is thoroughly modest.

And for that matter, most any of us women would rather be accused of murder and romantic philandering than unwedded motherhood. So "modesty" is fairly rampant.

Isabelle Miller, who sang in the Hartford (Ct.) choir at church and took part in a play given by the Business Women's Club of that city, has been dropped from the choir because she kissed the hero too realistically in the play. He was a member of the choir, too—and still is.

"If a lover courts you boldly . . ."

"Hot and strong, dear mamma;"

"You should never snub him coldly . . ."

"Not for long, dear mamma."

"If you kiss him wildly, madly

"It might result as badly . . ."

"And be a little awkward . . ."

"Very wrong, dear mamma."

Christabel Pankhurst, who once rocked an empire and brought Englishmen to the worst go of nerves they ever experienced, who devised more means of annoying the male of the species without bloodshed than the most ingenious wife ever considered possible, slipped quietly into Los Angeles last week, unheralded, and looking the picture of demure femininity.

And she is almost justifying the male novelists and dramatists who love to reform their strong-minded heroines with babies and sweet domesticity. For although Christabel hasn't so far surrendered to some fine dominating male of the species, she has adopted a little Titian-headed girl of 6 years old, taken a modern bungalow in Hollywood, and is just wallowing in vicarious motherhood and playhousekeeping. Not a sign of the stormy petrel anywhere. Nothing more sensational than a faithful renaissance of "nursery rhymes" and playing peek-a-boo with a fairy for recreation.

If even the most militant of us can be trusted to "return to species" like that, we may yet reform the world without utterly blasting its domestic charms.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION
Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.
No griping is the "keynote" of the little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They have force them to unnatural action.
If you have a "dark brown taste"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache — torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.
Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15 and 30c.—[Advertisement.

IN BED EIGHT MONTHS

Cause—Change of Life. How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Got Me Up

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did and in a short time felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good."—MRS. A. KELLER, Afton, Tennessee.

Women from forty-five to fifty years of age should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, palpitation of the heart, smothering or fainting spells, or spots before the eyes, and prepare their system for this perfectly natural change by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped many, many women through this trying period, just as it did Mrs. Keller.

SUTTER TOMES UNDER HAMMER.

Rare Californiana Will be Auctioned Off Today.

Documents Throw New Light on State's Early History.

H. E. Huntington Probable Buyer, It is Hinted.

"Going, going, gone! SOLD, to Henry E. Huntington, the original manuscripts of Sutter's Fort for the sum of . . ."?

Will the auctioneer who today conducts the sale at the Anderson Galleries in New York City of many original and recently discovered manuscripts relating to California's early history, speak the words quoted above, supply the name of the sum ommitted?

Was it an angel spirit who, having posed for Gainsborough to paint "The Blue Boy," appeared on earth again 150 years later to inspire H. E. Huntington to purchase that masterpiece in London and bring it as a contribution to the great collection of art works in Southern California? And will that same bright being from celestial spheres direct Mr. Huntington to the auction sale in New York today and influence him to buy the Sutter papers, perhaps the most valuable historical documents of any State in the Union to come into the market in a generation?

The sale, which is to be held today and tomorrow, includes rare, curious and important books, pamphlets, broadsides and maps relating to the Western States, including the Sutter papers of 1846-1847, lost for more than half a century to the despair of historians and recently arranged and classified in a series of thirty-nine volumes by Seymour Dunbar. That there will be keen competition in bids for these valuable manuscripts there is little question, the probabilities being that they will go to either the Library of Congress or to some educational institution of California—unless Mr. Huntington decides to outbid all competitors and add the documents to his already famous literary collection of Californiana at San Marino. These musty tomes glow with life and noble deeds of patriots, to the eyes of the student of early western times. Most of the manuscripts offered for sale have long been out of print, some are to be found only in rare instances, while many of the manuscripts, like the Sutter papers, are written in longhand and show the wear of time and the erosion caused by rain, snow and dust.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

Concerning the Sutter manuscripts, it is enough to say that they deal with events that transpired at and near the fort and that they place Fremont's fourth expedition in a new light. Within a year after they were written they were abandoned in the mountains of New Mexico and neither the documents nor the related papers of Edward M. Kern, the artist with Fremont's expedition, who later came into command at the fort, reveal how or whether they again came into Kern's possession. Kern was still searching for them in 1851. Bancroft, who knew of their existence and who also made vigorous search for them, wrote:

"A veil of mystery shrouds the events of 1846-1847 in the Sacramento Valley, and little is known of affairs at Sutter's Fort during the administration of Kern as commander."

How, where and when these papers were last discovered will probably be revealed at the sale today. An attempt to emphasize the extraordinary historical importance of these papers would be needless. The manuscripts contain practically a complete history of California's struggle for independence from the time of Kern's appointment as artist with the Fremont expedition to the day when Commodore Sloat issued his famous proclamation that "henceforth California will be a portion of the United States."

Among the papers are to be found Castro's proclamation of March 8, 1846; Hardy's original manuscript bill for the transportation of Sonoma captives to the fort and other Bear Flag services; the appeal for freedom addressed to Kern by the Sonoma captives; Kern's correspondence with Montgomery and Fremont's instructions; the manuscript of Revere's letter calling Americans to arms; Edwin Bryant's proposal for raising men to recapture Los Angeles; Kern's records of garrison affairs; the appeal for help sent to the fort by settlers on Bear Creek; Richardson's assertion of neutrality and appeal for release of his ship; Kern's report of his Indian campaigns; Fallon's report from Bear Creek, and collection of hitherto unknown material relating to the rescue of the Donner party; letters of McKinstry, Snyder, Watmough and Gillespie and Kern's contract establishing the first postal service in California in behalf of the United States. The "Captives of Sonoma," Vol. X, is especially interesting, embracing documents relating to the prisoners captured during the Bear Flag's first foray and comprising the original manuscript of the appeal for freedom written by Salvador Vallejo.

The story of Vert Sutter is full of interest to students of history. A quadrangular Adobe structure; its construction was started in 1841 by Gen. John A. Sutter, who had come to California lured by vivid accounts he had heard of the beauties of this section of America. The fort was finished in 1844, mounting twelve pieces of artillery (two of them brass) and capable of admitting a garrison of 1000 men. In 1846 Gen. Castro, in the interests of Mexico, offered Sutter $100,000 for the fort. This offer was politely, but firmly, refused. Its rejection was the forerunner of the proclamation by Commodore Sloat.

Among the "Bear Flag" documents one of the most important is that written by Dr. Robert Semple, Yerba Buena, Jan. 7, 1847, testifying of his personal knowledge to Fremont's responsibility for the foray of July, 1846, which was under Semple's command, and whose successfully accomplished purpose was the spiking of the Mexican cannon at Yerba Buena.

Volume XXVI deals with the Donner Party Tragedy, and one of the manuscripts, by John Sinclair, organizer of the First Relief, contains the names of the men who first volunteered to rescue Donner and his men. It gives the names of the men in the relief organization and the number of days devoted by each to that work. The final line of this paper relates to one of the most dramatic events in the history of the West. The line reads:

John Denton was one of the emigrants whom the First Relief sought to save, but his strength gave out during the struggle through the mountains and, lying down in the snow, he ordered the others to go on. The "one coverlid, valued at $20," was laid over him and he was left to die. Later, when his frozen body was discovered, still wrapped in the coverlid, there was found by his side a piece of paper on which he had written, with shaking hand, the well-known poem which begins with the stanza:

"Oh, after many roving years,
How sweet it is to come
Back to the dwelling place of youth—
Our first and dearest home."

THRILLING ADVENTURES.

Besides the Sutter papers, scores of other fascinating books and manuscripts will be sold today and tomorrow, one of the most interesting volumes being William Beachke's account of the "California Phalanx," telling of "the dreadful sufferings and thrilling adventures of an overland party of emigrants to California, their terrible conflicts with savage tribes and Mexican bands of robbers, and giving the marriage, funeral and other ceremonies and customs of the Indians of the Far West." This book was compiled from the journal of George Adam, one of the party, and is said to be very rare. According to Cowan, this company was formed in New Orleans in October, 1849, and journeyed by the Southern Platte Route.

CENSORSHIP DRAGON.

It is interesting to note that as early as 1867 the dragon of censorship had raised its head in America, and that the thing censored had its origin in the Golden State. Among the books to be auctioned off today is "Newton's Suppressed Overland Narrative," being the memoirs of John M. Newton, "containing a narrative of my trip across the plains from Ohio to California; life and adventures of the 'Diggins;' the French war at Moquelumne Hill; reminiscences of the years 1850-52 in California." Only a few copies were privately printed for the family and friends of the author. But the author had a child who belonged to "the more deadly of the species." To crucify art, strangle progress and mutilate history seems to be the business of fanaticism. Newton's daughter objected to certain passages in her father's memoirs and, imitating Omar, of Alexandrian Library notoriety, she gathered the copies of the first edition together and consigned them to the flames. A few copies of later editions, which have been preserved, doubtless were either never seen or were pronounced immaculate by the self-appointed censor. The work bears no imprint, but a printed notice on Page 1 says: "Memoirs commenced November, 1867, at Cincinnati."

"SPIRITS" OF THE PAST.

There was a time when vineyards flourished in California, and long before enterprising citizens began to manufacture French wines here, people drank the blood of the grape along with the elixir of our wondrous climate. They were not competing with France, Spain or Mexico in those good days, but were justly proud of their California products. In 1889, G. H. Jessop wrote a book called "Judge Lynch—A Romance of the California Vineyards." A few copies of this rare romance have been preserved and one of them will be on sale in New York today. Another volume is "Delevan's Notes on California and the Placers; How to Get There and What to Do Afterwards—by One Who Has Been There!" The author probably did not dream that a few hundred thousand others would soon take up the trail westward, and so, for the sake of history, he wrote a detailed account of his trip to San Francisco in '49, told of the gambling houses, of fortunes lost and won, of the efficiency of the "Code Lynch," his visit to Sutter's Fort and other points of interest, and also recorded the murder of the Oregonians and a number of noted Indian depredations. Another volume, first printed in 1852, is a "Memorial to the Congress of the United States on the necessity, importance and practicability of building a railroad from the Mississippi River to the Pacific Ocean," prepared by a committee appointed at the railroad convention held at Little Rock, July 4, 1852." To this and similar romantic methods of celebrating Independence Day by the railroad officials of the early days are we indebted for our transcontinental lines!

Ever hear of Alta-California? There was such a place once, although now it's only California and "Baja." The original edition of "Robinson's California" gives a historical account of the "origin, customs and traditions of the Indians of Alta-California." It was translated from the original Spanish manuscript. "California and its Missions" gives the history of the missions up to the treaty of Gaudalupe Hidalgo. The work is said to be extremely scarce, only a few copies having been distributed when the great fire occurred, destroying practically the whole edition. Of particular interest, also, is the book by A. B. Clarke, detailing his travels in Mexico, Arizona and California, comprising a journal of a tour from Brazos Santiago, by way of Monterey, the country of the Apaches and the River Gila to the mining districts of California, 1849-51. Included in the list of books on sale is also Dewitt's Memoirs of Joaquin Murieta, most notorious desperado of his times, who was finally captured by Capt. Love. The bandit was decapitated and his head publily exhibited at a dollar a look, afterward being sold at auction for $63. "Them was the good old days." Of more than ordinary interest is Cutts's "Conquestion of California and Overland March, 1847," being history of the conquest of California and New Mexico by the United States forces in 1846-47, "with a complete history of the march overland from Fort Leavenworth to California." This is said to be "the rare original edition of the earliest published narrative of the conquest by the army of the West."

MANY OTHER NARRATIVES.

The books commented on are but a few of the vast selection held by the Anderson Galleries. Among the scores of other papers, pamphlets and books, which will, after tomorrow, become the priceless possession of an individual bibliographer of a State, community or some institution of learning the following are interesting examples: "Mrs. Cedarholm's Narrative of her Trip Across the Desert," Maj. Downie's, Founding of Downieville," Carstarphen's "Trip to California in '49," Capron's "History of California," Delano's "Life on the Plains," Grey's "Picture of Pioneer Times," Leeper's "Overland trip to California," Harlan's "California '46 to '48," Dowling's "California Land Claims," and Denison's "California Poetry."

Miss Mary Piuma, who, presented bouquet of roses to Gen. Diaz.

KILLS WIFE, THEN TURNS GUN ON SELF.

Picture Bride is Shot by Husband, Who Then Attempts Suicide.

What thread of oriental love wove its scarlet way through the life of tiny Mrs. M. Takemo and brought her to her death yesterday?

She left the Flowery Kingdom and the fragrance of the cherry blossoms to come to Los Angeles as a "picture bride" recently.

Yesterday, according to Detective Sergeants Walter Wood and Louis Rico, she and her husband, M. Takemo, a farmer, quarreled in a Japanese rooming-house at 129½ East First street. The proprietor of the place heard sharp words and then three staccato shots.

When the officers smashed their way into the room they found Mrs. Takemo dead with a bullet through her heart. Takemo was lying on the floor as the result of two self-inflicted wounds through the left upper chest. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital and later removed to the prison ward of the County Hospital. He maintained silence concerning the shooting.

The body of Mrs. Takemo was removed to the Japanese undertaking parlors.

BISHOP WILL SPEAK.

Bishop Cantwell of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles will address a mass meeting tonight in the auditorium of the Fourteenth-street school. The meeting will be under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. A program of music will be given by the choir of Phillips' Chapel C.M.E. Church. The association will have its annual election of officers.

GEN. DIAZ COMES, CONQUERS

participating in the world disarmament conference.

THREW IN ALL.

In his remarks, Gen. Diaz referred briefly to the part Italy played in the war, remarking that she lost 500,000 men, had 1,000,000 wounded, tossed in all her potential resources, spent billions of dollars, and then, when the war was over and prices of foodstuffs were sky-high, turned squarely about and busied herself in relieving the people of Austria, who were then in a starving condition. He declared that many Italian women took Austrian children into their homes and nursed them to health.

He praised the work of the women of all the Allied countries, of the men who built the bridge of ships, and the men who turned out the munitions, and wound up with this remark:

"I give homage to the valor of all, but I ask you all, what would have happened if Italy and America had remained seated with their hands in their pockets?"

Following the general's address, G. Piuma, local consular agent for Italy, made a few remarks in the Italian tongue. His daughter, Miss Mary Piuma, then presented the general with a magnificent boquet of California roses, which he accepted with this graceful and complimentary declaration:

"The Bible tells us that Paradise was somewhere in Asia, but that was written before an Italian discovered America."

Gen. Diaz was accompanied by Col. M. C. Buckley, U.S.A., who wears many decorations. The general's interpreter is Capt. C. H. Huntington, a native of Italy, but of American parentage. He has been in the Italian army twelve years. He is a distant relative of Henry E. Huntington, the railroad magnate and art and book collector.

At the Santa Fe Station, where the general's special car stood for half an hour before the train left, the general stood on the rear platform, shaking hands with many men and women from sunny Italy who are now and have long been members of the local Italian colony. He lifted many little boys and girls to the platform and hugged and petted them in a most affectionate manner. As the train departed he was silhouetted in the center of the rear platform, standing at attention, while hundreds cheered and waved him a loving farewell.

There he was officer in charge of flying.

At the close of the war he returned to Los Angeles and entered commercial aviation work. He first was part owner in the Syd Chaplin Aircraft Corporation, but early in 1920 withdrew from that organization and started the Rogers Aircraft Corporation, being associated with Mr. Webster and W. P. Halliday.

Lieut. Rogers leaves a widow, a daughter and a son, and his mother, Mrs. Florence H. M. Gorham, all of Santa Monica, where the dead flier lived. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

SAYS FIRST TIME.

Williams is emphatic in his statement that this is the first time he has ever attempted making imitation money, but officers are confident he is much experienced in the work.

A great deal of bad silver coin has been circulating in the harbor district and it is supposed it has all come from the mint in thecave which, according to the statement of the man under arrest, has been operating for the last ten days.

Clifford Wheeler, alias George Wilson, 26 years of age, a Canadian war veteran from Montreal, was arrested on suspicion of burglary yesterday, following the theft of $1000 worth of narcotics from a drug store at Third and Main streets. Detective Sergts. Edwards and Hickey said they found the narcotics in Wheeler's possession.

GIRL PROVES THIEF.

Newly Made Acquaintance Took Cash, Jewels, Man Tells Police.

Frank Shetland, 437 East Sixteenth street reported to the police yesterday that a girl whose acquaintance he made Saturday night accepted his attentions and then robbed him. When he parted from her he missed $50 in cash, a diamond stickpin, his watch, chain and a ring.

BY SAINT-GAUDENS.

The Museum of History, Science and Art in Exposition Park has secured the loan of a bronze medallion by the great American sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens. This small medallion is owned by Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Clark of Corona, and is now being exhibited in the main gallery of the museum. The medallion is the portrait of a small child, called "Nuvy," and was done for a member of the Clark family. It has the elusive charm and quality that one feels in all of Saint-Gaudens's work. It will be on exhibition until December 12.
